Manuscripts Wanted

FOR PUBLICATION

THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY

WILL CONSIDER FOR PUBLICATION IN THE

NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD

THE OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE SOCIETY

1st. Manuscript genealogical records of New York City or State families, embodying record of the original settler in New York and the first five (5) succeeding generations of said settler's descendants.

2nd. Manuscript genealogical records of families not of New York origin, embodying record of the original settler and the first five (5) succeeding generations of his descendants—provided that such material submitted for acceptance has not been previously published elsewhere, or where such articles make material and unquestioned corrections in matter previously published.

3rd. Articles on family Coats-of-Arms giving authentic demonstration of the right of American families to use such Arms. Colored or engraved plates of such demonstrated Arms will be taken under consideration for publication to accompany such articles.

4th. Verified and complete records of old churches in New York City and State, and in territory contiguous thereto, including vital records of births, baptisms, marriages, deaths and burials.

5th. Verified and complete transcriptions of old burial ground inscriptions from New York City and State burying grounds, and from territory taken contiguous thereto.

6th. Biographical and genealogical sketches of individual ancestors, to be accompanied by a reproduction of portrait and signature of such ancestors.

7th. Auto-biographical sketches, with genealogical addenda, of living Americans of national reputation. These articles are intended to permit living men of reputable prominence to secure the publication of sketches of themselves which bear the authority of their personal sanction.

Manuscripts submitted for approval must be in form to go to press, and must be written in easily deciphered writing—preferably type-written—on but one side of the paper with a margin of one inch at top and left hand side of page.

Purely genealogical manuscript must be arranged in the proper genealogical order and sequence and numbered as to generations, &c., after the manner adopted by the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record.

Those who have any such manuscripts, and who desire to have the same published, are invited to submit the same to this Society before making arrangements for publication elsewhere—as if the material submitted for consideration is original and of value an arrangement for the publication of the same satisfactory to the compiler can undoubtedly be made with this Society.

REGISTERS OF PEDIGREES

Form Copyrighted and recommended by this Society

This Society has copyrighted and has for sale a printed blank genealogical chart called "Register of Pedigrees." These registers are of two varieties, called "single" and "double" registers, respectively. They are each bound volumes, 11 × 16 inches in size, properly ruled and printed for the insertion of the names and vital records of ancestors of the individual using the forms in successive generations.

The "single" Registers consist of 17 leaves (34 pages), and when filled in will give all of the ancestors of the individual in all ramifications for 9 generations, arranged so that the family name of each of the 16 great-great-grandparents of the individual occupies a full page. Family names appear on the marginal index, which is formed by the indentation of each leaf. The back of each leaf is arranged for special memoranda concerning the correspondingly numbered individual on the front of same leaf.

The "double" Registers are practically two "single" Registers combined, consisting of 34 leaves (68 pages). The object being to permit the individual to devote the first half of the Register to the registration of the complete record of his male line of ascent; the second half for a like registration of his female line of ascent. The "double" Register therefore provides for the registration of 10 full generations in both the male and female lines.

These Registers have been revised and improved in form and a new edition of the same is now ready for sale. In this new edition we have issued one-half in the old form of permanent binding in paper and cloth as heretofore; and one-half in "loose leaf" cloth binding. The loose leaf cloth binding is an improvement on the old form of permanent binding as it permits the indefinite extension of the "Register" to include the recording of as many generations of ascent as the individual can establish.

The entire edition is printed on extra quality of linen ledger paper.

Individuals who purchase these Registers and fill them in carefully and as fully as possible, may present the same to this Society, and if found to be properly recorded they will be filed amongst the manuscript records, and the individual will receive a new blank Register in exchange for the same gratis. It is the desire of the Trustees that members of the Society supply themselves with these Registers, fill them out as fully as possible, and file them with the Society. They will be bound from time to time in volumes fully indexed and will thus form a record of great value to genealogists. Those who have in their possession information relative to their individual ancestry are urged to secure these Registers, fill them in and file them with the Society, as information of this nature is frequently lost to posterity owing to negligence on the part of those possessing such information to record the same in recognized depositories provided for that purpose.

These Registers may be purchased from

THE NEW YORK

Genealogical and Biographical Record.

VOL. LII. NEW YORK, JANUARY, 1921. No. 1

SAMUEL PUTNAM AVERY.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOHN R. TOTTEN.

Samuel Putnam Avery, a Life Member and Vice-President of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, died at his home, No. 61 Woodland Street, Hartford, Conn., September 25, 1920, in the 73rd year of his age. He was born October 7, 1847, at Brooklyn, N. Y. He was the son of Samuel Putnam and Mary Ann (Ogden) Avery, of New York City; and a grandson of Samuel Putnam and Hannah Anne (Parke) Avery, of New York City. On the Avery side his authenticated pedigree carries his blood line back to one Robert Avery, of Pylle, Co., Somerset, England, who died between July 27 and October 14, 1575. The immigrant Avery ancestor was William Avery (in the fourth generation) who came over to this country in 1650, and settled at Dedham, Mass. The Avery family in England, of which the subject of our sketch was a lineal descendant, was of proven armigerous rights as is demonstrated by the authentic Avery arms* brought over to this country by William Avery, the immigrant ancestor, and since then continuously used by the said William Avery and his descendants. Through his maternal grandmother he was a direct descendant of Richard Park (1602-1665), the immigrant ancestor, who arrived in this country at Boston, on October 3, 1635, and who settled in Cambridge Village (Newton), Mass. Thus, it will be seen that by blood he was essentially of English extraction, and of the earliest American Colonial ancestry. Like all of the best of those who have the blood inheritance of such early and distinguished Colonial ancestry, Mr. Avery was of a character that such respected lineage should make him: he was distinctively all American in his patriotic motives and actions, modest and unassuming, yet with a force of character which placed him in an emphatic position in all enterprises to which he devoted his mind and activity.

* An illuminated facsimile of these authenticated arms may be seen in Vol. LI. of the N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Record, facing page 84, and a certified copy of both the Avery and Park Pedigrees of Samuel Putnam Avery may be seen in the same volume, pp. 84-90, inclusive.

His father, Samuel Putnam Avery, Senior, was the well known critic, connoisseur and dealer, of New York City, whose influence in the art circles of that city and the United States was of the greatest value in his day, in developing in this country the love of art and a discriminating knowledge thereof. In establishing his enviable reputation, Samuel Putnam Avery, Senior, built up probably the largest art clientele ever attained in this country, and as a dealer, was instrumental in securing for his individual clients and for public collections the best art obtainable in his time. As an unerring developer of the best artistic taste, he stood pre-eminent. In the course of his business development he acquired a large fortune, much of which he distributed, as a result of his philanthropic inclinations, amongst public institutions.

Samuel Putnam Avery, Junior, the subject of this sketch, succeeded to his father's business and, having likewise inherited his father's taste and discriminating judgment, he continued it with marked success. His place of business was located on the west side of Fifth Avenue, in an unpretentious two-storied brick building, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets, just north of where then stood the well known A. T. Stewart mansion (since demolished), and south of the Thirty-fifth Street corner, where was then located the New York Club. Those who were fortunate enough to have had dealings with Mr. Avery, in the days when their taste in art was immature, were one and all greatly aided in their artistic development by an association with him and grew to feel an absolute dependence upon his excellent judgment and upon the unimpeachable integrity of his dealings. His clients became his friends, those whose association with him began originally when he was a dealer, were proud subsequently to be included amongst his intimates.

Such was the origin of the writer's association with Mr. Avery, and he deems it a high compliment that that original association culminated in a friendship which must always be one of his pleasantest memories. Mr. Avery continued in his business career for fifteen years, maintaining his residence with his parents at No. 4 East Thirty-eighth Street, New York City. He was in business from 1887 to 1902, lived in New York City from 1902 to 1909, and removed to Hartford in 1909, where he established his home at No. 61 Woodland Street, and there resided until his death, spending his summer months at his country home on Button Island in Lake Champlain. The abandonment of the commercial side of his art career did not, however, mean the giving up of his interest in art; it meant simply that the adventitious circumstances of life had rendered him independent, and that he was permitted thereby to follow his artistic tastes along the sole lines of the collector, connoisseur, and amateur (if one so well informed may at the same time be so called). He continued to collect and as he thus formed his collections, he in time bestowed many of these artistic aggregations upon public institutions where their permanent possession have become monuments to his memory. In this way the Brooklyn Museum became in 1909, the recipient of his magnificent collection of ancient Chinese Cloisonné, which collection since that year has been materially augmented by him until now it is recognized as probably one of the finest collections of its kind in the world.

Even before his retirement from business, he developed an interest in genealogy; and, after his retirement from commercial pursuits his interest along this line of research increased and he devoted much time in gathering information relative to his progenitors, which resulted in the publication in 1919, of his work, The Avery, Fairchild and Park Families of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, in which volume he, with great literary merit, has set forth the vital facts of his line of descent from Thomas Fairchild, of Stratford, Conn., from William Avery, of Dedham, Mass., and from Richard Park, of Cambridge Village (now Newton), Mass. This volume reflects great credit upon the compiler and is replete with information of the greatest value to succeeding generations. This interest in genealogy resulted in his becoming a member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society in 1905, which membership caused him to become interested in the Society's welfare and development. He became satisfied that the Society was an active and aggressively progressive organization, and this knowledge brought about a renewal of those cordial relations of association which had existed between the writer of this sketch and himself, which association had been somewhat interrupted by his change of residence from New York City to Hartford,—the writer having been for many years in a modest way likewise interested in the practical development of the common sense activities of this Society. The renewal of this friendly association enabled the writer to lay before Mr. Avery in detail the problems relative to the Society's advancement which were engrossing the minds of its Administrative body, and a sympathetic appreciation of the merits thus demonstrated resulted in Mr. Avery giving to the Society $20,000 for the establishment of an Art Fund, the income from which was to aid the Society, when established in its prospective new home, in improving the artistic atmosphere of its future environment. As time advanced, Mr. Avery, becoming convinced by a more intimate knowledge of the Society's needs, that it, as an incorporated body, was more in need of assistance in its field of publication, augmented his original gift by an additional gift of $10,000, and enlarged the original deed of gift so that the entire fund should thereafter be known as the Avery Art and Publication Fund, it being left to the discretion of the Board of Trustees, as to whether the income of this fund should be devoted to aid in the direction of Art development, or to the enlargement of the field of its publication activities. This expansion of the terms of the deed of gift was the result of a keen and intelligent appreciation of existing conditions facing the Society and this broad, far-seeing grasp of the situation is a silent tribute to the intelligence which he brought to bear in making his philanthropic donations during life, and was of vital benefit to the Society.

As its Vice-President, he was thoroughly posted as to its affairs, both in regard to its present excellent financial condition, and its future ambitions and hopes. He realized that even though the Society was in possession of a desirable site for its proposed new home, yet that it was in need of an endowment fund to support that new home when it was built. As a result of consultation with its Administrative and Executive officers, he became convinced that a fund of $200,000 was necessary to be raised as an endowment to support the proposed new building, and he headed the subscription list for the purpose of securing this fund, with a subscription of $25,000, to be paid by him provided the additional $175,000 should be raised on or before December 31, 1920. The stimulus of this generous offer initiated a campaign for the acquirement of this sum of $200,000, and has resulted in subscriptions amounting up to date (December 31, 1920), of over $67,000. Whatever may be the result of this endowment fund campaign, let it be fully appreciated that Mr. Avery was one of those most active in its initiation and development.

This article has so far dealt largely with Mr. Avery's activities in the interest of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, because the writer feels great confidence in setting forth those commendable facts which have come under the scrutiny of his personal observation. A full knowledge of the man convinces the writer that the same excellent discrimination and judgment guided Mr. Avery in his numerous other philanthropic enterprises.

Mr. Avery's interests after his retirement from an active business career were numerous, as may be gathered from the following list of societies, clubs and institutions with which he was associated either officially or as a member. He was a Trustee and Vice-President of the Wadsworth Athenæum and Morgan Memorial Museum, at Hartford, Conn.; a member and Vice-President of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, Boston, Mass.; Trustee and member of the Board of Governors of the Institute of Arts and Sciences, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Trustee and member of the Board of Finance of the Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tenn.; Honorary Vice-President of the National Arts Club, of New York City; Trustee of the Watkinson Library, Hartford, Conn.; Member of the Connecticut Society of Mayflower Descendants and on the Board of Assistants, Hartford, Conn.; member of the New York Society of Colonial Wars; member of the New York Society, Sons of the Revolution; member of the St. Nicholas Society of New York City; member and on the Committee on Publications of the American Numismatic Society of New York City; Life Member, Vice-President and on the Print Committee of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society of New York City, and the establisher by endowment of the Samuel Putnam Avery Art and Publication Fund of that Society, and a Fellow in Perpetuity of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City. He was a member of the Board of Directors of the Colonial National Bank, Hartford, Conn., and also Director of the Society for Savings in that city. He was also a member of the New England Society, National Sculpture Society, Iconophile Society, Municipal Art Society, American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, National Society of Mural Painters, National Association of Audubon Societies, Archæological Institute of America, New York Academy of Science, Civil Service Reform Association, American Civic Alliance, Art League of America, Institute of Arts and Sciences, American Museum of Natural History, New York Historical Society, National Academy of Design, Honorary Member Artists' Fund Society, Geographical Society, New York Zoological Society, National Indian Association, Museum of French Art, Lake Champlain Association, American Institute of Graphic Arts, Naval History Society, New York City; Bibliophile Society, Museum of Fine Arts, New England Historic Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass.; American Academy of Political and Social Science, University of Pennsylvania, Department of Archæology, National Municipal League, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, Philadelphia, Pa.; American Federation of Arts, National Genealogical Society, Washington, D. C.; Institute of Fine Arts, Chicago, Ill.; Maria Mitchell Association, Nantucket, Mass.; Municipal Art Society, Board of Trade, Archæological Society, Connecticut Historical Society, Hartford, Conn.; Westerly, R. I., Historical Society; Dedham, Mass., Historical Society. He was also a member of the following clubs: Union League, Grolier, City History, Member and Honorary Vice-President, National Arts Club, New York City; Lake Champlain Yacht, Burlington, Vt.; Pilgrim Society, Plymouth, Mass., and Trustee of the Hartford Theological Seminary Foundation.

The existence of such men as Samuel Putnam Avery, endowed with the possession of large wealth and at the same time possessed of inherent progressive philanthropic impulses, is of distinct value to those communities and activities in which they become interested, and Mr. Avery's passing on is a distinct loss not only to institutions which he may have benefitted, but to the community at large.

Mr. Avery's life was spent in close contact with the world of art, with the commercial side of the development of which he was originally and long associated. Later, as a result of his inborn love of art for art's sake and of his broad education acquired in the development of this natural inclination, he remained until his death an active and imposing figure in art circles.

He has passed on to a sphere of existence where art as an imitator of the beauties of nature ceases, and where those very beauties of nature themselves are glorified in the transcendent perfections of the sempiternal and divine, and where philanthropy is not an accidental individual attribute, but the very essence of eternal existence.

As a true friend of our Society and, with all modesty, may I add my personal friend, I close this inadequate tribute by emphasizing the fact that he fought the good fight of life: Requiescat in pace.

LATIMER (LATTIMORE) FAMILY.

CONTRIBUTED BY COL. C. D. PARKHURST, U. S. Army,
Corresponding Member of the N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Society.

EDITORIAL PREFACE BY JOHN R. TOTTEN:

Savage's Gen. Dict. of N. E., Vol. III, p. 59, states: "Robert[1] Lattimore (or Latimer) of New London, mariner, about 1660, m. probably at Boston [marriage not recorded there] Ann, widow of Matthew Jones, and daughter of George Griggs, and had:

1. Robert,[2] b. Feb. 5, 1664; d. Nov. 2, 1728, leaving a son John, probably of Harvard College, 1703, and also Robert, Jonathan, Samuel and Peter.
2. Elizabeth,[2] b. Nov. 14, 1667; who m. Jonathan Prentiss.

Robert[1] Lattimore d. ——, 1671" [in as much as Savage derived most of his New London data from Miss Caulkin's History of New London, it is fair to presume that this above record of Robert[1] Lattimore was derived from that source].

Savage's Gen. Dict. of N. E., Vol. II, p. 315, states: "George[1] Griggs of Boston, came over on the Hopewell, Captain Bundocke, in 1635, from London, aged 42, he was of Landen, in Bucks, according to custom house receipts, and embarked April 1, with his wife Alice, aged 42 and children Thomas 15, William 14, Elizabeth 10, Mary 6, James 2. He had here Elizabeth again b. May 14, 1636; Sarah, b. May 15, 1637, and William, also who d. in Dec., 1638, and the second Elizabeth d. May —, 1640. George[1] Griggs died June 23, 1660 [which death is corroborated by Boston B. M. D., 1630-1699, p. 75]; he made his will July 4, 1655, in which will he provided for his wife's son James and daughters Ann Jones, wife of Matthew, Mary Brooks and Sarah King. His widow [Alice (——) Griggs] in her will of July 20, 1662, proved May 1, following, doubts if her son James ever comes; names grandchild William King and his mother Sarah who had married Roger Burgiss, and administration was given to Robert Lattimore, who had married the daughter Ann [Griggs] Jones. James [Griggs] was presumed in 1665, being many years unheard of, to be dead. The male descendants failed at once."

Savage's Gen. Dict. of N. E., Vol. II, p. 564, states: "Matthew[1] Jones of Boston, by wife Ann had:

Rebecca,[2] b. Feb. 26, 1645.
Matthew,[2] b. ——?
Sarah,[2] b. ——, 1660, about.

Removed to New London where Sarah[2] married John Prentice."

The Boston Record Commissioner's Reports, B. M. D., Boston, 1630-1699, gives us as follows:

p. 33. Matthew, of Rice and Ann Jones, b. 30th 4th mo. 1651.

p. 45. Sarah, of Rice and Ann Jones, b. April 19, 1654.
p. 64. Elizabeth, of Rice and Ann Jones, b. July 6, 1658.
p. 66. Elizabeth, of Rice and Ann Jones, d. Jan. 31, 1658-9.
p. 70. Hannah, of Rice and Ann Jones, b. May 4, 1659.
p. 77. Ann, of Ann and Rice Jones, bap. 1st Church Boston, 11 day 1 mo 1660.
p. 81. Rice Jones died at Boston, Jan. 3, 1661.
p. 21. Rebecca, of Matthew INES, aged about 4 days was bap. 1st Church Boston, 2 day 1st mo 1645. [This is possibly the record of the baptism of the Rebecca[2] Jones (daughter of Matthew[1]) which is given in Savage, Vol. II, p. 564, and who is there stated to have been born Feb. 26, 1645. For if she was bap. 2d day 1st mo. 1645, aged about 4 days, in as much as March was then the first month of the year, she must have been born about Feb. 26, 1645. I do not think however that this Rebecca INES, was Rebecca Jones, as stated by Savage, Vol. II, p. 564, for the reason that Matthew INES had several other children recorded in Boston in 1638, 1641, 1642, 1647, and 1650, respectively, and I think her name was Ines and not Jones.—J. R. Totten, Editor.]
p. 49. Matthew and Sarah of Ann and Tho: Jones, baptized first church Boston 4th day, 4th mo. 1654. [It would look on the face of it as if this entry may be the record of baptism of the two children: Matthew and Sarah—of Rice and Ann Jones, who were born as above stated, in 1651 and 1654, respectively—and that their parents are not properly recorded here on p. 49. This seems specially to be possible from the fact that neither Savage nor Pope give any record of a Thomas Jones who had a wife Ann, while B. M. D., as above stated, shows direct evidence that there was a Rice Jones who had a wife Ann, and by her had numerous children.—J. R. Totten, Editor.]

The town records of New London as stated positively by Colonel Parkhurst, set forth that Sarah Jones who married John Prentis was the daughter of Ryte (sic) Jones. [Ryte being probably the reading of the name Rice as recorded in Boston.—J. R. Totten, Editor.]

Caulkins' History of New London, p. 288, states that "Robert Latimer married Ann (widow of Matthew Jones) and that she, Ann Jones, had by her first husband, Matthew Jones, two (Jones) children, viz.: Matthew and Sarah; and that by her Robert Latimer (Lattimore) had two (Latimer) children, viz.: Robert, born Feb. 5, 1663-4, and Elizabeth, born Nov. 14, 1667. The two half-sisters married two brothers, viz.: Sarah Jones married John Prentis and Elizabeth Latimer married Jonathan Prentis. Matthew Jones, the son of Mrs. Ann (Griggs) Jones-Latimer, by Matthew Jones, was a sea captain sailing from Boston, and at no time appears to have been a resident of New London." Neither in Savage nor in Pope's Pioneers of Massachusetts nor in Boston B. M. D., 1630-1699, do we find any record of the marriage of the widow Ann (Griggs) Jones to Robert[1] Latimer; nor do we find any record of the births of children to Robert[1] Latimer by his wife Ann (Griggs) Jones in the Boston records; and Miss Caulkins (p. 289) states that Robert[1] Latimer was probably an emigrant to New London direct from England. We do not find in the Boston B. M. D., 1630-1699, any record of the marriage of a Matthew Jones to Ann Griggs, yet we know from the will of George Griggs that Matthew Jones was the husband of Ann Griggs the daughter of George Griggs, while we find abundant evidence that Rice Jones had a wife Ann and by her had numerous children, two of whom are by Savage and Caulkins said to have been the children of Matthew Jones. Hence, we are forced to the conclusion that Matthew Jones was also known as Rice Jones under which latter name the births and baptisms of his various children were recorded in Boston.

Therefore, from the above quoted extracts from standard authorities, we feel justified in concluding that about the year 1650, there was in Boston one, Rice, or Ryte (alias Matthew) Jones, who, about that year married Ann Griggs (daughter of George and Alice (——) Griggs, of Boston). Said George Griggs died June 23, 1660; his widow Alice (——) Griggs, died between July 20, 1662 and May 18, 1663. Rice (or Ryte) alias Matthew Jones, died in Boston, Jan. 3, 1661, and his widow married Robert[1] Latimer, of New London, Conn. (after Jan. 3, 1661), who in all probability emigrated directly from England to New London. If the marriage of Robert[1] Latimer to Ann (Griggs) Jones (widow of Rice or Ryte, alias Matthew Jones) took place in Boston, there is no record of it there; nor do we find direct documentary evidence of such marriage in the New London record, but the collateral documentary evidence in New London establishes the marriage of Ann, widow of Ryte Jones to Robert[1] Latimer, of New London.

With these prefatory editorial remarks we submit the article of Col. Parkhurst on the Latimers of New London, Conn., which record is fully substantiated by the town, church and probate records of that town, and at the same time embodying in the record of Robert[1] Latimer, of New London, the conclusions arrived at from the above argument.

In the various records consulted as here above quoted the surname of this family is variously spelled Lattimore, Lattemore and Latimer, which spelling has evolved in modern times into the most general use of the surname Latimer; hence, in this record we use the surname Latimer exclusively, disregarding the more archaic spelling of the name.

41. LUCRETIA[4] LATIMER, bap. April 22, 1739, at New London; d. ——? m. Dec. 21, 1768, at New London, to Nathaniel Saltonstall, as his second wife; he b. ——, at ——; d. ——, at ——. He m. (1) Sept. 16, 1755, at ——, to Rebecca Young (whose parentage is as yet not determined), b. ——? d. Oct. 8, 1766, and by whom he had 4 children, not in Latimer line.

Children by Lucretia[4] Latimer: 6 (Saltonstall), 2 sons and 4 daughters, all recorded in New London, viz.:

137. i. Lucretia,[5] b. Aug. 1, 1770.
138. ii. Polly,[5] b. Aug. 18, 1772.
139. iii. Nancy,[5] b. July 6, 1774.

140. iv. Nathaniel,[5] b. Dec. 18, 1776; m. May 22, 1800, Lucretia Lamphere.
141. v. John,[5] b. Jan. 26, 1781.
142. vi. Betsey,[5] b. April 1, 1784; d. Nov. 23, 1786.

On account of the prominence of the Saltonstall family in and about New London, it is a matter of interest as to who were the parents of this Nathaniel Saltonstall who married Lucretia[4] Latimer. From the Saltonstall Family, pp. 32 and 34, we see that Nathaniel Saltonstall (son of Governor Gurdon and his second wife Elizabeth (Rosewell) Saltonstall of New London), was b. July 1, 1707, at New London, and that he m. March 1, 1732-3 (int. pub. N. L., Feb. 11, 1732-3, see H. D., p. 256), to Mrs. Lucretia Arnold (whose parentage is as yet not determined). Beyond this the Saltonstall Genealogy gives no further information except to say that this Nathaniel Saltonstall, with his wife, removed to one of the southern colonies. The baptismal records of the First Church, New London, gives no record of any children born to this couple in New London. Neither the Saltonstall Genealogy nor the records of New London give record of any Nathaniel Saltonstall born to any of the other sons of Governor Gurdon Saltonstall, so we are puzzled to know who were the parents of Nathaniel Saltonstall who married Dec. 2, 1768, to Lucretia[4] Latimer as his second wife.

At the Court of Probate, New London, May 2, 1744, Daniel Starr, of New London, was appointed guardian of Nathaniel Saltonstall, upwards of 14 years of age, an illegitimate under care of the town, but does not give any clue as to who was the father or mother of this illegitimate child. As he was over 14 years of age in 1744, he must have been born prior to 1730. Nathaniel Saltonstall (son of Gov. Gurdon Saltonstall) married March 1, 1732-3, to Mrs. Lucretia Arnold. So we see that this Nathaniel Saltonstall (illegitimate) was born prior to Nathaniel Saltonstall's marriage in 1732-3, to Lucretia Arnold. The perpetuation of the name Nathaniel, as the given name of this illegitimate child, suggests the possibility that he may have been the son of Nathaniel Saltonstall (son of Gov. Gurdon), born prior to his marriage to Lucretia Arnold; but we have no direct evidence that such was the case. This illegitimate Nathaniel Saltonstall was born prior to 1730, hence was old enough to have married on Sept. 16, 1755, to Rebecca Young, as his first wife. Hempstead's Diary gives notes on pp. 274, 276, 305, 362, 470 and 508, showing that a Nathaniel Saltonstall was living in New London from 1734 to 1748, but does not make it clear whether he refers to Nathaniel Saltonstall (son of Gov. Gurdon) or to the illegitimate Nathaniel Saltonstall. This is in full the information available as to who this Nathaniel Saltonstall, who married first Rebecca Young in 1755, and second Lucretia[4] Latimer in 1768, was.

TITUS FAMILY NOTES.

EDITORIAL COMMENT BY JOHN R. TOTTEN.

The article by Edmund D. Titus, which appeared in Vol. LI, pp. 74-82, inclusive of this publication, when laid before the editor for consideration, was recognized as containing much valuable information, but at the same time it was evident that certain of the conclusions drawn by the author from the evidence submitted were decidedly forced and seemed to fall down under strict analysis. The author (an editor of one of the New York daily papers) was communicated with on the subject of these faulty deductions, in the hope that he would recast the article and re-submit it in corrected form. To this suggestion he replied that, while he recognized the lack of harmony between his stated facts of record and his conclusions drawn therefrom, he was too busy to correct them. The article was edited on the basis of acceptance of the main facts as stated in the original manuscript and editorial attention was called to certain striking inconsistencies contained therein. It was deemed advisable to let the article go to press in the hope that in published form it might create interest and thus bring about correspondence that would clear up the record of the five Abiel's Titus in a manner satisfactory to all concerned.

* H. M., p. 323, states that he was a son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Chapel) Latimer and grand-son of Nathan and Jane (Lee) Latimer. R. G., p. 117, states that he was a son of Nathan and Jane (Lee) Latimer. From the date of his birth, it looks more probable that H. M., p. 323, is correct.

In the note at the bottom of page 76, the date of marriage of Abiel Titus (widower) and Mary Scudder (widow) should read April 1, 1739 (not 1730 as printed); also on page 78, second line, the second marriage of Abiel[3] Titus should read April 1, 1739 (not —, 1738, as given in the original manuscript). On page 81, fifth line, it should read, . . . "was 26 years older than her husband." In the note at bottom of page 80, the phrase, "some 35 years after Abiel[2] Titus' marriage, etc., etc.," should read, "some 39 years after, etc." On page 80, in the list of children of Abiel[2] Titus (the first Abiel), the name of the child Jonathan[3] Titus, b. ——, 1690, should be inserted as the seventh child, between the children John[3] and Philip.[3]

Our hope that this article by Edmund D. Titus, as published, would cause comment has proven correct, and we are in receipt of a most valuable letter of criticism of the article from Dr. John Hendley Barnhart, of the New York Botanical Gardens, Bronx Park, New York City, in which all of the salient errors of statement and deduction on the part of the author are dealt with most logically. We acknowledge this letter with full appreciation of its excellent merit.

Dr. Barnhart calls attention to the fact that our editorial comments on the original article (in so far as they were indulged in) are entirely destructive; and he submits certain constructive comments which, taken in connection with our own comments, seem to throw valuable light upon the problem as to who were the children of Abiel[2] Titus (the first Abiel, Robert[1]) by his wife Rebecca Scudder.

He pertinently calls attention to the fact that Timothy[3] Titus, given by the author as the fifth child of Abiel[2] and Rebecca (Scudder) Titus, and whose date of birth is not recorded, and who married December 14, 1727, Elizabeth Blatchley (see article, p. 80), in all probability was born about 1705 (in view of the given date of his marriage), and that, if so born, that he was born 33 years after his father's marriage to his mother, which is almost as improbable as the stated date of birth of Philip[3] Titus (assigned to the same parents) on June 26, 1711 (39 years after the marriage of the stated parents of the said Philip[3] Titus).

Dr. Barnhart suggests that if these two children were assigned to Abiel[3] Titus (the second Abiel, see p. 81), b. March 15, 1678, by his first wife (whose baptismal name and maiden surname are not given by the author), that it would be more in accordance with the probabilities of the case. He also calls attention to the author's statement on p. 82, in which he says that on 1 Feb., 1714, Abiel[2] Titus (Robert[1]), "the father, conveyed the homestead where Samuel Scudder now lives with one right in the old purchase to his youngest son Jonathan, who in 1750 conveyed the lot to John Bennett," which shows that in 1714 Abiel[2] Titus had no son younger than his son Jonathan[3] Titus, which disposes finally of the author's assignment of Timothy[3] and Philip[3] Titus to the parentage of Abiel[2] Titus and his wife Rebecca Scudder.

Dr. Barnhart also suggests that the Mary Titus who d. June 25, 1735, aged 52 (as per her gravestone record, see pp. 79 and 81), was not Mary (Smith) Titus, the first wife of Abiel[4] Titus (see p. 81); but that she was the first wife of Abiel[3] Titus (whose baptismal name and maiden surname are not given in the original article). He bases this suggestion upon her age at death as recorded on her gravestone, 52 years, which would place the date of her birth in 1683, which makes her only 5 years younger than Abiel[3] Titus, and thus of suitable age to be his first wife, while if she is assigned as the first wife of Abiel[4] Titus, her birth year would make her 26 years his senior, which is on the face of it improbable. Moreover, he logically states that the hypothesis that she was the first wife of Abiel[3] Titus (dying as she is recorded as having died on June 25, 1735) is quite in harmony with the fact that Abiel[3] Titus married a second time on April 1, 1739, to the widow Mary Scudder. He suggests that the only possible excuse for her being assigned as the first wife of Abiel[4] Titus, would be on the hypothesis that the inscription on her gravestone has been improperly quoted in the original article, and that it really read "aged 32" instead of "aged 52." If such were the case (which is in direct contradiction of the original article) then she would have been born in 1703 and would be of suitable age to have been the first wife of Abiel[4] Titus.

Again, Dr. Barnhart calls attention to the author's statement on p. 77, that Henry[3] Titus (who died in 1725) mentions Abiel[4] Titus, eldest son of my brother Abiel[3] Titus, which would place the date of birth of Abiel[4] Titus prior to that of either Timothy[4] or Philip[4] Titus. This fact would also argue that the statement of the author that Abiel[4] Titus was born in 1709 is erroneous, and to establish the fact that he was born earlier than that year, notwithstanding the gravestone record as given in the original article, p. 79. It is possible that the reading of this gravestone inscription is incorrect, and that instead of reading "died May 3, 1759 in his 50th year," that it really reads "in his 56th year," the 6 having been incorrectly read for a cipher (as a not at all unlikely error of reading of an old stone). If such is the case, it would place the year of birth of Abiel[4] Titus as 1703, instead of 1709, as given in the original article, and be in harmony with the rest of the article.

The Timothy[4] Titus mentioned in the original article (p. 76, lines 7 and 8) is confused with Timothy[3] Titus (Abiel,[2] Robert[1]), who was the Timothy mentioned in the will of Henry[3] Titus. Timothy[5] Titus, bap. Nov. 4, 1739 (Abiel,[4] Abiel,[3] Abiel,[2] Robert[1]), was not mentioned in the will of Henry[3] Titus who died in 1725.

Again, the Silas[5] Titus (Abiel[4]) is evidently given a wrong year date of birth, for (p. 82) in the will of Abiel[4] Titus, dated Jan. 3, 1759, it is stated that he was on that date not yet 21 years old, hence he was born after 1738.

On p. 82 of the original article, 10th line from the bottom of the page, "Abiel[3] Titus had three sons and three daughters," should read "Abiel[4] Titus, etc., etc.,"

Bearing in mind the arguments set forth above by Dr. Barnhart, we would then reconstruct the line from Robert[1] Titus through the five Abiels as follows:

1st Generation: Robert[1] Titus, b. ——, 1600; d. ——, before 1679.

2nd Generation: Abiel[2] Titus (the first Abiel), b. ——, 1640; removed to Long Island in 1654; m. probably in 1672, Rebecca Scudder; he died in 1736. Children: 6 (Titus), 4 sons and 2 daughters, viz.:

i. Mary,[3] b. March 12, 1673-4.
ii. Rebecca,[3] b. Oct. 21, 1676; m. Oct. 21, 1734, John Bennett [note that she was 58 years old at date of this marriage.—J. R. T., Editor.]
iii. Abiel,[3] b. March 15, 1678 (see below).
iv. Henry,[3] b. March 6, 1681; d. ——, in 1725, without issue m. Rachel Rugsley (or Pugsley).
v. John,[3] b. April 9, 1684.
vi. Jonathan,[3] b. ——, 1690 (the youngest son).

3rd Generation: Abiel[3] Titus (the second Abiel), b. March 15, 1678; d. —— (after April 1, 1739, the date of his second marriage); m. (1) —— (prior to 1703, the calculated birth year of his eldest son Abiel[4] Titus) to Mary ——? (whose maiden surname is not a matter of record), b. ——, 1683 (according to her age at death); d. June 25, 1735, aged 52 years (according to her gravestone record); he m. (2) April 1, 1739, Mary (——) Scudder, a widow, who was b. ——? d. ——?

Children: 3 (Titus), sons, and perhaps others, viz.:

i. Abiel,[4] b. ——, 1703 (called by his uncle Henry[3] Titus in his will "eldest son of my brother Abiel"); d. May 3, 1759, in his 56th year (incorrectly stated as 50*th year* in the original article); m. (1) Mary Smith; m. (2) Elizabeth Wood; m. (3) Ireny or Joanna Satterly (see below).
ii. Timothy,[4] b. ——, 1705, about (he was younger than Abiel[4] and was m. in 1727); d. ——? m. Dec. 14, 1727, Elizabeth Blatchley.
iii. Philip,[4] b. June 26, 1711; d. ——, 1750 (will dated March 17, 1750; proved April 2, 1750); m. Sept. 12, 1736, Charity Conklin, b. April 8, 1715; d. Nov. 2, 1794, a widow, aged 89.

4th Generation: Abiel[4] Titus (the third Abiel), b. ——, 1703; d. May 3, 1759; m. (1) June 5, 1727, Mary Smith (daughter of Samuel Smith), b. ——; d. —— (prior to March 3, 1736, the date of his second marriage); he m. (2) March 3, 1736, to Elizabeth Wood, b. ——? d. Feb. 10, 1750-1; he m. (3) March 15, 1753 "Ireny" (per will) or Joanna Satterly (as per marriage records), b. ——? d. ——? (subsequent to Jan. 3, 1759, the date of her husband's will which was proved May 10, 1759, in which will she is mentioned as "Ireny."

Children: 10 (Titus), 6 sons and 4 daughters, viz.:

By first marriage, 5; 2 sons and 3 daughters, viz.: (see pp. 76, 81):

i. Ann,[5] b. March 22, 1728; d. ——, 1806, aged 78; m. Stephen Ketcham.
ii. Ruth,[5] b. Jan. 28, 1730; d. ——, 1803, aged 73; m. William Gould.
iii. Mary,[5] b. ——; bap. May 27, 1730; d. ——; m. Ezekiel Conklin.
iv. Abiel,[5] 1st, b. June 30, 1732; bap. Aug. 6, 1732; d. ——? prior to ——, 1755, the year of birth of Abiel[5] 2nd.
v. Silas,[5] 1st, b. ——, 1734; d. young.

By second marriage, 3 sons and 1 daughter, viz.:

vi. Timothy,[5] b. ——? bap. Nov. 4, 1739; d. ——, young, not mentioned in his father's will.
vii. Silas,[5] 2nd, b. ——? bap. Sept. 24, 1741; d. ——? mentioned in his father's will.
viii. Phebe,[5] b. ——? bap. Nov. 20, 1743; d. ——? mentioned in her father's will.
ix. Benjamin,[5] b. ——? bap. Jan. 12, 1746; d. ——? mentioned in his father's will.

By third marriage, 1 son, viz.:

x. Abiel,[5] 2nd, b. ——, 1755; d. ——, 1760, aged 5 years, as per gravestone record (see p. 79).

Dr. Barnhart also calls attention to the fact that no evidence is offered to establish the identity of "Ireny," the 3rd wife of Abiel[4] Titus mentioned in his will and the Joanna Satterly who married Abiel[4] Titus on March 15, 1753. The names Irene (or Ireny) and Joanna are certainly not in any way similar and the confusion of these two names Ireny and Joanna should be based upon some better foundation than a mere arbitrary statement that they were one and the same person. The baptismal name of Abiel[4] Titus' wife mentioned in his will was certainly "Ireny," and the marriage record of March 15, 1753, of Abiel Titus and Joanna Satterly seems authentic; but why the use of the two names Ireny and Joanna, unless possibly the wife bore both of these names. Abiel[2] Titus is said to have died in 1736, so this Joanna Satterly could not have been his second wife. Abiel[3] Titus, we argue, m. (1) Mary ——? m. (2) the widow Mary (——) Scudder. Could this, the second wife of Abiel[3] Titus have died early enough for Abiel[3] Titus to have married a third time on March 15, 1753, to Joanna Satterly?

We thank Dr. Barnhart for this careful and excellent criticism of Edmund D. Titus' original article.

THE WARING SURNAME, A RESTORATION.

Contributed by Clarence Ettienne Leonard.

Miss Janet Waring, of Yonkers, N. Y., as a result of the researches of the writer, has recently established a permanent memorial in honor of her ancestor, Edmond Waring, of Long Island, N. Y., and Norwalk, Conn. Edmond Waring was a son of the original Founder, Richard Waring, who settled at Brookhaven (Setauket), Long Island, where Richard Waring is on record as a juror on Dec. 8, 1663, and Thompson's History of Long Island (Spooner Edition) claims that he was there early in 1657.

While there is no question but that the original spelling of his name was Waring, and sometimes Wareing, later branches of the family, subsequent to the War of the Revolution, adopted Warren as the spelling of their own particular family surname impelled thereto partly through the personal popularity of General Joseph Warren, of Bunker Hill fame, with whom many erroneously believed that they were related, and partly because of the habit of soldier clerks of militia companies during the Revolution, of recording the names without the final letter (g) whereby those names became upon the records at Washington and elsewhere, variously spelled as Waring, Wareing, Warring, Warin, Warein, Warrin, and finally Warren, in compliance with the spelling of the names of the many Warren families of New England, with which families, however, there was little connection, and no blood relationship whatever outside of Great Britain.

That the various ancestors of Robert and Richard Waring, of Herefordshire and Lancashire, England, had no connection with the numerous families of Warren and Warrenne, is now undisputed by genealogists.

Barber's Derivations and Meaning of English Names gives the original name as Vaeringi; "the name of the Warings or northern warriors who served as body guards to the Byzantine Emperors."

The Varangian Guard was composed of this Scandinavian tribe, but was afterwards recruited from Northern Europe and England, where members of the Waring name settled as early as 500 A. D.

Likewise, the name of Warrington comes from the Warings of Waring Town.

On the other hand, the meaning of the family name of most of the Warren families is derived from the rabbit hutch, or warren, which is entirely different from that of the warriors of the Waring tribe.

Much confusion of the names of both of these different families of Waring and Warren, has occurred both in Great Britain and America, but an exhaustive probing into the records of the past, conclusively reveals the absolute lack of identity of the families bearing these two names.

Fairbairn's Crests gives that of the English Warings as a Boar's Head, gules (red).

Be that as it may, there is no question but that the Founder of this particular family, Richard Waring, of Long Island, never used a different patronymic, and a careful examination of the early records and deeds at Norwalk and Stamford, Connecticut, reveals the almost invariable use of the final and distinguishing letter (g).

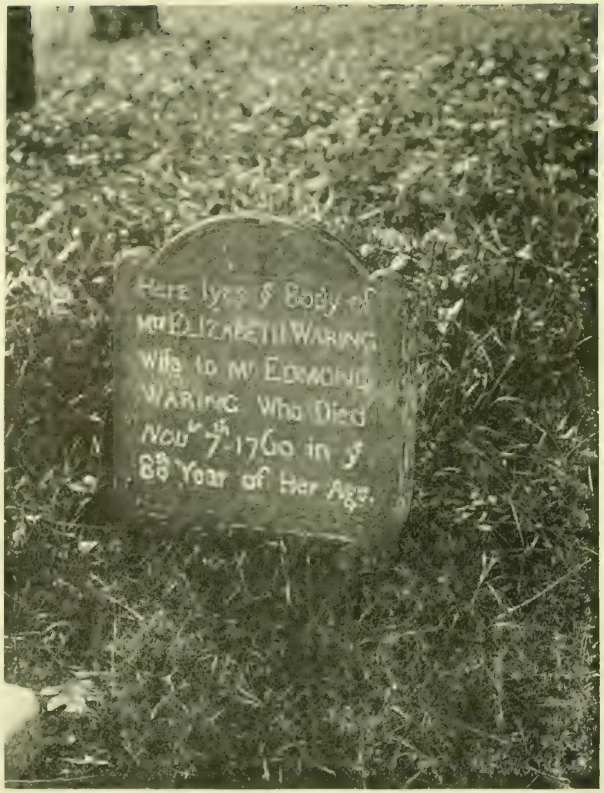
That that branch of the descendants of Edmond Waring, of Norwalk, Connecticut, through the son of Eliakim Waring, who, with two brothers and their families, sailed from Norwalk in 1798, through the Sound for the Hudson, and thence to Troy, New York, had the undoubted right if they so desired, to spell their family names Warren from that time forward, is undisputed by the writer.

Many families at that period, changed the original spelling of their family names, to conform with the usages of the new localities in which they settled; and in that vicinity and the neighboring frontiers of Vermont and Massachusetts, the name of Warren was predominant, while that of Waring was absolutely unknown.

Friendly criticism may be justified, however, of those members of the Troy family, who, believing that they were really Warrens and not Warings, substituted in 1862, for the original gravestone erected before 1765, to the memory of Elizabeth Waring, wife of Edmond Waring (and plainly spelled Waring), another stone with the name changed to Warren, with the inscription "copied from the original gravestone in 1862." The original stone was then placed in a corner of the graveyard on the ground, from which obscure spot covered with the mold of years, but still in better preservation than the later stones, it has been recently resurrected and placed at the foot of the grave of Elizabeth Bouton Waring.

At the same date in 1862, the stone then standing at the head of the grave of Edmond Waring, which stone bore the later spelling Warrin, was taken down and placed on the ground in the corner of the cemetery with the stone of his wife, and a new stone erected at the head of his grave bearing the spelling Warren and the same inscription, "copied from the original gravestone in 1862."

The original stone erected by the sons of Edmond and Elizabeth Waring to the memory of their mother, before the settlement of the latter's estate in 1765, is of slate; while that removed from the grave of Edmond Waring in 1862, is of red sandstone, resembling those stones erected about 1793, to the memories of Nathan Waring, Senior and Junior, who are the only other members of the Waring family buried in this original lot with their wives; and, in both of these instances, their names of the third and fourth generation, are spelled Waring. This fact leads to the conclusion that there may have been erected to the memory of Edmond Waring, a companion stone to that of his wife, of slate, which had been destroyed before 1800.



Original Gravestone of Elizabeth Waring

New Gravestone of Elizabeth Waring

Present Grouping of Stones showing Old Stones and New Stones and Memorial Tablet and Pedestal

These Waring gravestones are situated in the burying ground on Rowayton Avenue, in Rowayton, Connecticut, within the bounds of ancient Norwalk, east of the Five Mile River which separates Rowayton from Darien, then in the limits of Stamford.

It was the First Congregational Church of Middlesex (Darien), Connecticut, which was applied for in 1736 and organized in 1744 by the Warings and others, which used this old cemetery on the east, or Norwalk side of Five Mile River, and in it were buried the Reeds, Tuttles and other Waring relatives.

The use of a larger and later cemetery nearby, called the Union Cemetery, resulted in the overgrowth of the old cemetery with trees and bushes until many stones were hidden and unrecognizable.

With the recent clearing away of this overgrowth, many stones were rescued from beneath the earth, and among these the two Waring stones discarded in 1862, were dug up from the six inches of covering ground, and erected at the foot of the Waring graves, while they justly belonged at the head of those graves from which they had been removed.

The previous arrangement of stones at the head by the Troy Warrens in 1862, has not been disturbed, and the four stones remain at the four ends of the two graves, to interest and puzzle those in the future who may not be familiar with the facts.

That there may be no question as to the rightful spelling of the name, and to perpetuate the memories of Edmond and Elizabeth Bouton Waring, their descendant in the seventh generation, Jane Waring has now erected in the center of the graves between the four gravestones, which remain undisturbed, an octagonal stone of two feet in diameter and twenty inches high, established on a deep concrete foundation, and placed horizontally upon this stone, is a bronze tablet two feet in length, with a breadth of one foot, reading as follows:

TO THE MEMORY OF
EDMOND WARING
BORN 1674—DIED AUGUST 5th 1749
AND OF HIS WIFE
ELIZABETH BOUTON
BORN 1681—DIED NOVEMBER 7th 1760

ERECTED 1920 BY THEIR DESCENDANT
JANET WARING OF YONKERS, NEW YORK

The inscription upon the oldest gravestone reads:

Here lyes Ye Body of Mrs Elizabeth Waring
Wife of Mr Edmond
Waring Who Died
Novr 7 1760 in ye
80th Year of her Age

It is a fact of historical and sentimental interest, that the writer was fortunately able to discover among the ruins of the old Waring homestead, near the cemetery, this octagonal block of hard stone, of a dark red color, which forms the column supporting the bronze memorial tablet.

Whether this red stone, weighing nearly a half ton, was imported from England early in the Eighteenth Century, to support the elaborate "sun dial" which was then a necessity, or for what other purpose, is unknown to the writer, but the fact remains that it bore an important part in the house in which the Warings lived, and performs a like part in now perpetuating their memory in permanent form.

THE DEERING OR DERING FAMILY OF BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS, AND SHELTER ISLAND, NEW YORK.

Contributed by Arthur Wentworth Hamilton Eaton, M. A., D. C. L

A family of conspicuous social importance in Boston, Massachusetts, before the Revolutionary War was that of Henry Deering or Dering, a merchant, born in England, who, like the founders of so many colonial families, began life humbly in America, but before his death became notably influential and rich. In later generations, his descendants in the Dering name appear chiefly or only in the State of New York, while descendants in the female lines are found in certain provinces of the Canadian Dominion.

1. Henry[1] Deering or Dering, came to New England some time before April, 1664, for in that month he was licensed to sell "strong waters" in Salisbury, Massachusetts.*(1) From Salisbury he soon went to Hampton, New Hampshire, for, says Dow's History of Hampton, "Goodman Tuck continued to keep the ordinary [at Hampton] till his death, which occurred in the autumn of 1664, when it was found difficult for his family to go on with the business. . . . The house and land were soon after leased to Mr. Henry Deering, of Salisbury. On motion of Mr. John Sanborn, made in town-meeting about a year after Tuck's death, the town admitted Mr. Deering as an inhabitant, and voted their approval of him as a suitable person to keep the ordinary. By request of the town, the Court had several months before licensed Mr. Deering 'to sell wine and strong waters by retaile.' His license was renewed for each of the two following years; but, about six months after the second renewal, he was invited by the selectmen of Portsmouth to keep the ordinary for that town. The Court approved and granted him a license. This seems to indicate that he was held in good repute."(2)

On May 19, 1669, the Massachusetts Colony records inform us, Henry Deering was admitted freeman, and probably about 1676 or 1677 he removed to Boston, in the records of which town we find fourteen mentions of him before 1701. The first of these mentions is of March 10, 1677-8, at which date he was appointed Constable, but refused to serve. For his refusal he was fined ten pounds. On Nov. 11, 1678, he took the oath of allegiance in Boston. In 1679 he was one of a committee chosen to oversee the placing of seats in the meeting-house of the First Church. In 1680, he was a member of Capt. Davis's Military Company, and in 1684, of Capt. Hutchinson's Company. In 1684-5, he was a clerk of the market; in 1692-3 and 1694-5, he was "prizer of grane;" on April 22, 1695, and March 9, 1695-6, he was moderator of the town meeting, and for thirteen years, in all, he was an overseer of the poor.(3) In Boston, inn-keeping was no longer his business; he was a shop-keeper or merchant, and was soon prosperous as such. He was an important member of the First Church, and was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. To this latter conspicuous organization he was admitted in 1682, and besides serving as its clerk in 1683, 1684 and 1691, he was Sergeant in 1685, Ensign in 1693, and Lieutenant in 1696.(4) On the records of the First Church, he appears as having been admitted to communion in 1687. In 1703, the selectmen appointed him master of the engine company, and in March, 1709-10, he was moderator of the town-meeting. Descendants of Mr. Deering say he died Aug. 4, 1717, but a record of deaths in the Boston City Hall, compiled from sexton's records, says he died Nov. 18, 1717.(5) Hutchinson, recording the unusual mortality among old people in 1717, says, that in that year Henry Dering and his wife died, both being buried in one grave.(6)

On June 8, 1664, Henry Deering married the first time, at Salisbury, Mrs. Ann Benning, widow of Ralph Benning, her first husband having died Nov. 14, 1663. By Ralph Benning, Ann had at least one child, a boy, Ralph Benning, Jr., who was born June 24, 1661. The exact date of death of Henry Deering's first wife is not known, but on Nov. 15, 1676, Henry Deering married a second time, Mrs. Elizabeth Atkinson, born Aug. 29, 1646, who was a daughter of Edward Mitchelson, of Cambridge, Mass., Marshal-General of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, by his wife Ruth (Bushnell)(7) Mitchelson, and widow of the second Theodore Atkinson, who died in May, 1676.(8) Henry Deering's dwelling house and probably his shop were on the north corner of Court and Washington Streets, Boston, on the site of the present [1920] "Ames Building;" his son, Henry, Jr., also afterwards living in the same house. In the settlement of his estate, his property is shown to have been very considerable, including a brick house fronting on Queen Street, pasture land in Atkinson's Lane, a dwelling house occupied by Samuel Tyler, innholder, on the westerly side of Merchant's Row, and interest in two rows of warehouses on the easterly side of Merchant's Row, and in a wharf. Administration on his estate was granted his son, Henry, Jr., Dec. 9, 1717. In the agreement of the heirs in the settlement, 3rd (or 4th) of April, 1719, the administrator is called "only son," and Elizabeth Welsteed and Mary "Dering" are called "the two only daughters" of the deceased.(9) Hoyt, in his Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury (Vol. II, p. 756), says that Mr. William Hooke, of Boston, was attorney for Henry Deering, of Boston, merchant, 1687-8.

The native place of Henry Deering was probably Corscombe, near Beaminster, Dorsetshire, England, where lived Thomas Hollis, an early benefactor of Harvard College, of whom Sir Frederick Treves, Bart., in his Highways and Byways in Dorset, speaks as follows: "At Corscombe lived the eccentric patriot Thomas Hollis, who called himself a 'true Whig,' while his friends dubbed him a republican. He lived at Corscombe in absolute seclusion."(10) Between Henry Deering and George Dearing, founder of the well known Deering family of Maine, we know of no relationship, though there may have been some. George Dearing came from Devon, England, and settled at Black Point, Scarborough, Maine. In 1671, his eldest son, Roger, was registered as residing on the west side of the Kennebec, and it is worthy of notice that Henry Deering was at the same time registered there.(11) It is also a fact that on Jan. 15, 1698-9, Henry "Dering," trader, of Boston, for the sum of one pound sterling, took a mortgage deed from Roger Dearing, of the latter's house and land at Kittery.(12)

Children of Henry[1] Deering by his first wife Ann (——) Benning:

2. i. Ann[2] Dering (or Deering), b. May 31, 1667; m. Nathaniel Crynes, of Boston, apothecary; she died of small-pox, Dec. 14, 1686. Her birth is recorded in Hoyt's Old Families, etc., Vol. I, p. 131, and in Dow's History of Hampton, Vol. II, p. 673. Under date of Dec. 14, 1686, Chief Justice Sewall says: "This day Mrs. Crines, Mr. Dering's Daughter, dies of Small Pocks" (Diary, Vol. I, p. 159). On July 12, 1682, Nathaniel Crynes, apothecary, appears as a witness to a deed given by John Satterly and his wife Phoebe to Isaac Waldron, physician, Suffolk Deeds, book 12, p. 383. On Jan. 1, 1685, Crynes assigns all his property to Henry Deering for the benefit of his creditors, of whom Deering was one, Suffolk Deeds, Book 13, pp. 412-13. With others, Crynes was admitted to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1685-6, History of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, Vol. I, pp. 274-5.

Children of Henry[1] Deering by his second wife Elizabeth (Mitchelson) Atkinson:

3. ii. Elizabeth,[2] b. July 18, 1677, where bap. we do not know, but possibly in the First Church. She must have d. soon after.

4. iii. Elizabeth[2] (second), b. Jan. 5, 1679; bap. First Church, Boston, January —, 1679; admitted to communion in the First Church, February 25, 1710-11; m. June 16, 1709, at Boston, Mass., by Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth, as his second wife, to William Welsteed(13) (son of William[1] and Mehitable (Cory) Welsteed, of Charlestown, Mass.), b. Aug. 27, 1666; bap. 30 (2), 1671, at Charlestown, Mass.; d. —— (administration on his estate granted his widow and his son by his first marriage, Rev. William[3] Welsteed at Boston, on Aug. 18, 1729, see Suffolk Probate Records). He was a merchant and also Naval Officer of the Port of Boston. His first wife, whom he married May 24, 1694, and who was bapt. 3 (4), 1677, at Charlestown, Mass., and who d. —— (prior to June 16, 1709, date of his second marriage), was Katherine Long, who was a daughter of John[2] and his second wife Mary (Winslow) Long, of Charlestown, Mass. William[2] Welsteed had by his first wife, Katharine Long, 7 children, amongst whom were Rev. William[3] Welsteed,(14) who was b. ——, 1696; bap. June 26, 1696, in First Church, Boston, graduated at Harvard College in 1716, served as tutor at Harvard for several years beginning 1720, was ordained pastor of the New Brick Church, Boston, March 27, 1728, as successor to Rev. William Waldron, and m. Jan. 16, 1728, at Boston, Mass., by Rev. Joshua Gee, Sarah Hutchinson, sister of Governor Hutchinson. Rev. William[3] Welsteed d. April 29, 1753, at Boston, "in the 57th year of his age and the 26th of his ministry." His colleague in the pastorate of the New Brick Church from Sept. 27, 1738, until Jan. 7, 1753, was Rev. Ellis Gray, who graduated at Harvard College in 1734. William[2] Welsteed by his second wife Elizabeth[2] Deering had one son, Henry[3] Welsteed,(15) b. April 3, 1711, who m. July 24, 1739, Deborah Read, the ceremony being performed by his half-brother, Rev. William[3] Welsteed.

5. iv. Mary,[2] b. May 18, 1682; m. April 28, 1720, at Boston, by Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth, William Wilson, and by him she had a daughter Mary[3] Wilson, b. Sept. 5, 1722.

6. v. Martha,[2] b. May 18, 1682 (twin); d. young.

+7. vi. Henry,[2] b. Oct. 6, 1684.

Henry[1] Deering's children by his second wife, with the exception of the first child (3. Elizabeth,[2] b. Jan. 5, 1679), are all recorded as having been baptized in the First Church, but the dates on the Church register are in some instances incomplete.

7. Henry[2] Deering, only son and youngest child of Henry[1] Deering by his second wife Elizabeth (Mitchelson) Atkinson, was b. in Boston, Oct. 6, 1684, and bap. in the parish of the First Church, Oct. —, 1684. He married, undoubtedly in Portsmouth, N. H., Elizabeth Packer, daughter of Colonel Thomas Packer, M.D., an Englishman (who became Judge of Probate and Councillor in New Hampshire in 1719, and died in 1728) and his wife Elizabeth, widow of Joseph Hall and niece of Major Richard Waldron of Dover.(16) Like his father, Henry[2] Deering was a man of much importance in Boston. In his list of his own acquaintances in Boston, Daniel Henshaw (who removed from Boston to Leicester, Mass., in 1748, and died in Leicester), mentions "Henry Dearing," whom he called "a noted shop-keeper of many Years Standing—a gentleman famous for 'Liberty and Property'—it may be, too much against ye Prerogative."(17) From 1724 to 1726, Deering was a selectman. On May 12, 1726, he and five others, who had been appointed referees in some matter of dispute regarding the improvement of a tomb in Roxbury, rendered a report. On Sept. 13, 1728, the General Court passed an act giving Col. Daniel Henchman, Gillam Phillips, Benjamin Fanneuil, Thomas Hancock and Henry Deering the exclusive right to manufacture paper for ten years.(18) The mill, the first in the country it is said, was at Milton, Mass. On Aug. 30, 1742, Deering was granted liberty by the town to set up posts at his door in Queen Street. In Boston Town Records he is referred to altogether nine times. His will was made Aug. 10, 1748, and proved Oct. 30, 1750, his son Thomas being appointed executor, witnesses being Daniel Greenleaf, Jacob Hurd and Ezekiel Goldthwaite. To his son Henry,[3] "as a token of my regard, that he bears my name," he leaves £25, and over and above that, one-seventh of his estate. To his son Thomas he leaves two-sevenths of his whole estate, and to his daughters, Elizabeth Wentworth, Mary Gooch, Ann Monk and Sarah Deering, one-seventh each. In the distribution, for which warrant was given Feb. 12, 1762, and which was accomplished March 12, 1762, Thomas received a house and land in Queen Street, and Henry a house and land in Church Square, occupied by William Sheaffe, Esq. In the distribution, Ann is described as "Ann Monk, the wife of James Monk of Halifax [Nova Scotia], Esq.," and Sarah as "Sarah Thomas, the wife of Nathaniel Ray Thomas, Esq."

Henry[2] Deering died Oct. 20, 1750(19); how much earlier Mrs. Deering died we have not been able to discover.(20)

Children of Henry[2] and Elizabeth (Packer) Deering:

8. i. Henry,[3] b. Nov. 22, 1713; bap. the same day; d, undoubtedly soon.

+9. ii. Elizabeth,[3] b. Nov. 20, 1715; bap. the same day; m. Samuel Wentworth.

+10. iii. Mary,[3] b. Feb. 7, 1717; bap. Feb. 9, "1717-18;" m. John Gooch.

+11. iv. Thomas,[3] b. May 16, 1720; bap. May 22, 1720; m. Mary Sylvester.

12. v. Henry,[3] 2nd, b. Aug. 30, 1722; bap. Aug. 26, 1723; undoubtedly d. soon.

+13. vi. Ann,[3] b. Oct. 6, 1724(21); bap. soon thereafter; m. James Monk.

14. vii. Mitchelson,[3] b. May 23, 1726; bap. May 29, 1726; undoubtedly d. soon.

16. ix. Abigail,[3] bap. May 24, 1730; undoubtedly d. soon.

+17. x. Sarah,[3] bap. Nov. 26, 1732; m. Nathaniel Ray Thomas.

+18. xi. Henry,[3] 3rd, bap. Jan. 26, 1734-5.

The first seven of these children were baptized in the First Church, the last four were baptized in the New Brick Church, Boston.

9 Elizabeth[3] Deering, eldest daughter of Henry,[2] (Henry[1]) and Elizabeth (Packer) Deering, was b. in Boston, Nov. 20, 1715, and was m. Oct. 17, 1732, by Rev. William Welsteed, to Samuel Wentworth (son of Lieut. Gov, John and Sarah (Hunking) Wentworth), b. at Portsmouth, Jan. 15, 1708; graduated at Harvard College in 1728; one of the "fifty principal merchants of Boston" who petitioned the General Court December 19, 1760. He was a worshipper first at the New Brick Church, then for many years at King's Chapel, of the conspicuous Boston parish of which church he was for some time a warden, and in which church his children born after 1740 were baptized. Samuel Wentworth's will was made Aug. 15, 1766, and was proved Sept. 26, 1766. He died in Boston, Sept. 16, 1766. After the Revolution, Mrs. Wentworth shared the fortunes, in the British Empire, of her youngest son Benning, with whom and with whose family she lived; and her daughters Mary, married to George Brinley, and Frances, Lady Wentworth, married first to her cousin Theodore Atkinson, Jr., and secondly to her cousin John (son of Mark Hunking Wentworth), he being first Governor of New Hampshire, then Governor of Nova Scotia, in the course of which latter Governorship he was created a baronet, Lady Wentworth being made one of the ladies-in-waiting of Queen Charlotte, with permission to live abroad. Mrs. Samuel Wentworth died in London, April 6, 1785, and was buried at Prince James Church, Picadilly. Her nine children and their births are all given in the Wentworth Genealogy, the later histories of those of them who lived to maturity being also carefully outlined there.(22)

10. MARY[3] DEERING, second daughter of Henry[2] and Elizabeth (Packer) Deering, was b. Feb. 7, 1717, and married by Rev. William Welsteed, Oct. 19, 1736, to John Gooch, who was probably a son of James Gooch,(23) a merchant of Boston, who made his will Oct. 31, 1732 (proved June 5, 1738), leaving children: James, the eldest, John, sole executor; Joseph, who died in Milton; Elizabeth Hubbart. On June 10, 1795, Rev. Benjamin Gerrish Gray of Windsor, Nova Scotia, and Mary, his wife, in presence of Nathaniel Thomas and Sarah D. Thomas, signed in Windsor a deed conveying to James Tysdale, of Boston, the Golden Ball tavern in Boston, and land belonging thereto, this property having previously belonged to "Mary Gooch, late of Marshfield, in New England, deceased," of whom Mary Gray, wife of Benjamin Gerrish Gray, was heiress. The deed was signed before Richard Cunningham, Justice of the Peace, William Haliburton, notary and tabellion, certifying that Richard Cunningham was a justice.(24) It is not known that Mrs. John Gooch ever had children.

11. THOMAS[3] "DERING," second son of Henry[2] and Elizabeth (Packer) Deering, was b. May 16, 1720, and until 1760 or thereabouts lived in Boston, his native town. He married at Newport, R. I. (by Rev. Ezra Stiles), March 9, 1756, Mary Sylvester, daughter of Brinley and Mary (Burroughs) Sylvester, of Shelter Island, N. Y., who was born in 1724, and died Aug. 19, 1794.(25) He died Sept. 26, 1785, and was buried in a private burying-ground in the rear of the Shelter Island Presbyterian Church. At their father Henry's death in 1750, Thomas[3] "Dering" and his brother Henry[3] Deering, were the only surviving sons of the family: Thomas,[3] as we have seen, was his father's executor.(26) For a time these two brothers continued their late father's business, but in 1760, Thomas[3] removed permanently to the Sylvester estate on Shelter Island, his wife having inherited the property on the death of her father. In the occupancy of this estate and the mansion house it contained, Mr. Dering henceforth lived the life of a gentleman farmer, owning slaves and carrying on the Sylvester traditions. On May 11, 1765, at Southold, Long Island, he gave a deed "of a dwelling house with a brick front and side, said front fronting easterly and said side front northerly, with the land belonging, situate in Boston," etc., etc., which was part of the estate of Henry Deering, Esq., deceased. In early life, Dec. 31, 1738, he was admitted to communion in the New Brick Church, Boston; and on Shelter Island he was until his death, one of the most important members of the Presbyterian Church. In Boston, in 1753, "he made the general walk or visitation of the town," though he does not appear to have held any other official position. In 1758, he was admitted a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. In Shelter Island he was conspicuous in all public affairs, and his and his family's social pre-eminence were fully recognized. In the Revolution, he was a member of the Provincial Convention of New York, that unanimously adopted the Declaration of Independence. From Sept., 1776 to 1783, while the British were in possession of Long Island, he and his family lived at Middletown, Connecticut. When he returned to Shelter Island, he found that the Royal troops had seriously injured his estate.

Children of Thomas[3] and Mary (Sylvester) Dering:

19. i. Henry Sylvester,[4] b. April 21, 1757; d. Jan. 28, 1758.

20. ii. Sylvester,[4] b. Nov. 27, 1758. He, General Sylvester Dering, m. Dec. 6, 1787, Esther Sarah Havens (daughter of Nicoll Havens) and had sons, Nicholas Havens[5] Dering, born Jan. 1, 1794, and Dr. Michael H. Dering, of Utica, N. Y. Nicholas Havens[5] Dering lived in New York City, at Rome, N. Y., and at Utica, N. Y., dying at the last place Dec. 19, 1867. For General Sylvester[4] Dering, see Necrology of Yale College Graduates for 1813. See also Biographical Sketches of Yale University, Vol. VI, pp. 546-7. Also see the New York State Medical Society's Transactions for 1868, pp. 307-10; and also the New England Hist. Gen. Register, Vol. V, p. 414, and Vol. XXIII, p. 90.

21. iii. Elizabeth,[4] bap. April 27, 1760 (in the New Brick Church, Boston); she must have d. young.

22. iv. Elizabeth,[4] 2nd, b. April 21, 1762; m. Jan. 27, 1784, Dr. Nathaniel Gardiner.

23. v. Henry Packer,[4] b. July 3, 1763; m. Dec. 27, 1793, Anna Fosdick.(27)

13. Ann[3] Deering, third daughter of Henry[2] and Elizabeth (Packer) Deering, was b. Oct. 6, 1724, and was married by Rev. William Welsteed, Jan. 20, 1740, to James Monk,(28) of Boston, probably an Englishman, and probably educated for the law. At what time Monk came to Boston we do not know, but he must have been there some time before 1736, for Sept. 15 of that year a sheriff's writ was issued against him as "merchant" on behalf of Frederick Hamilton, tallow chandler, ordering the attachment of property of Monk's to the value of £30. Judgment had been given against Monk, however, only for the sum of £20.19.8. In pursuance of this order of Court the sheriff attached a handkerchief of Monk's, which was "shown by the defendant to be his estate and delivered the latter a summons at the same time." Later, the amount of the judgment was paid in full. By Boston Deeds we see that, Jan. 31, 1739, Peter Cade, of Boston, merchant, and his wife Elizabeth, gave a deed to Samuel Wentworth and James Monk, "both of Boston, aforesaid, merchants." The Boston Town Records show that in 1740 and 1743, James Monk was a constable, and Drake says that in the latter year he had a warehouse on the Town Dock.(29) On Nov. 5, 1745, execution on the trustees of James Monk, shop-keeper, was ordered, to satisfy several creditors. On Sept. 29, 1746, a similar writ was issued, the trustees in the meantime, however, having been changed. On July 25, 1746, Monk was a creditor to the estate of Benjamin Gerrish, insolvent, to the amount of £500.

In a letter from William Shirley to Sir William Pepperrell, dated Boston, June 22, 1745, Shirley says: "I must recommend to your favour and protection Mr. Monk, Mr. Dering's son-in-law, who carries an Aide du Camp's commission in his pocket."(30) This commission as aide-de-camp to Pepperrell was given Monk June 10, 1745.(31) Whether Monk remained at Louisburg after the siege or not, we do not know; but, as soon as Halifax was founded, he appears in that town. One of the earliest grants there was given him, Nov. 13, 1749.(32) In 1752, he and his fellow-Bostonian, Charles Morris, were appointed judges of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas; but on March 10, 1760, Governor Lawrence informed the Council that a complaint had been made to him by the justices of the Inferior Court against Mr. Monk, one of their number, for neglect of attendance, etc.; that Monk had told him that if he was removed from office he would print the affair, and that a thousand pounds would be subscribed to enable him to appeal to the King in Council. The Council held Monk guilty of high indignity and contempt, and referred to some alleged ill-conduct of his in 1753, and advised his removal from his offices of Judge of the Inferior Court and Justice of the Peace. Whether Monk was removed from his judgeship we do not know; but, in spite of the censure of him by the Council, in July of the same year, he was appointed Solicitor-General of Nova Scotia. In Council, Feb. 27, 1762, was read "a memorial of James Monk, Esq., his Majesty's Solicitor in this Province," which showed that the memorialist had been appointed to this office by the Governor in July, 1760. In his petition, Mr. Monk asked for some compensation for his services as Solicitor General, and the Council were of the opinion that he "had merited some recompense and ought to have it."(33) The office of Solicitor-General, Mr. Monk held until his death, which undoubtedly occurred in 1768.

In June, 1768, James Monk, Jr., of Halifax, was sworn administrator of his father's estate, letters of administration having been granted him on June 13 of that year "on the estate and effects of James Monk, Esq., late of Halifax, deceased (the widow of the said deceased having relinquished her right of administration)." In the Halifax Gazette, in July and August, 1768, the younger James Monk advertises that any persons who have claims against his father, James Monk's estate, shall present them to him. He describes his father as "late of Windsor, Nova Scotia," so we may suppose that in his later years the Solicitor-General lived chiefly at Windsor. At Windsor, he may have died and been buried. In his History of Nova Scotia (Vol. II, pp. 385-6), Beamish Murdoch, in recording the above, says: "Mr. Monk was the father of Sir James Monk, Chief Justice of Canada, and of George Henry Monk, one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. The family were of high origin, their head being the Duke of Albermarle, the restorer of the monarchy. The branch that resided in Nova Scotia were all remarkable for learning and refinement." In the Nova Scotia Council, Sept. 29, 1775, 2,000 acres of land "behind Birch Cove were ordered granted to Charles Monk and Elizabeth Lucy Monk, on petition of their brother, James Monk, the same having been voted in Council in 1766, at the request of James Monk, their father, who sometime after died, having made improvement on the land he owned adjoining."(34)

The children of Ann[3] Deering by her husband, James Monk, were:

24. i. Samuel,[4] bap. June 11, 1742.
25. ii. Anna[4] bap. Aug. 8, 1744.
26. iii. James,[4] bap. April 1, 1746.
27. iv. George Henry,[4] b. ——, about 1748.
28. v. Thomas,[4] bap. Feb. 21, 1749.
29. vi. Charles,[4] bap. Dec. 12, 1753.

and perhaps others. The baptisms recorded above were performed in King's Chapel, Boston, where in 1743-4, James Monk owned pew No. 39 (for which he paid £35). To the present time, the Monk family have been prominent in Canada. James[4] (No. 26) was admitted to the Nova Scotia bar, Sept. 8, 1774, and, like his father, became Solicitor-General there. In 1776, he represented the town of Yarmouth in the legislature, but probably in the same year removed to Montreal, where in time, he rose to be Chief Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench for Montreal. Before his death, but probably after he had resigned the chief justiceship, he was Knighted. He died childless in England, Nov. 18, 1826. George Henry[4] (No. 27) was also admitted to the Nova Scotia Bar, and rose to be a judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. He lived chiefly in Windsor, and for some time represented Hants County in the legislature. He had also a house at Halifax, which is said to have stood opposite the present Halifax Hotel. He married Elizabeth Gould, daughter of John Gould and his wife Elizabeth (Wentworth) Gould, of Boston (who died at Windsor or Halifax). He finally resigned his judgeship and also removed to Montreal, where he died July 15, 1823, and where descendants of him have, until a late date, conspicuously figured in politics. Charles[4] (No. 29) became an officer of H. M.'s regiment of foot; he married in England, a Miss Waddington, daughter of Rev. Joshua Waddington, Vicar of Haworth, Nottinghamshire, and had an only son, James Henry[5] Monk, born early in 1784, who became in 1830 Bishop of Gloucester, and in 1836, of Gloucester and Bristol.(35)

17. Sarah[3] Deering, youngest daughter of Henry[2] and Elizabeth (Packer) Deering, was baptized Nov. 26, 1732, and married

Dec. 3, 1745, to Nathaniel Ray Thomas of Marshfield, Massachusetts, son of John and Mary (Ray) Thomas, of that town. She died at Windsor, Nova Scotia, in 1810, "aged 78." Her husband died at Windsor, Sept. 19, 1787. Nathaniel Ray Thomas, who, as is well known, was chosen one of General Gage's hated Mandamus Councillors, was born at Marshfield, Sept. 4, 1731, and graduated at Harvard in 1751. From his declaration of his losses before Commissioner Jeremy Pemberton, at Halifax, Dec. 21, 1784, we learn that, in the early part of the Revolution, he was active in keeping his Marshfield neighbors loyal to the crown, and that, because of his royalist sympathies, he was obliged to seek the protection of the British troops in Boston. When General Howe evacuated the city, he went to Halifax, and after 1777, to the time of his death, he remained continuously, we believe, in Nova Scotia. His losses in Marshfield and in Boston were heavy; but the Patriot authorities excepted from confiscation a third of his Marshfield estate, apparently from consideration for his wife, who was highly respected at Marshfield, even by those who were deeply incensed at the course her husband took. On this part of the Thomas estate reserved from confiscation, afterwards lived Capt. John Thomas, third son of Nathaniel Ray and Sarah[3] (Deering) Thomas, he being the only member of the family who lived in Massachusetts after the Revolution.

The children of Sarah[3] (Deering) and Nathaniel Ray Thomas were:

30. i. Nathaniel Ray,[4] b. Aug. 5, 1755.
31. ii. Henry Deering,[4] b. Nov. 19, 1760.
32. iii. Sarah Deering,[4] b. Oct. 8, 1762.
33. iv. John,[4] b. Aug. 30, 1764.
34. v. Mary,[4] b. Sept. 17, 1766.
35. vi. Martin Howard,[4] b. Oct. 6, 1768.
36. vii. Elizabeth Packer,[4] b. July 29, 1770.
37. viii. Charles,[4] b. Nov. 12, 1772.

Of these eight children of Nathaniel Ray and Sarah (Deering) Thomas, Henry Deering[4] and Martin Howard[4] must have died young; the other six all appear in adult life in Nova Scotia. Nathaniel Ray,[4] Jr. (No. 30) seems to have inherited his father's farm at Windsor, and lived on it until his death. At Windsor he became custos rotulorum and collector of customs. He married at Windsor, Sarah Hersey Otis De Wolf, born May 14, 1770; died Dec. 17, 1842, daughter of Benjamin and Rachel (Otis) De Wolf. Charles[4] (No. 37), was a Lieutenant in the 7th Fusilliers, commanded by H. R. H. Prince Edward, Duke of Kent, and was a great favorite with the Prince. He was accidentally shot by a brother officer in a roadhouse near Halifax, in Aug., 1797, and was removed to Government House, where he was tenderly nursed by his cousin, Lady Wentworth. He very soon died of his wound and was buried in Halifax. Prince Edward, who was deeply affected by his death, placing a handsome tombstone over his grave.

18. Henry[3] Deering, youngest child of Henry[2] and Elizabeth (Packer) Deering, was baptized Jan. 26, 1734-5, and probably never married. On April 6, 1764, he sold land in Boston, to John Gould, Jr. On Dec. 17, 1764, he sold land to Nathaniel Wheelwright. On June 1, 1765, as "merchant," he sold land "behind the old brick church" to Charles Ward Apthorp of New York, for £761.15.3. On Nov. 18, 1765, "Mr. Henry Deering, merch't," arrived at Boston "in the Benjamin Green, Junr., schooner, Nova Scotia Packett from Halifax."(36) The Massachusetts Gazette says that "Henry Deering, late of Boston, merchant, died in Dec., 1772, on a passage from Jamaica, West Indies."

Reference and Explanatory Notes

Note 1. Hoyt's Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury, Vol. I, p. 131, says: "Henry Dearing [or Deering] . . . was licensed to sell 'strong waters' in Salisbury, April, 1664; but was licensed to keep the 'ordinary' for Hampton [New Hampshire] April, 1665, and was admitted to that town Nov., 1665. About 1667 he removed to Portsmouth, where he was in the same business."

Note 3. Slight mentions of Mr. Deering appear in Judge Sewall's Diary. Under date of Dec. 8, 1690, Sewall says that he dined along with Henry "Derings" at the Royal Exchange, Diary Vol. I, p. 338. Under date of Dec. 24, 1698, he says: "Went to Vaughan and Partridge at Derings as told them I would while in the chamber. Had only a piece of rost Beef, Minct pye and Tarts to Diner," Diary Vol. I, p. 489.

Note 4. History of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, Vol. I, p. 269.

Note 5. This record says that Henry "Deren" and his wife died 18 Nov., 1717.

Note 6. Hutchinson's History of Massachusetts, 3rd Edition, Vol. II, p. 202, says: "The year 1717 was remarkable for a greater mortality among aged people than had at any time been known." Hutchinson mentions as having died in that year, John Hawthorne (at Salem), Andrew Belcher, Wait Winthrop, Elisha and Eliakim Hutchinson, Robert Winsor and Henry Dering and his wife, all over seventy-six years old.

Note 8. See N. E. Hist. and Gen. Register, Vol. V, p. 414.

NOTE 9. Final articles of agreement for the division of Henry Dering, Senior's, estate were signed April 3, 1719. Division of the estate was made March 23, 1720, between William Welsteed and his wife Elizabeth, and William Wilson, of Boston, merchant, and Mary, his wife, "the other daughter of the said Henry Dering," these heirs agreeing that William and Elizabeth Welsteed should hold and enjoy two rows of warehouses on the easterly side of Merchant's Row, with all the lands, wharves, dockways, passages, etc., belonging to them; and that William and Mary Wilson should hold and enjoy the dwelling house and land in the occupation of Samuel Tyler, commonly called and known by the name of the Golden Ball, on the westerly side of Merchant's Row, etc., the Welsteeds to pay the Wilsons £150 in settlement between the two sisters, Suffolk Deeds, Vol. XXXVI, p. 5.

NOTE 10. See Highways and Byways in Dorset, pp. 286-7. Frank P. Heath, also, in his "Dorset," p. 124, says: "Hollis, the benefactor of Harvard College, lived here [Beaminster], and his virtues are enshrined in verse by Crowe in his 'Lewsdon Hill.'" Definite information concerning Henry Deering's native place was given Rev. Jacob E. Mallmann, historian of Shelter Island, by a great-great-granddaughter of Deering, Mrs. Mary S. D. Lawrence ("Historical Papers," p. 55). In a sketch of General Sylvester Dering of Utica, N. Y., printed in American Ancestry, Vol. IV, p. 51, it is said that Henry "Dering" was the son of a Thomas Dering, who received a grant of arms Feb. 13, 1664, Thomas being a son of Nicholas, of Worgicut, Dorsetshire; but this statement needs careful verification.

NOTE 11. See "Genealogical Notes on Some of the Descendants of George Dearing from County Devon, England, and John Whipple from County Essex, England." Henry "Dering," the compiler of these notes, says, "was shortly after of Piscataqua (Portsmouth, N. H.), and also a resident of Boston, Mass."

NOTE 12. See Everett Stackpole's History of Old Kittery and Her Families (1903), pp. 337-348. See also York Deeds, Vol. VIII, p. 45. Savage, Vol. II, p. 41, says: "Another Deering family which I am unable to get account of, was of Braintree and spread to Wrentham." NOTE 16. Col. Thomas Packer married Aug. 7, 1687; his wife died at Greenland, N. H., Aug. 14, 1717, aged 62. Besides their daughter, Elizabeth, the Packers had a son, Thomas, Jr., who was Sheriff of New Hampshire, from 1741 until his death June 22, 1771. Sheriff Packer married (1) Jan. 22, 1728-9, Rebecca Wentworth, daughter of Lieut.-Governor John and Sarah (Hunking) Wentworth, and sister of Samuel Wentworth, of Boston, she dying in Sept., 1738. By this wife Thomas Packer, Jr., had two sons, Thomas, born April 16, 1731, and John, born Oct. 14, 1734. The Sheriff married (2) before 1751, Mrs. Ann (Odiorne) Rindge, who bore him no children. NOTE 20. On Oct. 20, 1720, when Judge Sewall called at Mrs. Winthrop's in pursuance of his project of marrying that lady, "Mrs. Dearing," he tells us, was there.

NOTE 21. The register of the First Church says she was baptized Oct. 4, 1724, which date is of course incorrect.

NOTE 22. An account of Sir John and Lady Wentworth, and mentions of their relatives the Brinleys, Thomases, and Monks in Nova Scotia, after the Revolution will be found in the fourth of Dr. Arthur Wentworth H. Eaton's "Chapters in the History of Halifax," in the Americana Magazine for Dec., 1915; Lady Wentworth's portrait by Copley, as is well known, is owned by the New York Public Library.

NOTE 23. The History of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, Vol. I, p. 389, calls him "James Gooch, Jr., distiller," and says that he was a son of James and Hannah Gooch, and was born in Boston, Oct. 12, 1693, and married Elizabeth Hobbie on Sept. 30, 1715. He was admitted to the Artillery Company in 1714, and was made 3rd Sergeant in 1717, and Ensign in 1733.

NOTE 24. See Massachusetts Suffolk Deeds. Mary Gray, wife of Rev. Benjamin Gerrish Gray, was a daughter of Nathaniel Ray and Sarah (Deering) Thomas, and so a niece of Mrs. Gooch. Rev. Benjamin Gerrish Gray was an Anglican clergyman in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick; his father Joseph Gray and his mother Mary (Gerrish) Gray were both Bostonians living at Halifax, Nova Scotia.

NOTE 25. Rev. Jacob E. Mallman in his Historical Papers on Shelter Island, says that Brinley Sylvester had taken his daughter to Newport to be educated.

NOTE 26. Papers of value in connection with the settlement by Thomas Dering of his father's estate, are to be found in Suffolk Court Records, No. 78, 170. In these, under date of March, 1758, are enumerated various pieces of real estate in Boston that had been owned by Henry[2] Deering, and the appraised value of each piece is given. Samuel Wentworth lived in one of his father-in-law's houses. Thomas Dering is mentioned in the N. E. Hist. Gen. Register, Vol. V, p. 414.

NOTE 27. For the Dering family of Shelter Island, see Rev. Jacob E. Mallmann's Historical Papers on Shelter Island and Its Presbyterian Church, with Genealogical Tables, pp. 55-60, 64, 177-8; Wood's Sketch of Long Island, p. 197; Dwight's Strong Family, Vol. I, pp. 625-6; and the Huntington Family Memoir. The Rev. Mr. Mallmann says that Thomas Dering was converted under Whitefield. It is undoubtedly he who is mentioned in the N. E. Hist. Gen. Reg., Vol. XL, p. 298, as having owned a book plate made by Hurd.

NOTE 28. George Monk, vintner, in Boston, "at the sign of the Blue Anchor," who we believe was an Englishman, long a well known person in the town, may have been a connection of James Monk, Henry Deering's son-in-law, but there is no evidence to show that he was. Apparently, James Monk had a brother Charles, whose wife Elizabeth bore him a son George, who was baptized in King's Chapel, March 13, 1746, and who later, in 1751, appears in Halifax, Nova Scotia, and in 1760 in Philadelphia. There was a James Monk of Boston, "seafaring man," who, March 4, 1737, made recognizance to appear in the court of assize and jail delivery at Barnstable, Mass., in April of the same year. On May 9, 1738, a James Monk deposed concerning James McHard, John Mitchell, etc., etc., see Suffolk Court unprinted records, but we have no idea that he had any connection with Henry Deering's son-in-law. Some facts concerning the Monk family descended from the Deerings will be found in the Wentworth Genealogy, Vol. I, pp. 116, 317, 528.

NOTE 32. Benjamin Green, another Massachusetts man, received a lot there Nov. 11, 1749, which is the earliest grant to a New England man in Halifax we have happened to see.

NOTE 33. See the Council Records under date of Monday, April 9, 1764; these records make further mention of James Monk, calling him "James Monk, Esq., attorney."

Miss E. C. Brewster Jones' notes on the decendants in the female line of Jonathan Brewster, in Book No. 3, Part "A" (N. Y. G. & Biog. He d. in Indianapolis, Ind., and on May 5, 1901, his widow, Mrs. Nannie Deshon, was living at No. 519 East 4th Street, New Albany, Ind. They had a daughter, Mrs. Julia (Deshon) Miller, who lived on Indiana Avenue, Kankakee, Ill. Miss E. C. Brewster Jones was under the impression that this John Deshon of French Lick Springs, Ind., was a son of John[5] Deshon (Henry,[4] Daniel,[3] Daniel[2]); it seems more likely, however, that he may have been a son of the above John[5] Deshon, No. 235. They had a son William Augustus Deshon.

Joseph Chew and Samuel Chew (sons of Thomas and Martha (Tayler) Chew, of Virginia, came to New London before 1750. Joseph Chew was Surveyor of the Port in New London in 1761; he espoused the Loyalist side prior to and at the time of the Revolution, while Samuel Chew adhered to the Colonists. That Joseph Chew was a turbulent character is shown from the following extracts from Hempstead's Diary, viz.: p. 599: "Tuesday, November 28, 1752, Joseph Chew assaulted Captain Richard Durfey on the highway and wounded him with a bone on the head, and bruised his head and tore his shirt, etc.;" p. 658: "Saturday, October 25, 1755, last night, about nine o'clock Joseph Chew and John Miller and Lechmere and others made a very great rout and tumult, firing guns and swearing and cursing and threatening to kill Stephen Potter and others, and was like to have killed Potter." On account of his loyalty to the Royal Cause he was requested to leave New London. This was a period of great disturbance between the Crown and the Colonists on account of taxation, and as Joseph Chew was connected with the New London Customs House, it was more than likely that his outbreaks were due to his political connections.

From Sabine's Loyalists, Vol. II, p. 495, we extract the following.: "Joseph Chew of New London, Conn., was a Commissary in the Royal Service, and in 1777 was taken prisoner by a party of Whigs at Sag Harbor,"—"Joseph Chew, a magistrate of Tryon (now Montgomery) County, N. Y., signed the declaration of Loyalty in 1775. In 1792 he was in Canada, an official under Sir John Johnson and in correspondence with Brant in relation to pending difficulties with the United States." According to the late Miss Alice Chew, of New London (a great-grand-daughter of Samuel Chew, brother of Joseph Chew), Joseph Chew went to Canada to live; which leads one to conclude that the above extracts from Sabine refer to Joseph Chew, of New London.

With the above data we conclude our history of Gilbert[5] Tippett's descendants. Except for a few later items, the family records have been brought down as far only as the latter part of 1918 and the early part of 1919. Though much is missing from both parts of this family history, it is hoped that the facts which have been gathered and have been here published and preserved, will be of much interest and value to all members and friends of the Tibbetts or Tibbitts family.

CORRECTIONS AND ADDITIONS TO PUBLISHED GENEALOGICAL WORKS.

Every gleaner in the field of genealogical research has met with errors in printed volumes which, left uncorrected, carry mistaken conclusions to the end of time. This department has been inaugurated in an endeavor to correct such spurious data. Readers are requested to forward for publication here corrections of every such error, and such further additions to printed genealogies as are found, that due recording of the same may be made. The authority for the statement must be furnished, with name and address of contributor.

81. The following notes are given elaborating certain records found in Austin's Dictionary of Rhode Island, viz.:
   1. Richard[3] Carder (John,[2] Richard[1]), b. ——? m. June —, 1700, Mary Richardson (see Austin's Gen. Dic. of R. I., p. 273), he. d. ——, 1707, about.

Children: 4 (Carder) daughters, viz.:

i. Mary, b. Sept. 29, 1700; bap. Stonington, June 10, 1706, First Church.
ii. Lydia, b. Aug. 2, 1702; bap. Stonington, June 10, 1706, First Church.
iii. Rachel, b. Sept. 4, 1704; bap. Stonington, June 10, 1706, First Church.
iv. Elizabeth, b. ——? bap. ——?

Mary Carder (the mother of these children) owned the covenant First Church, Stonington, June 10, 1706, and on the same day had her first three children baptized there.

From the Probate Records of New London, Court held Dec. 11, 1711, Administration was granted on the estate of Captain Richard Carder, late of New London, deceased, unto Stephen Richardson, of Stonington, Conn. At the Court held March 11, 1711-12, the inventory of the estate of Captain Richard Carder, late of New London, deceased, was exhibited by Mr. Stephen Richardson, administrator; amount of inventory £141-02-11. The ages of the children of the deceased as given at foot of the inventory is as follows:

Mary, aged 10 years.
Lydia, aged 8 years.
Rachel, aged 6 years.
Elizabeth, aged 3 years.

Mrs. Mary (Richardson) Carder, widow of Richard[3] Carder, m. (2) —— Lake.

Mrs. Mary Lake, made oath as to the ages of the above children on Jan. 9, 1710-11. At the Court of Probate, New London, March 12, 1711-12, Stephen Richardson, administrator of the estate of Captain Richard Carver, late of New London, deceased, renders an account of charges, disbursements, etc., amounting to £1-15-3. Whole inventory £198-18-11; remaining for division, £197-3-8. The Court distributed as follows: To relict, Mrs. Mary Lake £45-04-06 and £20-0-0; balance to four daughters, £32-17-3½ apiece. Freeholders appointed to divide. Court July 8, 1712, Stephen Richardson, administrator of the estate of Richard Carder, presented a division to the Court made by the freeholders to relict and four daughters. Court March 13, 1711-12 records receipt from Mary Lake to Stephen Richardson, administrator of the estate of Capt. Richard Carder, for her portion. Court, March 13, 1711-12, Division of estate of Captain Richard Carder, as made by freeholders:

To Mary Carder, daughter of deceased, £35-02-08.
To Lydia Carder, daughter of deceased, £35-02-08.
To Rachel Carder, daughter of deceased, £35-02-08.
To Elizabeth Carder, daughter of deceased, £35-02-08.

The above referred to Stephen Richardson was probably a brother or possibly the father of Mary (Richardson) Carder. The Richardson family was probably of Stonington. The church records of that town show a Stephen Richardson of that town, with children baptized from Stephen, Mary and Amos baptized all on June 19, 1681, down to a Jemima, baptized June 19, 1692. This is probably the family to which Stephen Richardson, the administrator, belonged, and it is apparent that he may have been either the father or the brother of Richard[3] Carder's widow, Mary (Richardson) Carder-Lake.

82. William Ross (see Austin's Gen. Dict. of R. I., p. 168) m. Hannah Hungerford (see deeds). She was a daughter of Thomas and Hannah (Willey) Hungerford. He died 1712.

Children: 3 (Ross) sons, viz.:

i. William, whose record is given correctly in Austin.
ii. John, whose record is given correctly in Austin.
iii. Thomas, b. ——; d. July 21, 1719; m. Sept. 29, 1715, Patience Hempstead (dau. of Joshua[2] and Elizabeth (Larrabee) Hempstead). She m. (2) July 6, 1721, James Hodsell (see Church Records, New London), and d. Aug. 9, 1725. No issue by either husbands.
iv. Ann, whose record is given correctly in Austin.
v. Mary, whose record is given correctly in Austin.

Old Haddam Records, Book 2, p. 184, gives: Jan. 4, 1718, by and of this date John Spencer of Haddam, east side, conveys land to his brother, Isaac Spencer, and warrants against it the claim of sister Hannah Ross, whose maiden name was Hungerford. Book 2, p. 197—April, 1719—Hannah Ross, of the plantation of the Narragansetts in Rhode Island, conveys land in Haddam to John Spencer of Haddam, that did belong to her brother (i. e., half-brother) Peter Blackford, deceased.

83. Caulkins' History of Norwich, Conn., p. 225, states:

"Chapman. Joseph Chapman, probably son of William of New London, adm 1715; died June 10, 1725. His wife Marcy died seven days previous. Eight children are recorded. Two of the sons, Moses and Daniel, are on the list of Separatists in 1748."

The Vital Records of Norwich, Conn. (published form), Vol. I, p. 81, gives as follows:

"[86] The names & age of ye children of Joseph Chapman and Marcey his wife, as followeth:

1. Joseph Chapman, was born ye 5th day of April, Anno 1708.
2. Mary Chapman, was born ye 17th day of Septr, 1709.
3. Moses Chapman was born ye 10th day of Novembr, 1711.
4. Sarah Chapman was born ye 9th day of Janury, 1713-14.
5. Ezekiel Chapman was born ye 3rd day of March, 1715-16.
6. Aaron Chapman was born ye 12 day of July, 1718.
7. Daniell Chapman was born ye 10 day of Janury, 1720-21.
8. Simon Chapman was born ye 22d day of April, 1723.

Joseph Chapman died ye 10th day of June 1725.
Mare Chapman died ye 3rd day of June 1725."

The Joseph Chapman whose death is here recorded as having taken place June 10, 1725, is the Joseph Chapman, the father of the above recorded eight children, and it was from this source of information that Miss Caulkins got her record of his death.

That the Joseph Chapman who died June 10, 1725, was the father of the above eight children and not the son Joseph Chapman who was born April 5, 1708, is rendered evident from the Vital Records of Norwich (printed form), Vol. I, pp. 100-101, wherein is recorded the two marriages of this Joseph Chapman (b. April 5, 1708), first on Feb. 9, 1727, to Mary Taylor, who died Nov. 4, 1727; and second, Oct. 22, 1728, to Elizabeth Ormsby.

The death of the Mare Chapman above recorded as having taken place "3rd day of June 1725," was evidently taken by Miss Caulkins to be the record of death of the wife of Joseph Chapman who died June 10, 1725. Miss Caulkins was in error in her conclusion. The death on the 3rd of June, 1725, was in all liklihood the death of the daughter Mary Chapman, the second of the above named children who was born June 17, 1709, which will be shown to be so from consideration of the following facts.

The Probate Records of New London show as follows:

Court, April 29, 1729: Administration granted to Thomas Carew of Norwich on the estate of Joseph Chapman, late of Norwich, deceased; the widow and eldest son being present and desiring the same.

Court, June 23, 1743: Thomas Carew, administrator estate of Joseph Chapman submits an account of debts, etc., and the Court distributes, as follows:

To the widow 1/3d.

Then follows a statement of what the others get.

This Court proceeding shows that the widow of Joseph Chapman was alive in 1743 and did not, as Miss Caulkins states, die "7 days previous" to the death of her husband.

From the Land Records of Norwich, Vol. 6, p. 11, we gather:

May 23, 1729. "Whereas Mercy, the now widow of William Chapman, was formerly the wife of Joseph Chapman of Norwich, aforesaid, deceased, etc., etc."

It will from the above quoted facts be quite evident that Joseph Chapman, the father of the above mentioned 8 children died June 10, 1725. He was survived by his widow Mercy, who subsequently married a William Chapman some time prior to May 23, 1729; and that William Chapman, her second husband had also died prior to May 23, 1729; she (the widow of Joseph and William Chapman successively) was alive on June 23, 1743, when she was allotted one-third of the estate of her first husband, Joseph Chapman.

When Joseph Chapman died June 10, 1725, none of his children were of age as will be seen by reference to the dates of their respective births. On April 29, 1729, when Thomas Carew was made administrator of the estate of Joseph Chapman, the latter's eldest son, Joseph Chapman, was but 24 days beyond his date of coming of age, and although probably too young to be appointed administrator of his father's estate, he probably desired his interests to be protected, as his mother had married a second time and been a second time widowed. In 1743, the youngest of the children of Joseph Chapman (viz.: Simon) was approaching man's estate and hence the settlement of the estate that year, a legal transaction then fully matured and desirable in order to release the administrator, Thomas Carew.

COL. C. D. PARKHURST,
No. 189 William Street, New London, Conn.

84. A REMARKABLE CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

In both the Lee and Lord family genealogies, as given in the Salisbury Notes, it is insisted upon that Thomas Lord, born in Dec., 1645; married in 1693 to Mary Lee, born Sept. 2, 1671, the daughter of Thomas[2] Lee, and his first wife Sarah Kirtland, and that this Thomas Lord died June 27, 1730.

This insistance is in spite of various and valid objections made by good authorities against any such marriage. Chief among such objections is the fact that Thomas Lee had a second daughter, Mary, born April 23, 1679, who, as will soon appear, married (1) Joseph Beckwith; (2) Capt. Daniel Sterling, and (3) Capt. Riggs. Hence, having such a second daughter, the first Mary, born Sept. 2, 1671, must have died in infancy.

At the time the Salisbury Charts and Notes were gotten out a certain reference book (Hempstead's Diary) was not then generally available and its contents were known to but a very few, and even to them in but a limited degree. Had this book been available, and its contents then known, probably the matter would have been settled then and there. Let us see, therefore, what this Diary has to say on the subject.

On page 684 we find the following:

"Apl. 10, 1757. Sunday. I was out all day, and in the eve at Colonel Stephen Lee's to visit Mrs. Riggs, widow of Captain Riggs, late of Derby. She is my kins-woman, and own sister to Colonel Lee; her first husband was Captain Joseph Beckwith, and her second Deacon Sterling of Lyme. She was the third daughter of my Uncle Lee, who lived and died in Lyme, and was the first of his name there, and came over a child with my grandmother in the first settlement of this country. He had two sisters, one was mother of the family of Hides in Norwich and Lebanon, etc."

The relationship of Joshua[3] Hempstead, the writer of the above, and the Lee family is clear and explicit. Thomas Lee came to America, as a child, with his mother Phebe, whose husband Thomas died with the small-pox on the voyage over. The widow, Phebe (Brown) Lee, married (2) Greenfield Larrabee and had a daughter Elizabeth, who married Joshua[2] Hempstead (Robert[1]), and thus became the mother of Joshua[3] Hempstead, the writer of the Diary. Hence, Elizabeth Larrabee, Joshua[3] Hempstead's mother, and Thomas[2] Lee were half-brother and sister, and of course Thomas[2] Lee was Joshua's half-uncle, and his children all half-cousins to Joshua.

The above extract from the Diary is, therefore, correct in its statement of relationship. It completely disposes of the case of the second Mary Lee, born April 23, 1679, and her three marriages and husbands; and, when we stop to look, it does more than that as we will now see.

For it is stated positively and unequivocally, that this second Mary Lee "was the third daughter of my Uncle Lee," which could only be the fact because of the death of the first daughter Mary, born Sept. 2, 1671.

For Thomas[2] Lee's children were:

John, born Sept. 21, 1670.
Mary, born Sept. 2, 1671.
Thomas, born ——, 1672.
Sarah, born Jan. 14, 1674-5.
Phebe, born Aug. 14, 1677.
Mary, born April 23, 1679, etc., etc., the last two being by the second wife Mary De Wolf.

We therefore see that the second Mary was actually the fourth daughter and it is to be reasonably supposed that, if the first Mary had lived, and had married to Thomas Lord, old Joshua Hempstead would have known about it, and would have had something to say about it, not only as an unusual case, but to give this second Mary her proper place in the list of daughters. But he does not mention the matter at all; and, to make this second Mary be the third daughter, leaves us with the only alternative that the first Mary died in infancy, and had long since passed out of old Joshua's immediate recollection.

It may be remarked that the name Thomas Lord is not indexed as being in the Diary. A few Lord names appear; and it is reasonable to suppose that had a Thomas Lord married one of old Joshua's cousins, and especially had there been two cousins Mary Lee, he would have spoken of it somewhere.

Thomas[2] Lee, the father of these two Marys, left a will dated June 9, 1703, proved Feb. 20, 1704-5. In it he provides for his wife Mary, six sons, and daughters Sarah, Phebe, Mary, Elizabeth, and younger daughters Hannah and Lydia.

It will be noted that Mary is here also the third daughter, all of these daughters being in the order of birth, and nothing said about any "elder," or other, daughter Mary. And, as the woman who married Thomas Lord was alive in 1730, when her husband's will was proved and Inventory submitted, the excuse that she was dead when Thomas[2] Lee made his will will not hold; and, had she been his daughter, she undoubtedly would have been mentioned.

We can, therefore, dismiss the case as undoubtedly a case of mistaken identity, and say with all certainty that Thomas Lord did not marry a Mary Lee, daughter of Thomas[2] Lee.

And we might further end the account right here; but that would leave Thomas Lord's wife "in the air," an absolutely unknown woman; whereas, by a little further examination, we may establish a reasonable supposition as to who she was.

That Thomas Lord had a wife Marah (or Mary) is beyond all doubt. In his will dated Mch. 10, 1719-20, proved Nov. 10, 1730, he provides for a wife Marah, and makes "Wife Marah and son Thomas executors." In the record the name "Mrs. Mary Lord, widow, and executrix made oath to the Inventory Nov. 10, 1730." But in every other case the name appears as Marah.

The Lee and Lay families are more or less confused with each other in the Salisbury Notes. For instance, it is made to appear that John Lay, the younger, born Sept. 21, 1670, was the one to marry Sarah Marvin; whereas there was no John Lay born on that date; but there was a John Lee so born, the first child of Thomas Lee and Sarah Kirtland, who married Feb. 8, 1692, Elizabeth Smith, of Lyme.

Now, the birth records of Lyme show that there was a daughter Marah born March 21, 1678, to John Lay, Jr. This John Lay, Jr. (as then called), was he with a wife Sarah, and he died Nov. 13, 1696, aged 63; and the wife Sarah died June 12, 1702. This was John[2] Lay, the Elder, and, so far as known, no further record of this daughter Marah has ever been found.

The names Marah Lay, and Mary Lee, are so similar as to be all but identical in sound, and, in the old handwriting of the day, could be easily taken one for the other. They belong to the same period, and the two women lived in the same town; they were near each other in age, Mary Lee born Sept. 2, 1671; Marah Lay born Mch. 21, 1678; hence we have in this Marah Lay a perfectly good substitute for the Mary Lee that Thomas Lord did not marry.

There are objections to this supposition, which it is to be understood, is hypothetical entirely. Chief among such objections would be perhaps the relative ages of the two, and the age of Marah Lay at the date given for the marriage, 1693.

Thomas Lord is said to have been born in Dec., 1645; marrying then in 1693, he was 48 years of age at the time of marriage, and was 33 years older than Marah Lay, who was about 15 at the time of the marriage in 1693.

But the case is not bettered much on the supposition that he married Mary Lee, born Sept. 2, 1671. He was still 48 when married in 1693, was about 26 years older than this Mary Lee, who was 22 years of age in 1693.

We all know that inhabitants were few, and women were scarce in the early days of the settlement of the Colonies. The men had to choose from such women as there were, the widows, possible sisters, and the daughters of brother settlers. Hence, there may not have been any one for Thomas Lord to marry until his 48th year, and his choice of a young girl of but 15 years of age may have been the only choice he had. Fully as strange, and perhaps as unusual marriages took place elsewhere in the early Colonial days, and there is nothing in this hypothetical case to render it impossible.

As having a possible bearing on the age of Thomas Lord, and others, and also as to when he married, the tax list under Andros, Aug. 27, 1688 (Register Vol. 34, p. 371 et seq.), may be of interest.

This tax list shows:

"Tho. Lord, 1 person, house, land, Cattle taxed on £26-00-00," showing that, in 1688, he was then a full grown and single man, with quite a lot of property. The tax list shows him to have been single, as he was only taxed for one person.

This same tax list shows:

"John Lay, Senior 2 persons, house, lands, cattle taxed on £120-0-0.

"John Lay, Junior 2 persons, house, lands, cattle taxed on £92-10-00.

showing that Thomas Lord, and these two Lays (father and son) all lived in the same town of Lyme, and that the two Lays were married men.

This tax list of Lyme is of further interest as it shows a total number of but seventy-one families, or adults, taxed in 1688, certainly not a very large sized town.

Taking everything into consideration it would seem as a reasonable supposition that Thomas Lord's wife was Marah[3] Lay, dau. of John[2] Lay, John[1] and his wife Sarah (——).

85. Ludlow-LeRoux Notes

This is a correction of the Note on the Le Roux Family to be found at the bottom of page 151, Vol. L., New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, in the article entitled, "Gabriel[2] Ludlow (1663-1736) and his Descendants."

Pierre or Pieter Le Roux, it is stated in the above referred to article, died in New Rochelle in 1710. It is true that his will was probated in that year and that his wife was named Alida. But "Alida la Roux, widow of New Rochelle," was married at New Rochelle on Aug. 26, 1708, to Frederick Bolelt (Bolt), a Strasburger (see Records of the Protestant Lutheran Congregation in New York, a manuscript in the possession of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society). They resided at New Rochelle (New York).

The census of New Rochelle, taken by Le Roux as constable in 1698, gives Alida's age as 24 (see New York Col. MSS., Vol. 42, p. 59, New York State Library, Albany), and the Census of 1710 (twelve years later) gives the age of "Allida Bolt" as 36. The names of Frederick and Alida Bolt are followed by the names of the Le Roux children (see Documentary History of New York, Vol. 3, p. 571). All of which seems to prove that while the will of Pierre (or Pieter) Le Roux was probated in 1710, yet he, himself must have died prior to Aug. 26, 1708, when his widow married, a second time, to Frederick Bolelt (Bolt).

By JOHN R. TOTTEN.

EDITORIAL NOTE:—The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society solicits as donations to its Library all newly published works on Genealogy, History and Biography, as well as all works on Town, County and State History, or works embodying information regarding the Vital Records of any and all localities. It also solicits the donation to the manuscript collections of its library of any and all manuscript compilations which bear upon the above mentioned topics.

In consideration of such donations the works so presented to the Society will be at once placed upon the shelves of its library and will be reviewed in the next subsequent issue of THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD, each donation of such character, whether in printed or manuscript form, will be reviewed under the head of "Book Notices" and a copy of THE RECORD containing the review will be sent to the donor.

The Society does not solicit donations of publications or manuscripts on topics foreign to the above mentioned subjects, as its library is specialized and cannot accommodate material which does not bear directly upon its recognized sphere of usefulness.

Donations for review in the January issue of THE RECORD should be delivered to the Society before December 1st of the previous year; for the April issue, before March 1st; for the July issue before June 1st; and for the October issue, before September 1st.

All donations will be generously reviewed with a view of calling the attention of the public to their good points; but, while generous, the reviews will contain such proper criticism as the interest of the genealogical student would expect from the editorial staff of THE RECORD.

The "Book Notices" of THE RECORD are carefully read by all librarians as well as genealogical students, and the review of a work in THE RECORD is equivalent to a special advertisement of such work.

Letters of transmittal of donations of such works should embody the price of the work donated and the name and address of the person from whom it can be purchased.

OLD PILGRIM DAYS, by Lillian Hoag Monk, Litt. B. 8vo, cloth, pp. 188, illustrated. Price, $1.75. Address: author, No. 1607 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

This tercentenary volume of historical essays, privately printed, limited edition, is offered for sale, while it lasts, to public and private libraries and historical and ancestral societies interested in Pilgrim history. The volume treats chiefly of Elder Brewster and his time. The real importance of Elder Brewster, "the soul of Plymouth Colony," is being appreciated more and more. The Spirit of New England was born in the old manor-house of Scrooby. "There," says William Eliot Griffis, "the Massachusetts cradle began to rock." The Tercentenary, without special notice of the famous Elder of the Mayflower, would be like the story of the Children of Israel and of the Red Sea without a Moses.

This volume has been prepared under the supervision of the Society, Sons of the Revolution, Los Angeles, Cal.

RECOLLECTIONS OF THE REVOLUTION AND THE EMPIRE, from the French of the "Journal d'une Femme de Cinquante Ans," by La Marquise de la Tour du Pin. Edited and Translated by Walter Geer. Octavo, cloth, pp. 422, with fifteen photogravure illustrations. New York. Brentano, 1920. Price, $5.00, plus postage. Address: Brentano's, 27th Street and 5th Avenue, New York City.

The author of the "Journal of a Woman of Fifty Years," Henriette-Lucie Dillon, was born at Paris, 25 February, 1770, and died at Pisa, Italy, 2 April, 1853. The 21 May, 1787, she married Frédéric-Séraphin, Comte de Gouvernet, who upon the death of his father on the scaffold, 28 April, 1794, took the title of Comte de La Tour du Pin de Gouvernet. Under the Second Restoration he was named a Peer of France and given the title of Marquis. The events of his life from the date of his marriage to the epoch of the Hundred Days are told in the following memoirs of his wife. Other details of his career will be found in the Postscript.

In her "Journal" Madame de La Tour du Pin relates all the notable incidents of the period of her life comprised between her childhood and the end of the month of March, 1815, immediately following the return of Napoleon from Elba. Her history from that time on is closely linked with that of her husband, and will be related in that connection.

Her memoirs were written from time to time, with long interruptions. Commenced on the first day of January, 1820, the last pages of the First Part were not finished, or put in final shape, until about twenty years later. The Second Part was not begun until February, 1843, and at the time of her death ten years later had been completed only to the month of March, 1815.

At her death in 1853, she left the manuscript to her only surviving son, Aymar, who in turn willed it to his nephew, Hadelin, Comte de Liedekerke-Beaufort, who confided it a short time before his death to his son Aymar, by whom the memoirs were published in Paris in 1906. The book met with an immediate and well-deserved success, and in a few years reached the sixteenth edition.

In his Preface, the Comte de Liedekerke-Beaufort says that with the Marquise de La Tour du Pin disappeared one of the last vestiges of the high society of the period before the Revolution, of which the traditions have today completely vanished. The reader of these memoirs cannot fail to appreciate the high qualities of heart and soul and mind shown by the author. Those who knew her, both esteemed and loved her. They united in saying that rarely was greater stability united to greater charms, more constant fidelity to duty to greater kindliness. Endowed with a retentive memory, which recalled in her conversation the varied recollections of so many different periods, Madame de La Tour du Pin interested to the highest degree the thoughtful and serious-minded, as she attracted to her the young, whose tastes she understood and whose faults she excused.

According to the statement of the Editor of the French edition, the recollections brought together in these memoirs by Madame de La Tour du Pin were, in her mind, intended for her only surviving son, Aymar, and were not written originally with the idea of publication. They therefore contain many pages of intimate details of family life, and other matters, which would not be of interest to the general public, and which it has therefore been thought advisable to omit from this edition.

Mr. Geer both in his translation and editing of this most interesting narration of events as set forth in the journal of the life of this gifted woman, has placed within the reach of those not masters of the French tongue a volume of rare interest. The volume is well edited and is Englished in a way that in no way detracts from the charm of the original French version. The volume should be on the shelves of all libraries of general reference, and those that maintain historical or biographical sections.

NAPOLEON THE THIRD. The Romance of an Emperor, by Walter Geer. Octavo, cloth, pp. 348, including name index, and 15 full page photogravure portrait illustrations of unusual merit and a full page genealogical chart of 4 generations of the Bonaparte family. Price, $5.00, plus postage. Address: Brentano's, 5th Avenue and 27th Street, New York City, or any other bookstore.

The raison d'être of this most timely contribution to literature bearing upon the history of France, appearing as it does at a moment when the disasters of the Second Empire are finally compensated for by the defeat and demolishment of the German Empire, is most aptly set forth in the author's foreword which reads as follows:

"Nearly fifty years have elapsed since the death of Napoleon the Third at Chislehurst in January, 1873, and it seems as though the time had now arrived for an unprejudiced story of his career. After the catastrophe of Sedan, there was a violent reaction in France from the Napoleonic idolatry of the Second Empire. Condemnation ran to as great an extreme as worship had gone before. The Napoleonic legend was torn to tatters, and the central figure of its revival was held responsible for all the misfortunes of 'l'année terrible.' From an over-rated hero, Napoleon the Third was transformed into an equally impossible demon. Time has now checked the reaction, and softened the rage of the iconoclasts. The wrong of the Peace of Frankfort has been undone, and the glorious tricolor of the Empire and the Republic once more floats over the 'lost provinces' of Alsace and Lorraine.

While Napoleon the Third possessed but little of the administrative ability, and none of the military genius, of the Great Emperor, he certainly was far from deserving the title of 'Napoleon the Little' bestowed upon him by Victor Hugo. Compared with the leaders of public opinion in other countries during his time, with Cavour in Italy, with Disraeli and Gladstone in England, even with Bismarck in Prussia, he cannot be considered inferior. Time has shown the 'Iron Chancellor' of Germany in his true proportions. The German propaganda is better understood now than it was a few years ago. In his memoirs Bismarck has related cynically, and even vauntingly, the story of the falsified Ems dispatch, which precipitated the Franco-Prussian war, the whole blame for which at the time and for years afterwards, was laid at the door of France.

In the days of disaster which followed, with equal injustice, all the misfortunes of France were attributed to the Imperial régime. The Nation, which had refused to provide for adequate military preparedness, threw the whole blame upon the Emperor. If the French eagles had been borne in triuumph to Berlin, as after Jena in 1806, Napoleon the Third would have been acclaimed by all the world as the worthy successor of Napoleon the Great. Because, prematurely old, and already suffering from a mortal malady, he failed, the world united to decry and belittle him.

But, whatever the final verdict of History may be, upon these controverted points, there can be no doubt as to the fact that Louis Napoleon Bonaparte was one of the dominating personalities of the great Nineteenth Century, and one of the most interesting characters in history. The story of his life reads like the pages of a great historical novel, and may well be called The Romance of an Emperor."

The life of the last of the French Emperors is penned by Mr. Geer in a readable and easy style which will lend an additional attraction to a topic so replete with historic romantic interest. For is there a period of modern history so romantic as that of the Second Empire of France? This brief Imperial episode, crowning as it did the political chaos of France which extended from the downfall of Napoleon First until its establishment; springing as it did from the cabalistic intrigues of those times, lived its destined short career and collapsed with the débacle of 1870.

Yet as Mr. Geer so truly states, the entire blame of France's failure in the Franco-Prussian War should not be placed upon the shoulders of the last of its Emperors.

The whole of France at that time was filled with administrative and commercial corruption which resulted in a condition of utter unpreparedness in the supply departments of the French Army, which may be said to have been one of the primary causes of the French defeat at Sedan. We speak feelingly today of the corruption and profiteering which seem to be the inevitable outcome of the conduct of war. In France however this period of corruption and profiteering pre-dated the war and resulted in an unforeseen lack of preparation which foreordained its defeat. In view of our recent experience with this same foe, we may be justified in believing that such lack of preparation and the condition of corruption was perhaps part of Germany's preparation for her declaration of war.

The volume is well worth a permanent place amongst those which perpetuate our knowledge of those times.

PARSONS FAMILY, Descendants of Cornet Joseph Parsons, Springfield 1636-Northampton 1655, by Henry Parsons, A. M., Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. Vol. II. Octavo, cloth, pp. 692, including 61 pages of 3 column name index and 11 pages of three column place, school and college index and 26 full page illustrations of family interest.

Copyrighted 1920, by the author. Press of Tuttle, Morehouse and Taylor Co., New Haven, Ct. Price, $12.00. Address the author, No. 160 West 45th Street, New York City.

We had the very great pleasure of reviewing the first volume of this work in the April, 1913, RECORD (p. 202). At that time we were not aware of the author's intention to further elaborate an already well done piece of work. Since the publication of Volume I in 1913, extensive correspondence and the attendant accumulation of additional genealogical material has resulted in the genealogical public being benefited by the issuance of this new volume which amplifies the first and brings the work to a most perfect and commendable finish. This second volume is like its predecessor an example of accurate first class standard genealogical work and is presented to the public in the best style of the printer's art. We again congratulate the author on the excellence of his work both as to its genealogical merit and as to the manner of its presentation to what should be a large clientele. The Parsons Family will be a lasting memorial to its compiler. This work both first and second volumes should be on the shelves of all libraries carrying genealogical works.

THE STORY OF THE HUGUENOTS, as contained in two addresses made before the Huguenot Societies of South Carolina and Pennsylvania, by Henry A. Du Pont. Octavo, boards, pp. 62. Copyrighted, 1920. Riverside Press, Cambridge, Mass. Privately printed. Address: Author, Winterthur, Dela.

At this moment when so much proper attention is being paid to the Pilgrim Ter-Centenary, it seems signally opportune that we should have presented to us this little volume in which is set forth in concise form all of the essential facts that led up to the Huguenot immigration to this land, and by which exodus from Europe, this country gained a group of settlers from whom have sprung those who now loom large in upholding the best traditions of our fatherland.

THE ENO FAMILY, New York Branch, compiled by Henry Lane Eno, of Princeton, N. J. Octavo, boards, pp. 35, with colored fac-simile of the Eno Arms, as frontispiece. Address: Compiler, at Princeton, N. J. No price stated.

This condensed volume gives a brief outline of the line of descent of this old Huguenot family in France. It then traces the New York branch of the American family in excellent detail from the immigrant ancestor James Enno, who came to this country in 1648 and settled in Windsor, Ct. Within the space of its limited purpose the work is exhaustive and excellent.

THE BAR OF RYE TOWNSHIP, WESTCHESTER COUNTY, N. Y. An Historical and Biographical Record, 1660-1918, by Arthur Russell Wilcox, of Port Chester, N. Y. Octavo, cloth, pp. 347, with an index of biographies, with 20 portrait and 13 scenic illustrations. Copyrighted, 1918. Knickerbocker Press. Price, $12.00. Limited edition of 250 numbered copies. Address: Author, 34 Adee St., Port Chester, N. Y.

The author, a lawyer, himself the very essence of Rye, by ancestry, birth, residence, association, practice and official station, has put his native town under lasting obligation to him, by this interesting and valuable book.

It contains historical sketches of Westchester County and its Courts and of the Town of Rye. This town, first settled in 1660, included formerly within its area the present town of Harrison and City of White Plains. Therefore, the volume has biographical notes of lawyers who resided or practiced in these places. Besides the historical matter, there are short biographies of 181 lawyers and judges, some of whom attained distinction at the Bar, upon the Bench and in other official positions. The illustrations include portraits of Chief Justice John Jay, who lived for many years and was buried in Rye; Mr. Justice Keogh, and of some of the lawyers who have passed away. There are also views of the several Court Houses of the county and of the historic "Square House," now the Municipal Hall of Rye, formerly the Haviland tavern, where Washington, John Adams and Lafayette stopped. The reproduction of a photograph of the last sitting of the Court of General Sessions in the court room still in use, where for so many years the Supreme Court sat, will revive for members of the Bar interesting memories of the past. An appendix has lists of the County Judges, Surrogates, Justices and other county officers as well as Rye town officers. An attractive volume, well printed on good paper, handsomely bound in cloth. Any library will be fortunate to contain a copy of this fine book.

In Old Pennsylvania Towns, by Anne Hollingsworth Wharton. Octavo, cloth, pp. 352, including excellent name index and 39 full page illustrations, 1920. Press of J. B. Lippincott Co., East Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pa. Price, $5.00. Address: Publishers.

From the days of Oliver Goldsmith to our own time, villages and small towns have held a lure for the poet, romance writer, and chronicler. Some of our American villages, and especially those which are still remote from the broad highway of travel, possess an old-world fascination. This is particularly true of those in Pennsylvania with traditions dating back to early Colonial times. Although some of them have now grown into large and prosperous cities, despite their size, they still retain much of their village charm.

Miss Wharton, whose books on Colonial and historic subjects have had such a wide vogue, here presents in a series of delightful chronicles, the picturesque side of these Pennsylvania villages and towns, their quiet streets, "soft embowered in trees;" their old houses with lovely porticos and modest, yet beautiful, entrances. She intersperses her narrative with sketches and stories of the inhabitants, the social life, the quaint charm of the Moravians and Dunkards, as well as the sparkle of aristocratic circles in such places as Lancaster, Wilkes-Barre, Carlisle, and other towns, where the social life was intimate with that of Philadelphia, New York, and other large cities. We meet in Miss Wharton's pages notable families and personages.

This volume is a valuable addition to the literature of the men, women, manners, customs, and social life of earlier days, and is replete with entertaining information for the traveller.

Recommended to historical and general reference libraries and incidentally to those that maintain biographical sections.

An excellent compilation and well presented to the public in the best style of the printer's art. The work is in the nature of a pedigree volume, and not a continued genealogy of any one family. It will be a valuable addition to any library maintaining a genealogical section.

JOSIAH COLLINS PUMPELLY.

CONTRIBUTED BY HOPPER STRIKER MOTT.

On January 5, 1920, by the death of Josiah Collins Pumpelly, the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society sustained the loss of a most valuable and active member of many years standing, and the writer that of a cherished personal friend and co-laborer in the Society's interests.

Mr. Pumpelly was tall of stature and of distinguished appearance. He was eminently philanthropic and therefore interested in all movements calculated to ameliorate the condition of those less fortunate than himself. Possessed of great power of concentration and endowed with unusual conversational gifts, he was a companion much sought on account of his mental and social qualities. Energetic by nature, he threw himself with great enthusiasm into whatever he undertook and was especially interested in everything that tended to arouse national patriotism and call forth unselfish devotion to the ideals of the Republic. Only for a short period did he practice the profession of the law, and much of his time was occupied in traveling in Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Europe, British America, the West Indies, California and the Southern States. In all these journeyings, and especially while living in Germany, he stored his mind with a knowledge of affairs and of conditions social and historic. Returning to America he settled at Poughkeepsie and afterwards lived in Morristown, N. J. He eventually moved to New York City and there he entered actively into civic, philanthropic and economic matters, particularly those of an altruistic character. His articles to periodicals and newspapers and his addresses before numerous societies evince the grasp of his mind which is further exemplified by the diversity of the subjects of which he was master, a partial list of which included such manifold topics as "Washington," "Fort Stanwix and the Battle of Oriskany," "The Birthplace of Washington and the Grave of His Mother," "Our French Allies in the Revolution," "The Battle of Red Bank," "Mahlon Dickerson, Industrial Pioneer and Old Time Patriot," "Reminiscences of Colonial Days," "Character and Life of John Paul Jones," "The Huguenot Builders of New Jersey," "Industrial Sovereignty and Privilege," "National Ownership," "State Philanthropy and the Claims of Industrial Misfortune," "Women in Egypt," "Philip Freneau, the Huguenot Soldier and Poet of the Revolution," "The Bookseller from the Customer's Standpoint," "Municipal Ownership," "The New Mission of the Modern American Newspaper," "Public Ownership of Public Utilities," "Genealogy from the Standpoint of the Bible," "Historic Claremont," "Civic Art," "Bishop Potter and Socialism," "More Trade Schools for Dependent Children," "The Jumel Mansion; its History and Traditions" and "Civic Pride." One of his last productions was the obituary of Joseph H. Choate, which appeared in the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record of January, 1918. His noted addresses included those on "Joseph Warren," before the New York State Society, Sons of the Revolution; at the laying of the corner stone of the Trenton Battle Monument, and commemorating the Battles of Springfield, of Princeton and of Monmouth respectively—a series conclusively proving the versatility of his mental equipment. He served also as Associate Editor of the American Magazine and The Historical Guide of the City of New York.

In the very active part Mr. Pumpelly took in matters affecting the advancement of patriotic and humanitarian endeavors he became an original founder of the Huguenot Society of America, the State Charities Aid and Prison Reform Association of New Jersey, the Sons of the American Revolution, of which he was for many years President; the Civic Council, a society in New York devoted to the cause of bringing about peace between capital and labor; the Town Improvement Society of Morristown, which did good service for years in the advancement of Sanitary Reform, the George Washington Memorial Association, the Patriotic League, the City Improvement Society, the Manhattan Trade School for Girls, of which he was a member of the Advisory Committee, the Christian Workingman's Institute and the Actor's Church Alliance. In addition he was a member of the Union League Club of New York for forty-nine years, took active part in the affairs of the West End Association and belonged to the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society from 1890 to his decease, lately serving on the Publication Committee.

Born at Owego, N. Y., on August 16, 1839, he was graduated at Rutgers College 1860 with the degrees of A.B. and A.M., and at Columbia College Law School 1863 where he obtained the degree of LL.B. He married (1) on October 19, 1876, at Frankfort, Germany, Margaret Downing (widow of James Winslow), the daughter of J. F. D. Lanier; married (2) on May 20, 1896, at New York City, Mary Amelia Harmer, daughter of Charles G. Harmer and Margaret Hays, his wife. The latter survives him, together with a sister, the widow of Wordsworth Thompson, the artist. A short time prior to his death Mr. and Mrs. Pumpelly removed to Summit, N. J., and there he passed away in the 81st year of his age. The funeral was held at the Broadway Presbyterian Church at 114th Street, of which he was a member, on January 7, 1920, and his remains were interred in the Charles G. Harmer plot at Beechwood Cemetery, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Coming from distinguished ancestry he upheld the traditions of his stirps. His father George James Pumpelly was born at Owego, December 11, 1805, and died there May 9, 1873. He was a graduate of Yale of the Class of 1826, the Litchfield Law School 1828 and was admitted to the bar the following year. A refined and cultivated gentleman of the old school, he was an organizer of the Erie Railroad and Vice-President of the New York State Agricultural Society. He married April 24, 1832, his cousin, Susan Isabella Pumpelly, the daughter of the Honorable Charles Pumpelly, member of the Constitutional Convention 1821 and of the Assembly 1825; George James Pumpelly was the son of Honorable James Pumpelly of Owego, born at Salisbury, Ct., December 20, 1775, died at Owego, October 4, 1845, surveyor, land agent, one of the largest land proprietors in that part of the State, Trustee of Owego Congregational Society 1810, Member of the Assembly 1810, President or the Board of Trustees of Owego, and First President of the Owego Bridge Company. He married April 7, 1805, Mary Pixley, born at Stockbridge, Mass., the widow of Dr. Samuel Tinkham of Owego and daughter of Colonel David Pixley, an officer in the Revolutionary War; Hon. James Pumpelly was the son of John Pumpelly of Danby, N. Y., born 1727, died at Owego, July 11, 1819, pioneer, sergeant in the French and Indian War, stood next to Gen. Wolfe when he was killed and was wounded at the same time, saved the life of General Israel Putnam when he fell in a lake during a skirmish, was member of Rogers' Rangers, Commissary in the Revolution and was a founder of Danby, to which he removed from Salisbury in 1802. He married Hannah, born 1757, died December 31, 1832, daughter of Capt. Samuel Bushnell of Salisbury; John Pumpelly was the son of John Pumpelly, who was probably born in Canada and came to Massachusetts circa 1720-30, the son of Jean Pompilie, whose father was, according to tradition, a Huguenot. The family originally came from Avignon and is of Roman origin. The portrait of John, born 1727, is in the possession of the Albany branch of the family and a fine seal which belonged to Harmon Pumpelly, having on one side H. P. and on the other his crest, a ship on a stormy sea, with the motto "Telle est la Vie," is owned by his grandson, Major Harmon Pumpelly Read.

The late Dr. Melatiah Everett Dwight, Registrar of Pedigrees of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, traced Mr. Pumpelly's pedigree in 1904 and has incorporated therein the above data, rehearsing the services to their country of his ancestors on the paternal side. On the maternal side, he descended through Zeriah Lyman from Thomas Lyman (Leman), temp. Henry VIII, Alfred the Great and Egbert and through the Plantagenet Kings from many of the founders of the Kingdoms of Europe, including Henry I, King of France; also Pietro Orseolo, Doge of Venice, founder of the Cathedral of St. Mark and his son Orseolo II. also Doge, who overcame the pirates of the Adriatic and inaugurated the ceremony of the "Betrothal of the Sea." The arms of the family are recorded and blazoned in the "Archivo Starico Gentilizio" at Milan and also in the "College Heraldique de France," in Paris. Dr. Dwight, in summarizing his researches, used these words: "While several can lay claim to Plantagenet blood, few can claim descent from Richard Neville, the 'Last of the Barons.' "

THOMAS C. BUTLER AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Contributed by Henry Snyder Kissam,
Member of the New York Grnealogical and Biographical Soeiety.

1. Thomas C. Butler, of English descent, came to America from London, Eng., in 1792, and settled in New York City. He at once entered upon a successful mercantile career, with his place of business established on Front Street first, and later on South Street. He built and owned vessels which he operated in the coasting trade, later extending his ventures to sailings for ports in Europe and the Orient. He died suddenly in New York City, Wednesday evening, Dec. 25, 1861, in the 88th year of his age. He left a numerous and widely scattered offspring. His funeral services were held in Trinity Chapel in West 25th Street and his remains were interred in Trinity Cemetery on West 156th Street, New York City.

He was born in London, Eng., May 21, 1774, and was the son of Jonas and Arabella (White) Butler. His parents resided in London until about 1787, when they removed to Deptford, a parliamentary borough and naval port of England in the counties of Kent and Surrey, on the river Thames, at its junction with the Ravensbourne, and contiguous to Greenwich, three miles southeast of London Bridge. It was an extensive naval arsenal, dock yards and location of other naval activities which had been orignally established there by Henry VIII.

Jonas Butler, his father, was a master cooper in H. B. M. service, and had an older brother, Thomas Butler, who resided in Portsmouth, Eng. Jonas Butler was b. in 1738 and d. in Deptford, Eng., Dec. 1, 1817, aged 80 years.

Arabella (White) Butler, the mother of Thomas C. Butler, was b. in 1750 and d. in Deptford, Eng., Dec. 25, 1820, aged 70 years. Her parents came from Thorp Lee, near Egham, Eng., which latter place is a village and parish in the County of Surrey, on the Thames River, three miles east of Windsor, adjacent to the historic battlefield of Runnymede. The parents of Arabella White had three children: Arabella White, who m. Jonas Butler; Martha White, who m. Joshua L. Lomas of England, and had three children, viz: Henry Layton, Elizabeth and Martha; and Elizabeth White, who m. a Mr. Boker of England and d. without issue.

Jonas and Arabella (White) Butler had the following children:—

i. Sarah, b. April 12, 1772; d. London, Eng., Nov. 10, 1830; bur. at Spafields; who m. George Harrison and had three children: Jonas, Joshua and Arabella, of whom the son Jonas Harrison came to America and d. in 1820, at Savannah, Ga., leaving descendants of whom the Rev. Joshua L. Harrison was one.

ii. Thomas, b. May 21, 1774, the progenitor of the branch of the Butler family, the record of which we are recording.

iii. William, b. 1778, who came to New York City and there resided for some time. He followed the sea and became Captain of a vessel, after a voyage or two with Captain William Johnson on one of his brother's (Thomas Butler's) ships. He was lost overboard at sea in a storm off Demarara, British Guiana, South America, on Sept. 22, 1803, in the 25th year of his age, leaving no descendants.

Two years after his arrival in this country Thomas C. Butler married in Augusta, Ga., on April 3, 1794, Margaret Cooper, and shortly after his marriage he added the initial letter C to his name (he having been baptized Thomas Butler) and was thereafter known as Thomas C. Butler. For their honeymoon they went to London, Eng. (sailing in one of her father's ships), and there visited his parents. While in England, Thomas C. Butler and his wife had oil portraits of themselves painted, which portraits are now in the possession of one of their descendants in New York City. In these portraits they both appear in the rich attire of that period. Photogravure reproductions of photographs of these portraits, and also a photogravure reproduction of a half-tone reproduction of a portrait of Thomas C. Butler, owned by the "New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society," which portrait was painted later in his life, appear as illustrations of this article.

Margaret (Cooper) Butler was born in Philadelphia, Pa., April 27, 1776; she d. May 21, 1855, in the 80th year of her age at New York City, after several years of prolonged illness. She was bur. in Trinity Cemetery, N. Y. City. Margaret Cooper was the daughter of Ananias Cooper of Augusta, Ga., by his wife Bridget (Burke) Dwyer—or Dwire—widow of a Mr. Dwyer of Philadelphia. Her parents lived in Philadelphia until after the Revolutionary War, when they removed to Augusta.

Ananias Cooper* was b. in N. Y. City, Aug. 31, 1753, and was bapt. in the First Moravian Church there on Sept. 3, 1753. He was a son of Cornelius Kuyper by his wife Mary Somers. He was b. shortly after the arrival of his parents in New York City. He m. Bridget (Burke) Dwire—or Dwyer—in Philadelphia, Pa., the license for their marriage having been issued on May 22, 1775. He became a successful shipping merchant while residing in Philadelphia prior to the Revolution. During the War for American Independence he met with severe business losses, from which he fully recovered after his removal to Augusta. During the War he served in the Commissary Department of the Army, enlisting from the State of New Jersey; he was among those who endured the great privations of the Army under General Washington in the winter of 1777-8 at Valley Forge, Pa. He d. of yellow fever in Savannah, Ga., Aug. 1, 1803, and his wife d. in Augusta, Ga., Jan. 12, 1813, leaving a surviving family of five daughters, all of whom married and left descendants.

* Much material information has been collected relative to Ananias Cooper and his Antecedents and Descendants; and it is hoped that time may be found to edit this matter and prepare an article therefrom for presentation in the RECORD as supplementary to this article.

Thomas C. Butler is described by those who knew him as being of medium to small stature, slim of build and upright in carriage. He was possessed of a most attractive personality, and was of the highest intellectual attainments; he was of courtly manner and gifted with marked social impulses and grace which endeared him to his family, friends and guests. His home was a most hospitable one to which both he and his wife delighted to welcome their friends to share the bounty of their well served table.

He was commissioned Second Lieutenant in 1806, First Lieutenant, 1807, and Captain in 1810, in the First Regiment of Artillery in the First Brigade of New York State Militia.

When approaching middle life, Thomas C. Butler was overwhelmed with business disaster and was never able to rebuild his fortune. Always guided by deep religious faith, and giving freely and generously from his affluence in the times of his prosperity to the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, in his reverses he found comfort and occupation in labors for fostering a similar faith in others. Early in the eighteen twenties he was made "Agent" for the "New York Protestant Episcopal Tract Society," with a salary allotted to him for his services in this field. He performed similar service for the "New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society," of which body he was elected the first salaried agent, June 13, 1837, and in addition he was elected Treasurer of the organization Oct. 3, 1844. The duties of these offices and other duties on laymen's committees of the Diocese of New York to which he was appointed he continued to perform with devoted enthusiasm, exactness of execution and phenomenal vigor up to the day of his death. We mention here a few of the religious activities which he aided materially by virtue of his business training and personal interest therein: "The Sunday School Union," "The Education and Missionary Society," "The Missionary Committee of the Diocese of New York," and the "Committee on the Education Fund of the Protestant Episcopal Church."

Following his decease there was spread upon the record of societies he served resolutions quoted as follows from "A Century of Achievement; The History of The New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society," and here again set forth, together with a reproduction of a portrait of him owned by the Society, with the consent of Edwin S. Gorham, "Secretary of the New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society": "Upon the evening of Christmas Day, 1861, Mr. Thomas C. Butler, who had been for many years the Treasurer and Agent of this Society, departed this life. He was a man scrupulous and exact in all his dealings. His whole life was given to the service of the Church, and he was known and esteemed far and wide."

"Resolved, That the Protestant Episcopal Tract Society by the recent decease of Thomas C. Butler, Esquire, deplores the loss of a long tried and zealous member of the Church and of the Society, one of its institutions, of which Society he was appointed Treasurer and Agent, and in which position he diligently labored to promote their common interests, to extend their influence, and by the distribution of Tracts not only in this Diocese but in the numerous other Dioceses of the Union to aid feeble Parishes, or those projected and needing supplies, and to furnish to the spiritually destitute generally such nurture and assistance.

"Resolved, That in this bereavement the Board of Trustees recognize the goodness of God in prolonging the life of this benevolent man to nearly four score years and ten, in the possession of his mental and physical faculties, thus enabling him to attend upon the stated ministrations of the Sanctuary, and in the weekly discharge of his official duties with slight interruption until a week previous to his death, which occurred on Christmas evening last, when after this long life of constant action and example, like a sheaf of wheat fully ripe from the harvest, he was gathered to his eternal rest in the blissful hope of everlasting life through the merits of his Savior Jesus Christ.

"Resolved, That in the great length of days vouched to our lamented associate, we are reminded of the interesting fact that his birth was prior to the existence of the American Republic; that born in 1774, his infancy and early youth was passed amidst the stirring scenes which ushered in its acknowledged independence, that his manhood devoted to commercial pursuits witnessed the growing greatness of its metropolis, and although during the closing year of his life the cloud of Civil War was lowered over our beloved country, yet he lived long enough to see with patriotic gaze the Union emerging from the gloom, purified and stronger by the fiery trial; and then lifting his thoughts above the confines of earth, its sorrows and its cares as a wayfaring man turneth aside for a night, he must have beheld with the eye of Christian faith and hope the coming of the bright dawn of the glorious day when the Kingdoms of the world become the Kingdoms of our Lord and His Christ."

Following these resolutions there is also set forth in the same volume the following character sketch of Thomas C. Butler from the pen of the Rev. Dr. Dix.:

"We are indebted to the courtesy of Mr. Morgan Dix for this interesting extract from the Diary of the Rev. Dr. Dix relating to Mr. Butler:

"Sunday, September 26, 1858. The offerings this morning at St. Paul's Chapel were appropriated to the New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society; and the Agent, Mr. Thomas C. Butler was there, as usual, to receive them. Mr. Smith and I walked up with him after service. He is one of the many remarkable men I know. He was 84 years of age the 13th of May last. He walked with as quick and strong a step as either of us young men, and has as good and quick an ear. He never wears an overcoat, and has not, summer or winter, for 20 years. He had known personally every Bishop of New York; stood god-father to a child baptized by Bishop Provoost; had several children baptised by Bishop Moore; entertained Bishop Hobart at his own table; and of course has known all the rest. At the breaking out of the American Revolution* he was in France, and was imprisoned in Rouen with many other Americans. Whenever a collection is to be made in any church for his Society, he is always sure to be there; he is an extraordinarily active old man, walks a great deal, and has very fine health."

Thomas C. Butler at about the time of his marriage resided at 44 William Street. In 1809 he removed to 326 Broadway, corner of Prince Street; thence in 1821 he removed to 213 Duane Street, and thence in 1829 to 37 Vestry Street and finally in 1856 to 136 West 15th Street, as it was then numbered, but which was subsequently renumbered as 216, and there he continued to live up to the day of his death.

It was one of his frequent pleasures, up to shortly before his death, in illustration of the excellence of his eyesight, to write the Lord's Prayer on a circular picee of paper of the diameter of a five cent coin.

Thomas C. Butler and his family were members of Trinity Parish, attending services at St. John's Chapel for many years and until removing to West Fifteenth Street when he attended at Trinity Chapel.

She was highly cultured, of formal manner, energetic, keen of wit, vivacious and kindly, a sincere Christian, and throughout life a welcome guest in many homes.

No trace of him subsequent to this year has been found, except the record of his place and date of his death, which place of death suggests that he may have joined his eldest brother, Thomas Cooper Butler, who had removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, about 1840.

July 16, 1811, in N. Y. City; d. April 26, 1885, in N. Y. City and was bur. in his plot in Woodlawn Cemetery. He was a son of Benjamin Kissam, M.D., of N. Y. City, by his wife, Mary Atkinson. Dr. James Brooks Kissam prepared under his father for the practice of medicine, and received his state license upon coming of age shortly after his father's death. He immediately commenced the general practice of medicine and continued in practice until 1870, when after nearly forty years of devoted service, marked ability and successful labors he retired. His earlier years were full of hardship, as he carried the burden of support of his mother and her seven younger children. For the first twenty years of his practice he resided in various houses between West Houston and Duane Streets, from one to three blocks either side of West Broadway. In 1853 he moved to West 12th Street, just off 6th Avenue; and in 1869 and 1870 he resided in West 28th Street, just off 6th Avenue. For the rest of his life he lived at 145 W. 48th Street. His patients and life long friends were as largely among the very poor as among the well to do families of descendants of the well known Dutch and English Colonial settlers of New York. Studious by habit, reflective by nature, deliberate by character and extremely methodical by disposition,—heredity had bountifully endowed him with traits fitting for the career he had chosen to follow, and from which his father was cut off while still in the prime of life. Dr. Kissam was distinguished for his dignified bearing, unbending uprightness and conscientious firmness. As a physician he was sagacious in diagnosis, skilled in treatment, deeply sympathetic, kindly and of great gentleness. He won the full confidence and deep affection of his patients, and was as often the family counsellor as he was the family physician. He was a good citizen, giving liberally of his time and means to worthy causes; full of charity, closely attached to his church, prudent and economical in his business affairs and of the highest integrity in handling the affairs of others. His wife was energetically active in charitable enterprises throughout her life and was closely connected with many long established societies for improving the welfare of individuals and peoples. Mr. and Mrs. Kissam were first members of Christ P. E. Church in New York and later of the P. E. Church of the Ascension, 5th Avenue and 11th Street, and for the last twenty-five years of their lives were members of the Reformed Episcopal Church at Madison Avenue and 55th Street, of which the Rev. Wm. T. Sabine was rector.

Eli Wainwright Butler received his early business training in his father's office at 143 Maiden Lane. In 1838 he established himself as a drug merchant. About 1853 he was associated with his brother, Frederick Mortimer Butler in the manufacture of trusses and shortly thereafter removed to London, Eng. He achieved a local notoriety as "the Celebrated Blue Man," his skin having taken on a permanent bluish tinge owing to a poisoning from mercury salts absorbed during the period of time that he was engaged in the drug trade. He capitalized his misfortune by entering himself as an exhibit at clinics. Such proceedings scandalized some of his better situated connections to the extent that one among them persuaded him to abandon his unpleasant notoriety in New York City and remove himself to London, Eng., where he was provided for and where he continued to reside until his death.

Mr. Stetson began the practice of law in New York City in 1870, and when about 30 years of age he was appointed as Assistant Corporation Counsel under William C. Whitney, who was then Corporation Counsel of the City. He later resigned that office to become a member of the law firm of Bangs and Stetson, of which firm Francis M. Bangs, the senior partner, was one of the best known and respected lawyers of his time.

Mr. Stetson became the intimate personal friend and legal counsel of the late J. P. Morgan, and the present firm of Stetson, Jennings and Russell, the successor of the firm of Bangs and Stetson, is one of the most noted law firms in New York City and one of those of the highest standing in the whole country.

Early in his career Mr. Stetson became prominent as a trial lawyer. From 1895, however, he devoted his entire attention to corporation law, and was not often seen in court. Much of the important railroad litigation in this country in his day was conducted either directly or indirectly by Mr. Stetson. He was the organizer of the United States Steel Corporation and acted as its general counsel from its very inception. He was also general counsel for the Northern Pacific Railway Company, for the International Mercantile Marine Company, for the Erie Railroad, the United States Rubber Company, the Southern Railway Company and for many other of the great corporations.

He was counsel for Samuel J. Tilden in the famous Tilden-Hayes contest for the Presidency of the United States before the Supreme Court; and he had been Mr. Tilden's Secretary during his term as Governor of the State of New York. He was a personal friend and political adherent of Grover Cleveland, before the latter became President, and after Mr. Cleveland's retirement from his first term as President he became a member of Mr. Stetson's law firm until his re-election as President of the United States.

Mr. Stetson was Senior Warden of the Church of the Incarnation of New York City and had been a delegate to every Protestant Episcopal Convention for many years. He had served as Prseident of the New York State Bar Association and of the Bar Association of the City of New York. He was also at one time President of the Alumni Association of the School of Law of Columbia University and had also served as President of the Alpha Delta Phi Club of New York City. He was a member of many clubs, amongs others the Metropolitan, Century, University, Grolier, Church and India House. He was a member of the New England Society, President of the Stetson Kindred of America, member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Geographical Society and many other similar associations.

He was never much of an after-dinner speaker, and he could not be classed as an orator. He spoke in public only when he had prepared himself and then every word he uttered carried with it positive conviction.

Mr. Stetson was a descendant of Robert Stetson, Cornet of Troopers, who settled at Scituate, Mass., in 1634. He married in 1873 at Rahway, N. J., Elizabeth Ruff, who died April 16, 1917. He adopted in 1917 after she was of age, Margery H. Lee, who had been secretary to his wife. She is a daughter of Alfred Lee of Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa., and a grand-daughter of Bishop Lee, the Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Delaware. He is survived by his adopted daughter, who is now Mrs. Elbridge L. Adams of 1155 Park Avenue, N. Y. City.

Hon. Richard Herbert Smith, Justice of the City Court of New York, was born in 1858 at St. James, Long Island, N. Y., in the home on the farm where more than 250 years ago his ancestor Richard ("Bull") Smith founded the American branch of the family. He died at his city residence, 470 West 146th Street, New York, January 26, 1920, in his 62nd year and was interred in the family cemetery at St. James, L. I.

Funeral services were held at St. Luke's Church, New York City; a Masonic service was conducted by Franklin Lodge of which Justice Smith was a member.

He was educated at Middlebury College and later graduated from the law school of Columbia University, LL.B., 1879.

He was an Assistant Corporation Counsel, 1879-1889, under Messrs. Whitney and Lacombe and was elected to the N. Y. Assembly an Independent Democrat in 1905. He was nominated in 1909 for the City Court Bench, as an Independent Democrat, was endorsed by the Republican party and the Civic Alliance and elected by a large plurality over the opposing nominee. He was re-elected, running as an independent Democrat, in November, 1919, by one of the largest votes ever cast for a candidate to the City Court Bench.

Justice Smith was a member of the Bar Association of the City of New York and of the New York Lawyers' Association.

He was a Mason, having taken the 32nd degree in the Scottish Rite of the Order. He was a man of engaging personality, possessing a host of friends; admired for his sturdy courage and political independence and respected for the success with which he disentangled and upheld the obscured elements of justice and saw that fair play was secured in the cases coming before his court.

He married in 1912 in New York City, Beatrice Biddle, daughter of the late Nicholas Biddle of New York, a widely known newspaper man. He is survived by his wife and two adopted children.

He was an Annual Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, to which he was elected January 27, 1914.

John F. Collins, Deputy County Clerk of Montgomery County, N. Y., was born in Fonda, N. Y., July 9, 1865. He was the only child of Michael and Catherine Collins of Fonda. He died at his residence in Fonda, February 12, 1920.

He received his early education in the village school and when quite young secured a clerkship in the County Clerk's office. Later he entered a law office in Amsterdam, N. Y., and after four years passed the examination and was admitted to the State Bar.

For over thirty years he had been Deputy County Clerk of Montgomery County, retained in office by succeeding County Clerks of different parties, because of his eminent fitness and great usefulness in the public's interests. His duties gave him familiarity with the County's oldest records, which he was compelled to study; and subsequently he gained further knowledge of these matters by reading local, state and national history. He thus became a great reader and an ardent student of his county's history, particularly of that portion of it located in the Mohawk Valley; and probably was at the time of his death possessed of more historical knowledge relating to the affairs of his County, its principal men and affairs which have affected its history, than any other individual. His memory of the historical traditions and facts which he had imbibed, and his pleasure in relating such memories to others, were both equally and charmingly characteristic of him.

He gathered what is perhaps one of the broadest, best and most valuable libraries and collection of letters, signatures, prints and documents, bearing upon Tryon County and Montgomery County history, which has ever existed in private hands in New York State.

He was a member of the Tryon County Society of Bibliophiles, the Montgomery County Historical Society and of the Montgomery County Bar Association.

He married Manilla B. Wilson of Amsterdam, N. Y., who alone survives him.

Mr. Collins was a Corresponding Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, to which he was appointed December 20, 1917.

CHARLES KING MORRISON.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOHN R. TOTTEN.

Charles King Morrison, the son of George Austin and Lucy Anne (King) Morrison of New York City, was born at No. 10 East 54th Street, New York City, on June 24, 1867. He died suddenly, of angina pectoris, at his late residence No. 789 West End Avenue, New York City, on October 18, 1920.

His father, George Austin Morrison,* Senior, was a son of Alexander and Christian (Lyall) Morrison,* and was born November 30, 1832, at "Mondynes" Parish of Fordoun, Kincardinshire, Scotland. The ancestral home of the "Morrisons" was on the Island of Lewes in the Western Hebrides of Scotland, where the families of the Morrisons have flourished since the earliest times. The Clan Morrison also forms a small sept of the great Highland clan of the MacDonalds of Glengarry, and in despite of their limited number still preserve a distinct clan tartan and coat of arms. George Austin Morrison, Senior, died February 26, 1916.

His mother, Lucy Anne King was a daughter of Eseck Clarke and Sarah Coe (McCullen) King. She was born December 17, 1844, at New Lebanon, Columbia Co., N. Y.

The marriage of his parents was blessed by the birth of but two children: George Austin Morrison,† Jr., and his brother Charles King Morrison, the subject of this sketch. George Austin Morrison, Jr., died November 30, 1916, leaving no children and thus with the death of Charles King Morrison who likewise left no children, the Morrison name in this branch of the family becomes extinct.

Full genealogical information relative to the antecedents of the parents of Charles King Morrison may be found in the following volumes:—Clement King of Marshfield, Mass., and his Descendants; The De Camp Family of New Jersey; The King Heraldry; The Clarke Families of Rhode Island; and The King Family in England —all of which works were compiled by George Austin Morrison, Jr., the deceased brother of Charles King Morrison.

Charles King Morrison received his early education at the Cutler School in New York City and at the hands of private tutors. He matriculated at Harvard College in 1887 and graduated therefrom A.B., in 1891. That same year he entered Columbia University Law School and received the degree of LL.B. therefrom in 1894.

He was admitted to the Bar of the State of New York, and thereupon entered the law offices of Davies, Stone and Auerbach, being associated with that firm in the Elevated Railroad Department of its activities as an assistant trial counsel for five years.

In 1899 he entered into partnership with his brother, George Austin Morrison, Jr. (since deceased), for the general practice of law, under the firm name of Morrison and Morrison, with offices at No. 43 Cedar Street, New York City. In 1907, owing to diversified interests, this firm was by mutual consent dissolved.

After a prolonged trip around the world, Mr. Morrison in 1913 entered into association for the practice of law with Eliot Norton, son of the late Professor Charles Eliot Norton of Harvard University, with offices at No. 2 Rector Street, N. Y. City.

Mr. Morrison was married on June 5, 1916 to Mildred Hortsen Hoag, daughter of the late Dr. William E. and Adeleine (Knowlton) Hoag. No children blessed this union; his widow survives him.

He was a member of the Metropolitan and Harvard Clubs of New York City; of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution and of the Society of the War of 1812; of the Veteran Corps of Artillery of the State of New York; of the Society of the Cincinnati of the State of Rhode Island and the Providence Plantations; of the St. Nicholas and of the St. Andrew's Societies of the State of New York.

He was elected a member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society on June 4, 1917, and was much interested in its activities. His father, George Austin Morrison, Sr., and his brother, George Austin Morrison, Jr., were both before him members of the Society, the latter having been for many years one of the most energetic of the Society's officials and much occupied in advancing its interests.

In the short space of time from February 16, 1916, to October 18, 1920, our Society has been called upon to mourn the loss, as members, of the father and both of his sons, all of whom were so closely associated with its history and progress. The name of Morrison is forcefully and honorably inscribed in the archives of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.

TOMPKINS COUNTY GRAVESTONE INSCRIPTIONS.

CONTRIBUTED BY MRS. DORA POPE WORDEN,
Corresponding Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.

INTRODUCTION

The compiling of the following records, which for the most part were gathered in the summer months during the past five years, has been for me a most pleasant and interesting task. Accompanied by some friend, I drove leisurely through this beautiful region. Many were the interesting and curious tales concerning the early settlers of the County which were related to us. Would that space was here permitted to perpetuate these tales!

Here I would like to express my gratitude to those without whose help these records could not have been secured, viz:—my husband, Mrs. Della Bishop and Mrs. Cora Knettles. Together we have visited 75 cemeteries and copied about 5,000 inscriptions. In most instances we secured only those records which were made prior to 1850; but in some cases where the cemetery was small, the inscriptions from all of the gravestones were copied. The inscriptions in every case, were copied exactly as they appeared on the stones. In copying these inscriptions I was more or less particular about copying them in the regular order of their sequential location; but as I was assisted at different times by different individuals, it is possible that this rule was not always followed.

The importance of this work, which is obvious to a genealogist, was greatly impressed upon me, when only recently I learned that two of the smaller family burying grounds here recorded had been ploughed up within the year. The gathering of such early death statistics, which can be found in no place other than the cemeteries, is a work which should be taken up in each and every county, where the work has not already been done; and such records, which are now so precious, and which will in time become more so, be preserved for the benefit of posterity.

The key map, which appears in this number of the RECORD, gives the location of the graveyards in the southern towns of the county, which are numbered as follows:—

TOWN OF CAROLINE. 1, Dutch Reformed. 2, Roe. 3, Yates. 4, Slaterville. 5, Caroline Centre. 6, Blair. 7, Speedsville. 8, Hollister. 9, Brookton. 10, Morris Chapel. 11, Grove or Tobeytown. 12, Central Chapel. 13, Lane (White Chapel).

TOWN OF ENFIELD. 34, Rolfe. 35, Enfield Village. 36, Christian Church. 37, Gibbs. 38, Enfield Falls.

TOWN OF ITHACA. 44, East Lawn. 45, Mitchell. 46, Kings. 47, South Hill. 48, Inlet Valley or Fisher's. 49, Pleasant Grove or Kline. 50, Ithaca City. 51, Davis.

TOWN OF NEWFIELD. 52, Trumbull's Corners. 53, Newfield. 54, Woodland. 55, Cutter. 56, Estabrook. 57, Sebring. 58, Knettles.

HENRY BENEDICT DAVENPORT.

Contributed by Henry Snyder Kissam.

Henry Benedict Davenport was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., June 1, 1854, the eldest son of Amzi Benedict and Jane Joralemon (Dimon) Davenport. He died suddenly in Brooklyn, of a vascular trouble, February 16th, 1920. He was a descendant in the eighth generation of Rev. John Davenport, one of the founders and the first minister of the New Haven colony, whose ancestry has been traced back to Ormus de Davenport, born in Chester, England in 1086. From the Rev. John, the line of male descent goes through five Johns to William (of New Canaan, Conn.), who married Abigail Benedict of Norwalk—the paternal grandparents of the subject of this sketch.

Mr. Davenport's father came to Brooklyn in 1836, and was first a teacher there and then engaged in real estate business. As his second wife he married Jane Joralemon, the daughter of John Dimon, of East Hampton, Long Island, and Brooklyn, a builder who constructed many of the fine residences still in use on Brooklyn Heights and who was a founder of the Nassau National Bank of Brooklyn. His consort was Margaret, daughter of Judge Teunis Joralemon, a scion of the New Jersey branch of that family, owner of a farm on Brooklyn Heights and a leading citizen and office holder of the village. Amzi Benedict and Jane (Joralemon) Davenport had nine children, of whom five in addition to Henry Benedict, survived childhood. They are: James Pierpont, lawyer and sometime Judge of the Municipal Court, New York City; William Edwards, founder and headworker of the Italian Settlement, Brooklyn; Mary Vere, who married Charles H. Crandall; Charles Benedict, director of the departments of the Carnegie Institution at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island; and Frances Gardiner, of the department of Historical Research, Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Mr. Davenport was educated at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. Disappointed in not receiving parental approval of his desire to enter the Military Academy at West Point, he served for one year (1873-1874) as machinist in the U. S. Navy. Thereafter he engaged in the real estate business until in 1882 when he was admitted to the New York Bar. He practiced continuously in Brooklyn, largely in office work, consultation, probate proceedings, care of estates and trusts and real estate law.

In 1906 he founded the Home Title Insurance Company of New York and was its president until his death. He had also been an organizer of the former Flatbush Trust Company, and the principal founder of the Flatbush Savings Bank. He was a member of the University Club of Brooklyn, the Knickerbocker Field Club, a trustee of the Italian Settlement Society, a member of the finance and advisory committees of the Brooklyn Home for Consumptives, a member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society and a number of literary, historical and scientific societies.

His avocation, like his father's, was collecting historical and genealogical data, antiquities and autographs. He prepared a reprint of Strong's History of Flatbush, with an original index and additional illustrations from his own collection. Like his father, again, he was fond of nature and the open country. He purchased a country place on Ponas Road, New Canaan, Conn., and there, at "Valley View," on or near the farm that has been in part held in the family continuously for six generations, he spent his spare time during the summer, and exercised his constructive faculty in laying out gardens and roads and paths through his rolling fields and dense woods.

Mr. Davenport had personal traits of a kind that won affectionate devotion. His prevailing mood was cheerful, optimistic, buoyant; and his humor was quiet, spontaneous and contagious. He saw needs and opportunities in fiduciary fields and his associates came to regard his judgment as unerring. Like his great-grandfather Joralemon, he held and freely expressed pronounced views on politics, men and movements. He was democratic and accessible to all, and he shared his time and money with friends and organizations for welfare and relief. His greatest pleasure seemed to be in doing things for others, whether aiding them in ways of thrift or lending them his counsel.

Mr. Davenport married at Cleveland, Ohio, on June 6th, 1877, Flora Dupee Lufkin, daughter of Amos D. and Clarissa Dwight (Lamb) Lufkin of that city. Their children are Maurice (who married Estella Cowen and with their daughter resides in Cleveland) and Henry Joralemon (who married Louise Morgan Strong and with their son, resides in Brooklyn).

Mr. Davenport was an Annual Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society since his election on June 26, 1918.

THE OLD NEWBY BIBLE.

Introducing hitherto unpublished notes on the following named New York Immigrants: Newby, Atkinson, Stanwix, Waddell, Darling, Idington, McGrabie, Slee, Brown, Gillespie and Breakey,—together with original data concerning the co-related Moulthrop, Stewart, Mitchell, Everhard and Maltby Families.

CONTRIBUTED BY NELSON OSGOOD RHOADES,
Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.
Author and Editor of Colonial Families United States of America.

The bible is a large, well-preserved, leather-bound volume, quarto edition, printed by Matthew Carey of Philadelphia, in 1810, and inscribed:

"Presented to Father and Mother by Christopher, 1813."

The "Father and Mother" were Robert Newby, b. England, 1755; d. in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 30 Nov., 1842, ae. 87, and Isabella Atkinson, his wife, b. England, 30 March, 1755; d. Kenoza Lake (Pike's Pond), N. Y., 3 Jan., 1830. "Christopher," the donor, was their son, b. England, 7 Jan., 1791; d. 22 April, 1815, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The book is now in possesion of their descendant, Wirt Newby Moulthrop (Isabella Eliza Newby (William-Robert); Gideon Moulthrop (Nathan-Jude-Joseph-John-Matthew-Matthew, of New Haven, 1638)), of Kenoza Lake, N. Y.

A log of the Newby immigration from the land of his ancestors and settlement in the New World is recorded on the inside cover of the bible, written in the clear, well-formed hand of Robert Newby, with a care and exactitude indicating his purpose of laying a foundation for permanent family record:

"Left England, from the County of Westmoreland and Township of Preston "Rich," 21st April, 1797."

"Sailed from Liverpool, 10th May, 1797."

"Arrived at Philadelphia, 18th July, 1797."
"Sailed for New York, 27th August, 1797."
"Sailed for Poughkeepsie, 4th April, 1803."
"Settled at Windsor, Broome County, New York, 24th April, 1817."

The subsequent vital records of the family until 1835, seven years before his death, are written in the same hand, apparently guided by the same purpose and care.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was the first family haven in the New World, and Old Christ Church the shelter of their faith. Christ Church has been one of the most worthy spiritual and historical institutions of that region of New York since 1766. Its records have been preserved in the historical annals of the country by Helen Wilkinson Reynolds, through her volume of its records, published in 1911, by the wardens and vestrymen of that church. Rarely have books of this class attained the literary merit and embraced the historical values of Miss Reynold's work. Another volume, soon to be issued under her editorial direction, will give to the public the recorded vital statistics of the Church from its establishment and will be one of the most valuable contributions of recent times to the genealogical and family history of New York.

Although an active man, Robert Newby was but a temporary sojourner in Poughkeepsie and his name is not recorded as that of a really active one in church matters. But Christ Church, so small in its beginnings, so hard-pressed in its early life, ever persistent in its purpose and strong in its faith, has now become one of the strongest, spiritually and materially, of New York. Situated on ample and elevated grounds the main church edifice is imposing and inviting.

Amongst the few remaining marks of the old burial grounds, on the present site of the church, are two well-preserved memorial stones, laid flat at the ground surface on the terrace beside the main pavement approaching the church. They are inscribed:

Robert Newby	Sarah Newby
b. October 2, 1755.	Wife of John Stanwix
Native of England.	(Native of England;
d. November 30, 1842.	d. Dec. 4, 1837, ae. 68.)
ae. 87.	b. March 30, 1780.
	d. July 17, 1866.

The New World pilgrimage of Robert Newby had ended. Forty-five years of pioneer treking, during which he had married off one son and four daughters; had buried Christopher, his son, to whom we are indebted for this bible; had laid Isabella Atkinson, his wife, to rest in the old Moulthrop cemetery, nestled between the homes of her children and grandchildren, under the long twilight shadows of the hills surrounding beautiful Kenoza Lake; and had completed the circle, bringing him to the old starting-point—the shadows of old Christ Church, which now mantle his last resting place, while the edifice stands in silent watch over his remains and its congregation preserves the stone tablet memorial of his existence.

He raised a large family, all useful citizens, who left many descendants. The vital records contained in the bible are as follows, to wit:

These vital statistics, coupled with the public records and the gravestone inscriptions found in the cemeteries of Kenoza Lake and Bethel, Sullivan County, to which his written story leads us, form the elements of a most interesting genealogical study, touching life threads which have been woven into the vital fabric of a very stable community of New York, and which has long since been sending pioneers to the newer American frontiers. The genealogy of these intermarried families is subjoined to this article, and frequent reference is made to it in this text. In it are found the immigrant ancestral lines of many widely-scattered American families.

The first move of Robert Newby was from Poughkeepsie to Windsor, Broome County, on the Susquehanna River, in 1817. Windsor was a comparatively new community, formed in 1807. Prior to 1800 access from the Hudson River to this district was by the "Mine Road," built by Hollanders, in 1664, from a point on the Hudson where Esopus is now located, thence southwestward, finally extending to the Delaware River. Later the "Hunter Road" was opened, skirting what is now the northern line of Sullivan County, and the "Parker Road," leading toward the present central portion of it. In about 1800, the "Newburgh-Cochecton Turnpike" was constructed, connecting the Hudson and the Delaware (now well paved and one of the most beautiful drives in the United States). Pike's Pond, now Kenoza Lake, was one of its villages.

The English Lines.

Robert Newby and his family landed in New York in 1797, remaining there until 1803, when they removed to Poughkeepsie. In the meantime Nathan Moulthrop had married in 1802, Agnes Newby.

Nathan Moulthrop was descended from Matthew, one of the founders of New Haven in 1638. Nathan's father, Jude, settled in Vermont after service in the Revolution. Nathan was a sea captain, plying between American and European ports. He was taken captive by the British during the War of 1812, while engaged in an effort to run the blockade from the port of Copenhagen, and held prisoner in England. Probably Agnes, his wife, lived with the Newbys during his enforced absences, finally in Broome County. His visits to Broome County carried him through the Kenoza Lake region and there, when he retired from seafaring, in 1827, he established his home and raised his large family. He died possessed of Kenoza Lake and much property surrounding it, all of which was distributed amongst his heirs, and still remains in possession of his descendants.

Isabella Newby, daughter of Robert, m. Samuel Slee, of Poughkeepsie. The Slees, like the Newbys and Moulthrops, came from England. They were prominent in the community life of Poughkeepsie, where descendants of the family still reside. Christopher Slee, son of Samuel Slee and Isabella Newby, m. Jane Moulthrop, a descendant of Nathan, and a double tie was formed between the Newby and Moulthrop lines.

The Stewart Family, of English origin also, came from Middletown, Ct., in 1789, and settled near Beaver Kill. In about 1831, Margaret Stewart, dau. of Thomas and Nancy, m. Robert Moulthrop, adding another English line to the Newby-Moulthrop-Slee lines, already established in numbers in Kenoza Lake and vicinity.

The Quaker colonies of Chester County, Pa., were now swarming, and Hiram Maltby, who, with his brothers, Harmon and Aden, had settled in the Bethel region, m. Mary Ann Stewart, sister of Margaret (Stewart) Moulthrop. Their descendants still reside there.

Early in the seventeenth century, County Armagh, Ireland, received a heavy immigration from Scotland. These residents, who immigrated for political and religious reasons, have since been known as Scotch-Irish. They are yet very numerous in County Armagh and many of their descendants have immigrated to the United States. Sullivan County was blessed with a few of them whose descendants still remain, maintaining an unbroken record for industry, patriotism and adherence to high moral and religious ideals.

Notable amongst them were William Brown and his wife, Ann Gillespie, and the four brothers, Alexander, Samuel, George and John Brown. Samuel Brown, their descendant, m. Agnes Moulthrop, dau. of Nathan. The Browns settled in the vicinity of Bethel, where they remain.

The Breakey Family has been closely allied with the Browns. Isaiah, the original ancestor, caused his gravestone to be inscribed: "He was a descendant of French Huguenots, born in Ireland."

Scotch Lines

William Waddell, of Scotland, m. Elizabeth Idington, and, with his sister, Agnes, who had m. Robert McGrabie, and his son Walter, who m. Christina Darling, were early settlers at Bethel. William Waddell, descended from them, m. Martha Stewart, sister of Margaret, who m. Robert Moulthrop.

Robert Newby was possessed of a well balanced character. Without ostentation he lived his life and left upon his family the impress of his well ordered existence: qualities which were transmitted, in turn, to their descendants.

All these families have intermarried and rarely a descendant of either is found in the present generation who does not count each of these family names amongst his ancestors; yet but two marriages of first cousins have been found of record in the past five generations.

If Sullivan County offered herself as a melting pot for the blending of foreign bloods, Providence has been beneficent in supplying them with neutral strains, the product of which is found possessed of the highest ideals of morality, religion and patriotism. They are home-makers and family growers. Blessed with an innate modesty which has possessed their souls with fear of the limelight, their achievements and, to some extent, the history of their very existence, have been kept from print; but the orderly record of Robert Newby's family has revealed them.

LATIMER GENEALOGY—EDITORIAL STATEMENT.

Owing to regrettable forgetfulness occasioned by stress of editorial work thrown on the subscriber by the temporary disability of the official editor of this publication, the article on the Latimer family in the form in which it appeared in the January, 1921, issue of the RECORD, was published as the work of Col. C. D. Parkhurst. The article as submitted to us for publication (at my request) was not in the form as published. The original article was editorially revised by me about a year ago and submitted to Col. Parkhurst for approval. He refused to approve the article as revised and objected to the use of his name as its author in form as published. The correspondence on the subject terminated last Spring (1920). In preparing the matter for the January, 1921, RECORD, this article was found there laid out for publication and in the crowded condition of Society work at the end of the year the objection of Col. Parkhurst to the use of his name as the author of this article in its published form was inexcusably forgotten and the article was published over his name. We fully sympathize with Col. Parkhurst in his objection to the use of his name and hasten to express our regret that such error should have occurred; and at the same time we desire to state that we assume all responsibility for the authorship of the article as it appeared, feeling confident that such portions as were contributed by Col. Parkhurst are above criticism, and hoping that such portion as were added by us may prove of some value.

BOOK REVIEWS.

By JOHN R. TOTTEN.

EDITORIAL NOTE:—The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society solicits as donations to its Library all newly published works on Genealogy, History and Biography, as well as all works on Town, County and State History, or works embodying information regarding the Vital Records of any and all localities. It also solicits the donation to the manuscript collections of its library of any and all manuscript compilations which bear upon the above mentioned topics.

In consideration of such donations the works so presented to the Society will be at once placed upon the shelves of its library and will be reviewed in the next subsequent issue of THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD, each donation of such character, whether in printed or manuscript form, will be reviewed under the head of "Book Notices" and a copy of THE RECORD containing the review will be sent to the donor.

The Society does not solicit donations of publications or manuscripts on topics foreign to the above mentioned subjects, as its library is specialized and cannot accommodate material which does not bear directly upon its recognized sphere of usefulness.

Donations for review in the January issue of THE RECORD should be delivered to the Society before December 1st of the previous year; for the April issue, before March 1st; for the July issue before June 1st; and for the October issue, before September 1st.

All donations will be generously reviewed with a view of calling the attention of the public to their good points; but, while generous, the reviews will contain such proper criticism as the interest of the genealogical student would expect from the editorial staff of THE RECORD.

The "Book Notices" of THE RECORD are carefully read by all librarians as well as genealogical students, and the review of a work in THE RECORD is equivalent to a special advertisement of such work.

Letters of transmittal of donations of such works should embody the price of the work donated and the name and address of the person from whom it can be purchased.

VALENTINE'S MANUAL OF OLD NEW YORK, No. 5, New Series, 1921. Edited by Henry Collins Brown. Published by Valentine's Manual, Inc., No. 15 East 40th Street, N. Y. City. Octavo, cloth, pp. 271, including name index and index of plates, profusely illustrated in color and black and white. Price, cloth, $7.50; half morocco, $15.00; full morocco, $25.00.

It is pleasing to see strong evidence of life and vigor in this valuable series of publications, which holds out promise that its life may continue into the distant future. The remarkable collection of reproductions of rare lithographs, old prints, engravings and photographs contained in this number (96 plates in color and 4 large colored folding supplements) have never been excelled for beauty and interest in any previous number. Recommended to all general reference and historical libraries and to the libraries of those interested in old New York City.

SONS OF LIBERTY, a story of the Life and Times of Paul Revere, by Walter A. Dyer. Octavo, cloth, pp. 436, illustrated. Henry Holt & Co., Publishers, 19 West 44th Street, N. Y. City. Price, $1.75.

This volume is a novel based upon American history, and is in Mr. Dyer's best style. While not of genealogical value, it takes one back to the times of the Revolution and refreshes one's mind in a pleasing manner as to the stirring events of that period in and about Boston.

GEORGE ROWLAND HOWE, 1847-1917, A Son's Tribute. The record of a useful life and some genealogical notes, by Herbert Barber Howe, P. O. Box 554, Mount Kisco, N. Y. Octavo, cloth, pp. 160, with frontispiece portrait of George Rowland Howe.

A complete biographical record of a representative man of his day. The work gives valuable genealogical information concerning seven generations of the How-Howe family, and also notes concerning the Moffat-Little family of Little Britain, Orange Co., N. Y., the Barber-Jenkins family of Nantucket, Mass., and of Hudson, Columbia Co., N. Y., and the Barber-Eno family of Homer, Cortland Co., N. Y.

A Munsey-Hopkins Genealogy, Being the Ancestry of Andrew Chauncey Munsey and Mary Jane Merritt Hopkins, the Parents of Frank A. Munsey and his brother and sisters, by D. O. S. Lowell, A.M., M.D., Litt.D. Octavo, cloth, 1920, pp. 216, including name index and enriched by an elaborate ancestral chart. Privately printed, not on public sale. Address: Frank Andrew Munsey, No. 280 Broadway, N. Y. City.

This excellent volume was compiled for Mr. Munsey by Mr. Lowell, the Head Master of Roxbury Latin School. It is rendered further valuable by a preface by Mr. Munsey himself, wherein he sets forth the raison d'etre (from his viewpoint) of the volume. The work is essentially a pedigree volume showing the various blood lines merging in the veins of Mr. Munsey. It is, however, of general genealogical interest on account of the original material contained therein. Recommended to all genealogical libraries.

Lists of Swiss Emigrants in the Eighteenth Century to the American Colonies, Vol. I. Zurich, 1734-1744, from the Archives of Switzerland, by Albert Bernhardt Faust, A.B., Ph.D. Royal octavo, cloth, pp. 122, including name index; illustrated with several fac-simile reproductions from the original records. Published by the National Genealogical Society, No. 905 Massachusetts Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C. Price, $6.00. Address: publisher.

A most valuable contribution to standard genealogical literature. We are pleased to learn that this issue is to be followed by a second volume of similar import, as culled from the archives at Berne. This volume bears the same relation to Switzerland that Hotten's Lists of Emigrants bears to England. Recommended to all genealogical libraries.

The Erskine Family of Bristol, Maine, by Frank Ernest Woodward of Wellesley Hills, Mass., 1920. Octavo, paper, pp. 31, not indexed. Edition of only 60 copies for sale. Price, $2.00. Address: author.

This excellently constructed genealogical essay is a record of Alexander Erskine, the immigrant ancestor, of Maine, and his descendants to the fourth generation. To this has been added a sketch of Ninon Erskine (brother of Alexander) and his descendants to the third generation. Well done, recommended to all genealogical libraries.

Poetic Productions of My Old Age, by James T. Huffmaster, of No. 2420 Avenue L, Galveston, Tex. Octavo, paper, pp. 55, with frontispiece portrait of author. No price stated.

The theme of these verses is the recording of family genealogical data and while pleasing in its manner of presentation is lacking in that exact information which goes to make up accurate genealogy.

A Family History in Letters and Documents, 1667-1837, Concerning the Forefathers of Winthrop Sargent Gilman and his wife Abia Swift Lippincott. Edited with notes by their daughter, Mrs. Charles P. Noyes. Volumes I and II, pp. 692, with name index, with 21 illustrations of family interest. Privately printed, 1919. Address: Mrs. Charles P. Noyes, No. 89 Virginia Avenue, St. Paul, Minn.

As Mrs. Noyes informs us, this most interesting and valuable collection of family letters, running from 1734 to 1839, was published entirely for the edification of the descendants of her father, Winthrop Sargent Gilman of New York. As the editor of the Mississippi Valley Historical Review so aptly states, this work is more than a history of the Gilman Family, it throws an intimate side light upon the political affairs, the religious movements and the financial problems that were encountered during the 170 years that are covered by the work. There is no attempt to give extended genealogical data concerning the Gilman family in general, but incidentally the genealogy of the family has been enriched by the publication. Such works are of great sentimental as well as practical value to the succeeding generations of families that are so fortunate as to secure and perpetuate by publication epistolary chronicles of such value. To the editor we desire to express our admiring sense of appreciation of her sound and correct estimate of the value of such a series of family letters that she has thus given by publication to her family and the public.

THE RECORDS OF CHRIST CHURCH, POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Vol. II Parish Register, 1766-1916. Edited by Helen Wilkinson Reynolds, Corresponding Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. Royal octavo, pp. 399. Privately printed, limited edition of 58 copies, not on public sale. For particulars address compiler, No. 34 Hooker Avenue, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., who has charge of the distribution of the edition for the parish.

Volume I of this work was published in 1911, and we took pleasure in reviewing it in the April, 1911, issue of this publication. This first volume, which dealt entirely with the history of this parish, was a work reflecting the greatest credit on the author, Miss Reynolds; and we were most emphatic in our praise of the statistical and literary merit of the work; and then urged upon the parish to render even more complete such an excellent effort by giving to the public a second volume in which should be embodied the vital records of the parish. This has now been accomplished in Volume II, which we have before us; and moreover has been well done—and, in the name of the genealogical public we tender our thanks to the governing body of the parish for the production of a standard publication which will be of great benefit to the present and future generations. To the compiler we tender our congratulations upon the commendable completion of a work which will perpetuate her name in connection with that of Christ Church parish into the vague and indefinite future.

We note with considerable surprise and equal regret that the edition of this second volume is limited to 58 copies. Such limitation to the issue of such a valuable book of reference we deem a serious error, which, if the type is as yet not distributed, should be at once remedied by an enlargement of the edition. We assume that the edition of the first volume exceeded 58 copies; and it would certainly seem that those who subscribed to the first volume of the work should have a chance to secure the second and completing volume of the set. We feel confident that the libraries of this country would absorb without delay an edition of 150 copies and thus give access to people all over the United States to the information contained therein.

The action of the wardens and vestry of Christ Church, evidently supported by the broad minded attitude of the Rector, Alexander Griswold Cummins, A.M., Litt.D.,—in thus publishing the vital records of their parish—is so at variance with the stand taken by the majority of Protestant Episcopal Church bodies and their incumbent rectors, that we cannot forbear to commend the action of Christ Church and by implication condemn the strange inactivity of other important Episcopal parishes in not having long ago performed a similar service for the benefit of their past and present members and their descendants. There exists in the minds of a majority of the governing bodies of Episcopal churches a mistaken, and we may also perhaps say absurd, idea that the vital records of their churches are private family matters in which the general public has no right nor interest. Such attitude when maintained—as is too often the case—is sure to reap the unfavorable criticism of those broad and proper minded commentators who, with reason, regard such vital records as part and a parcel of the essentially public records of each such community, and which, wherever opportunity presents itself, should be made the most important feature of the published records of each parish. We may confidently say, with all due deference and respect to the narrative history of a parish, that the parishioners of the past and present have been and are the parish itself, and that the vital facts concerning them and theirs when made part of the published history of the parish will do more to create interest in the parish itself than any mere narrative history can ever do. However regretful the fact may be, people away from a locality take very little interest in the narrative history of its local church bodies. But, if these histories contain the vital records of such churches, then out of interest in the individuals therein mentioned the general public is induced to take an interest in the church history, in order to inform themselves as to the general life of the church body to which their forbears belonged.

The State of New York is so barren of published vital records that we cannot restrain our enthusiasm when sporadic evidence of life in this direction springs into existence for our encouragement. Christ Church, Poughkeepsie, has set an excellent example which we pray may be followed soon and often.

We suggest promptness on the part of the leading genealogical libraries of this country to secure this volume which will soon be non-obtainable.

THE DEVON CARYS, by Fairfax Harrison, Belvoir, Fauquier County, Va. Octavo, cloth, 2 vols., pp. 715, with 42 full page illustrations of family interest, including 9 pedigree charts illustrative of the text. Copyrighted 1920. Privately printed by the De Vinne Press, New York.

This notable work is dedicated "To Captain Lionel Cary, R.N., of Tor Abbey, in appreciation of two centuries of courtesy by his house to their Virginia Kinsmen." Chapter XXI (pp. 564-669, inc.) is devoted to an exhaustive narrative sketch of Miles Cary (1623-1667), the emigrant to Virginia, who was the progenitor of the Virginia Cary family. The rest of the work consists of the English history of the family, which thus forms a background for the more modern annals of the American branch.

The volumes are essentially the English chronicles of this noted Norman family "whose outstanding quality is Celtic," as is shown by consistent loyalty to lost causes. The pedigree charts which appear are essentially only illustrative of the text, and while accurate as to facts set forth, yet are but sketchy and in no way detailed or exhaustive. The genealogical information is subordinate and incidental, but none the less of great value.

Mr. Harrison's contribution to family history literature is evidently a labor of love, and at the same time a most valuable and masterly literary essay giving every evidence of historical and biographical accuracy. The Virginia family of Cary are certainly to be congratulated upon the appearance of this word picture of the English background of their family history. Recommended to all genealogical and biographical libraries.

RECOLLECTIONS OF THE REVOLUTION AND EMPIRE, from the French of the "Journal d'une Femme de Cinquante Ans," by La Marquise de la Tour du Pin, edited and translated by Walter Geer.

In our review of this most interesting work in the January, 1921, issue of this publication, on account of erroneous information given to us by the publisher's clerk, we quoted the price of the volume incorrectly. The price of the volume is $6.00.

COLONIAL FAMILIES OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Vol. VII. Edited by Nelson Osgood Rhoades. Royal octavo, pp. 612, including exhaustive name index and also pedigree indexes of the preceding 6 volumes. Edited by Nelson Osgood Rhoades, 1208 Merchants National Bank Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal. 1920. Price, $15.00. Address Editor.

By the untimely death of George Norbury Mackenzie on February 11, 1919, the ever growing group of genealogical students and writers sustained the loss of one of its most eminent and capable members. At his death there was a reasonable fear that the excellent work that he had originated and carried on in the "Colonial Families" series would then and there terminate. We are much gratified, however, that this fear was groundless and the work that Mr. Mackenzie began is now taken up and is to be carried on by the present Editor. We are informed that Volumes VIII, IX and X of this valuable series are now in course of preparation and will be issued as soon as editorial work thereon is completed.

A personal friendship with, and a recognition of the vigor, mental qualifications and business acumen of the present Editor, Nelson Osgood Rhoades, convinces us that the continuation of this monumental work of Mackenzie could not have fallen into better hands, and that the future history of this work will in no way fall behind its past development.

LEVI PARSONS MORTON.

Contributed by John R. Totten.

The Hon. Levi Parsons Morton, a Life Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, died at his home "Ellerslie," Rhinebeck, N. Y., May 16, 1920, on his 96th birthday. He was born at Shoreham, Vt., May 16, 1824.

Within the limits of available space it is not possible to adequately sketch the life of this distinguished man. In the successive periods of his career, Mr. Morton stood out so prominently from amongst his peers,—first in the mercantile and financial affairs of his country and of England; later in the legislative branch of the United States government; followed by distinguished service in the Diplomatic Corps of his country; and successfully crowning a more than full public life by his dignified and acceptable service as Vice-President of the United States:—that in an article of this character we may simply dwell chronologically upon the order of the salient episodes that went to make up the now closed volume of his life.

Primarily it is gratifying to note in these days of unrest that Mr. Morton was by birth and remote ancestry of unquestioned Pilgrim and Colonial American lineage.

He was the son of the Rev. Daniel Oliver Morton by his wife, Lucretia Parsons. On his father's side he was a direct descendant of the immigrant ancestors George and Juliana (Carpenter) Morton, of York, Eng., and Leyden, Holland. George Morton was the financial agent of the Mayflower Pilgrims, and came over to this country on the ship Ann, arriving at Plymouth, Mass., in 1623. His son, John Morton, who m. Lettice ——?, settled in Middleboro, Mass., and was the first delegate to represent Middleboro to the General Court at Plymouth; his descendants have resided in Plymouth up to the present time. His son, John Morton m. (as his second wife) Mary Ring. His son, Ebenezer Morton m. Mercy Foster. His son, Ebenezer Foster m. Mrs. Sarah Cobb. His son, Livy Morton m. Hannah Dailey. His son, Daniel Oliver Morton m. Lucretia Parsons and had amongst other children Levi Parsons

Morton, the subject of this sketch. By the marriage of John Morton (of the 3rd generation) with Mary Ring, the blood of Stephen Hopkins, the Mayflower Pilgrim, was mingled with the Morton strain.

On his mother's side he was descended from Cornet Joseph Parsons, the immigrant ancestor, by his wife Mary Bliss. This Joseph Parsons came over to this country about 1630 and was associated with William Pynchon, witnessing on July 15, 1636, the deed of lands at Springfield, Mass., from the Indians to Pynchon and others. He was of Springfield, Mass., in 1645, and on November 26, 1646, he married Mary Bliss, daughter of Thomas and Margaret (Lawrence) Bliss of Hartford, Conn.; he removed later to Northampton, Mass., where on May 1, 1655, was born his son, Ebenezer, said to have been the first white child born in that town. In 1679 he returned to Springfield, Mass., where he spent the remainder of his days. His son, Joseph Parsons m. Elizabeth Strong; his son, Ebenezer Parsons m. Mercy Stebbins; his son, Benjamin Parsons m. Rebecca Sheldon; his son, Justin Parsons m. Electa Frairy, and their daughter Lucretia Parsons m. Daniel Oliver Morton.

Mr. Morton married first on October 15, 1856, at Flatlands, Long Island, N. Y., (ceremony performed by the Rev. Charles Brickett Haddock, D.D.) Lucy Young Kimball, born July 22, 1836, who died July 11, 1871. She was a daughter of Elijah Huntington Kimball (born Oct. 19, 1801, at Sharon, Vt.; died ——, 1882; married May 10, 1830), and his second wife, Sarah Wetmore Hinsdale (born June 1, 1805, at Middletown, Ct.; d. ——, 1876, at Washington, D. C.) By this his first marriage Mr. Morton had no children. The first Mrs. Morton was also of Mayflower stock, having been a direct descendant of Elder William Brewster, and by this descent through successive generations allied by blood to the best American Colonial families in Connecticut. Mr. Morton married a second time Feb. 12, 1873, Anna Livingston Read Street, born May 18, 1846, who died August 14, 1918. She was a daughter of William Ingraham Street, by his wife Sarah Kearney. She was a granddaughter of Gen. Randall S. Street by his wife Cornelia Billings. Cornelia Billings was a daughter of Maj. Andrew Billings, a distinguished officer of the Revolutionary War, whose wife was Cornelia Livingston a daughter of James and Judith (Newcomb) Livingston. This James Livingston was a son of Gilbert and Cornelia (Beekman) Livingston, and a grandson of Robert Livingston (1654-1728), first lord of the Manor of Livingston, member of the New York Colonial Assembly 1711, 1716-1725, and Speaker of this Assembly in 1718; and whose wife was Alida, widow of the Rev. Nicholas Van Rensselaer and the daughter of Capt. Philip Pietersen Schuyler.

William Ingraham Street, the father of Mr. Morton's second wife, was descended from the Rev. Nicholas Street (son of Nicholas Street, Jr., gentleman, and his wife Susannah Gilbert of Bridgewater, Eng.), who was baptized at Bridgewater, Eng., Jan. 29, 1603; graduated at Oxford University, 1624-5; of Taunton, Mass., in 1637, and of New Haven, Ct., in 1656. His line of descent passing through the Rev. Samuel Street, Harvard College 1664, who was for 42 years Pastor of the Church at Wallingford, Ct. Susan Kearney, the mother of Mr. Morton's second wife, was also descended from Robert Livingston, the first lord of the Manor of Livingston.

By his second marriage Mr. Morton had the following children:

1. Edith Livingston, b. June 20, 1874, at Newport, R. I., who m. William Corcoran Eustis, and resides in Washington, D. C.
2. Lena Kearney, b. May 20, 1875, at Newport, R. I.; d. June 10, 1904.
3. Helen Stuyvesant, b. Aug. 2, 1876; m. in 1902, at St. Mary's Church, London, Eng., Comte Boson de Périgord.
4. Lewis Parsons, b. Sept. 21, 1877, at London, Eng.; d. there Jan. 10, 1878.
5. Alice, b. Mar. 23, 1879; d. June 19, 1917; m. Winthrop Rutherfurd.
6. Mary, b. June 11, 1881, at New York City.

We thus see that Levi Parsons Morton was, by inheritance, of the best American earliest Colonial New England stock; and that by both of his marriages he allied himself with equally distinguished strains of Pilgrim and early colonial New York blood. Therefore in his children we have an intermingling of such strains as go largely to make up what we are justified now in regarding as pure American blood. We dwell largely upon this matter now in these days when our country is threatened with an invasion of alien bloods, that will render in time Colonial American ancestry the true aristocracy of this land.

He was educated at Shoreham Academy and from 1838 to 1840, was employed in a country store in Enfield, Mass.; 1840-1, he taught school in Boscawen, N. H., and was a clerk in the general store of W. W. Esterbrook in Concord, N. H. In 1842 he was given charge of a branch store in Hanover, N. H. Upon the failure of Mr. Esterbrook, he became a clerk in the employ of Mr. Beebe of New York, and in 1845 on reaching his majority he bought out Mr. Beebe's interest and carried on the dry goods business in his own name. In 1849 he removed to Boston to enter into partnership with Mr. Beebe in the dry goods trade under the firm name of Beebe, Morton and Co.; this house was then one of the leading ones in Boston. The next year the firm opened a branch house in New York City with Mr. Morton as the resident partner and manager. He withdrew from this January 1, 1854, to form the dry goods commission house of Morton and Grinnell, which firm went into liquidation in 1861. In 1862 he established the banking house of Levi P. Morton & Co., in New York with Charles McCune as a partner and when Mr. McCune retired in 1863, Mr. Morton established the London house of Morton, Burns and Co.

In 1868, George Bliss became a member of the New York house, the firm name being changed to Morton, Bliss and Co., and Sir John Rose entered the London branch of the business which was known as Morton, Rose & Co. Sir John Rose was formerly the Minister of Finance of Canada. It was through this firm that the U. S. Government paid Great Britain the Halifax fishery award of $5,500,000. This firm was conspicuous for its sale of a large block of New York Central Railroad stock, belonging to Cornelius Vanderbilt, to English purchasers. The firm of Morton, Bliss & Co., headed the syndicate formed to fund the U. S. National debt in 1896. In 1899, this firm went into voluntary liquidation and was succeeded by the Morton Trust Co.

Mr. Morton early evinced an interest in public affairs. He was a Republican in his political affiliations and not until 1876 did he enter actively into political life. In this year he was without his knowledge nominated for Congress and although unsuccessful in the election, he greatly reduced the normal Democratic majority of his district. In 1878 he was appointed by President Hayes Honorary Commissioner to the Paris Exposition and in the autumn of that same year he was again nominated for Congress and was elected a member of the 46th Congress by a majority of 6,000 over his democratic adversary. In 1880 he declined the Republican nomination for Vice-President. He was re-elected to the 47th Congress in 1880 and in 1881 he was offered the position of Secretary of the Navy in Garfield's Cabinet which office he declined, and he was then by President Garfield appointed Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary of the United States to the French Republic. This post he filled with marked ability and satisfaction to the Republican administration until 1885, when shortly after Mr. Cleveland's election to the Presidency he returned to New York. In 1888 he was elected as Vice-President of the United States serving under Benjamin Harrison as President and served as presiding officer of the United States Senate with great fairness and to the satisfaction of both political parties during a period of strong political antagonism. In 1894 he was elected Governor of the State of New York, defeating David B. Hill his democratic opponent. Upon the close of his term of office in 1896 he retired from politics and from public life, giving all of his time to his banking interests and to beautifying his country estate "Ellerslie," at Rhinebeck-on-Hudson, N. Y., where he was much interested in scientific stock raising.

For many years and latterly on account of the increasing infirmities of age, Mr. Morton led a retired life wholly withdrawn from the public eye, reaching the great age of 96 years before he was called upon to answer his final earthly roll-call.

Mr. Morton became an Annual Member of our Society in 1888 and a Life Member thereof in 1903. He was always interested in the ambitions of the Society and gave much material aid in enabling it to realize those ambitions.

JOHN ROBINSON OF OYSTER BAY.*

CONTRIBUTED BY DOANE ROBINSON,†
Secretary and Superintendent, Department of History, State of South Dakota.

Whence he came I know not, but on Oct. 2, 1675, John Robinson of Oyster Bay, Long Island, signed his name as a witness to a deed made by "John seman" of Hempstead, to "Henry willits" of Oyster Bay.(1) Thereafter his name appears frequently in the records of Oyster Bay, Huntington and Hempstead. From testimony he gave in the court at Huntington several years later, he was at this time (1675), barely 21 years of age.(2) It is likely he came to Oyster Bay from the region about Lynn, Massachusetts,(3) but he may have been an immigrant direct from England.

The next year, Dec. 9, 1676, the town of Oyster Bay granted to "John Robinson Jonyer a half acre of land joining on one side to John whittecars land and fronting to ye highways yt goes to the waterside with ffree commonage ffor two cowes and one hors and timbar suffitiant ffor his youse on his trade." This lot was on what is now South Street, near where the railroad ends.(4)

On Jan. 22, 1677, John Robinson, of Oyster Bay, bought of Thomas Hicks of Cornbury Neck "a whole alottment of land lying & being on Madnans Neck * * in Number thirtie five & one." This land was located upon what is now known as Great Neck, in Hempstead; but its exact location I have not been able to determine.(5)

May 2, 1677, the town of Oyster Bay granted to "John Robison," ten acres of land at the Cold Spring, near the head of the cove and he was given the right to build mills upon the stream. Likewise he was given commonage "for timbar and grassing.(6) The stream at Cold Spring is the boundry between Oyster Bay and Huntington townships and consequently Oyster Bay did not have full control of the millright; but on Oct. 23, 1680, the town of Huntington granted "John Robyson Juynor of Oysterbay our right of the streme at Cold Spring to put up a corn mill and a saw mill."(7)

Before Oct. 7, 1681, he had built a house at the Cold Spring, about upon the ground where the State Fish Hatchery now stands,(8) and was living there with his wife Jeane and his eldest child Joseph, then an infant. There is no evidence that he had begun the erection of a mill. Upon the night of the 7th they were greatly annoyed by a party of four drunken Indians who threatened their lives and violently disarmed them, so they were compelled to go in the nighttime across the hills, a distance of three miles, to Huntington, for protection. It was really a most dramatic and terrifying affair,

* Explanatory notes of reference marked with superior numbers, thus (1) will be found following the subject matter of the article.

† Doane Robinson is a descendant of John Robinson of Oyster Bay, by the following line: (1) John of Oyster Bay; (2) Capt. Robert of Brookhaven; (3) Robert, Jr., of Chester; (4) Jonah of Wantage; (5) Jonah of Gallia Co., Ohio; (6) George McCook of Lyon Co., Minnesota; (7) Doane of Pierre, South Dakota.

the story being told in detail by both John and Jeane, upon oath, in the court at Huntington, upon Oct. 10th. Briefly, an Indian named Pauwas had brought his gun to John to be restocked, agreeing that the gun should be held until the bill was paid. Pauwas came for the gun on the evening of Oct. 7th and he was accompanied by Tom and two other Indians. Tom also had a gun which he had left in the possession of John for repairs upon similar terms. The four Indians forcibly possessed themselves of these two guns and likewise took John's own weapon, leaving him helpless; they then looked about for other spoil and finding a barrel of rum, they drew and drank until they were ready for any sort of mischief. John locked himself and family in the bed room, but the miscreants broke down the door and seized Jeane, when they found a small cask of liquor and giving their attention to this, the family escaped through a rear door; when they returned to their home next day they found things pretty badly disturbed and their small stock of silver had been carried off. They each testified they were 27 years of age at this time, which would make their birth year 1654.[9]

Life at Cold Spring appears to have been too strenuous for the young couple, for on November 26, 1681, only a few weeks after the Indian affair, the town of Oyster Bay granted "John Robinson Joyner five acres of commonland lying betwene Joseph Ludlams land and Adam wrights and Joseph Ludlams swomp fronting to ye highwaye at ye north end and Tho. Townsends lands at South end," in consideration of which John surrendered all previous grants made him by the town; that is, he gave up the half acre lot on north South Street and the ten acres and mill privilege at Cold Spring.[10]

It will be noted that thus far John has been designated as "Jonyer," "Juynor," and "Joyner." These designations were given me in transcripts of the records in each case as "Jr." If he really was John Robinson, Jr., then references to John Robinson, in the records were presumably to a John Robinson, Sr., and perhaps the father of our John. I was seriously mislead by this assumption; but a careful examination of the original entries which I made in August, 1920, convinced me that all of these designations were intended to be to one John Robinson, joiner, in reference to his trade; for there are many evidences that he was a wood worker.

From the date of this last grant forward until Dec. 17, 1689, he continued to live upon this tract, which lies on the easterly side of South Street at approximately the north side of Main Street, in the very heart of the village of Oyster Bay.[11]

In 1685 he owned 100 acres of land in Hempstead, which perhaps was "the whole alottment" purchased of Thomas Hicks in 1677.[12] He seemed to have had a continuing interest in Hempstead, for on April 11, 1687, he entered additional land "in the pattent charge" in Hempstead.[13] This was presumably the tract that afterward became his homestead at Success Lake.

Until Dec. 17, 1689, his name appears frequently in the Oyster Bay record; but on June 11, 1690, he sold the Oyster Bay place to John Newman and in the deed recited "I John Robinson, of Great Sucksess in ye bounds of Hempstead in Queens county on Long Island in ye Colony of New Yorke," and described "one lott or peese of Land Lying & being in Oysterbay * * whereon my house now Standeth And lyeth between Edward Whites Land & John Dewsburyes Swamp ffronting on the street at ye North end & Thomas Townsends Land at ye South." In this deed he recites that he has made delivery "by Turfe & Twigg." It will be seen this is the same tract granted him by the town when he returned from the Cold Spring experience.(14)

John had now arrived at the age of 36 years, and a year later he was chosen to represent Queens County in the provincial legislature which met in New York City on April 9, 1691. This is generally known as the first provincial legislature, but in fact two previous assemblies had been held.(15)

It was a most unhappy time. The administration of the tyrannical Andros had been thrown off contemporaneously with the revolution in England, and among the late acts of King James prior to his abdication was the appointment of Nicholson as Lieutenant Governor of New York; and very soon after learning of the abdication of the King, Nicholson followed the example of his royal master and deserted his post. Jacob Leisler had in the absence of royal authority constituted himself sort of dictator of the affairs of the province during a biennium ending March 19, 1691, when Henry Sloughter arrived in New York from England with a royal commission from William and Mary and assumed the reins of government. His first official act was to call a popular assembly which as stated, convened on April 9th, 21 days after Sloughter's arrival.(16)

Conditions could scarcely have been more distressing. The French and Indian War was on, and the frontier at Albany was fearfully exposed, and protection must be afforded both for the safety of life and the preservation of trade with the natives, upon which many citizens were dependent; the province was deeply in debt, without credit and with the slimmest of revenues; what little commerce remained was the prey of privateers and pirates.

Queens County was strongly Quaker in religious affiliation, and so two members of that order, John Bound and Nathaniel Pearsall, were sent up to represent the county; but they refused to take the oath, and so were dismissed, and a new warrant of election issued.(17) On April 14, the sheriff of Queens county reported that Daniel Whitehead and John Tredwell had been chosen to the vacancies.(18) However, when Tredwell reached New York, he was promptly arrested upon some charge not stated in the record, and not permitted to appear to qualify in the assembly.(19) The legislature professed great indignation at this breech of legislative privilege, and forthwith summoned the officer making the arrest before the bar of the House to answer for the contempt; but when he appeared and made his answer, the House found: "We do find that the allegations charged upon him to be of such a scandalous nature that he cannot be capable to serve as a member of this House."[20] So he was dismissed and a new warrant of election was issued, which resulted in the choice of John Robinson, and he appeared and qualified on April 21.[21] Robinson and Tredwell were next door neighbors at Success Lake.[22] The Tredwells then and still are, among the most respected families of Hempstead.[23] What was charged against John Tredwell cannot now be ascertained.

Thus it will be seen that the legislature was fully organized, its committees appointed and its work progressing before John Robinson became a member of that body. His course there is an interesting study. In the early days he was complimented with purely perfunctory committee assignments; but gradually he grew upon the body and was given more responsible work, until before the end of his term he was chairman of the most important committees of the House. The journal from Sept. 14, to Nov. 10, 1692, is lost and his full record cannot be known.

His first important place was upon a committee to provide for a levy of 150 men and their maintenance to defend the Albany frontier.[24] It was a perplexing problem under all of the conditions. The entries are too meagre to determine the details, but the provision was made.

There was extreme jealousy between the governor and the house of representatives, each being fearful the other would usurp their respective prerogatives. At the first session the House had made provision, as stated, for the protection of Albany and for other purposes, and then recessed until the autumn. When they returned, it was discovered that the provision made had not been executed. John Robinson was made chairman of a special committee with power to summon and swear witnesses to determine why such acts had not been executed as provided by law.[25]

The province was much disturbed over the conduct of Leisler, the protector, after the abdication of Nicholson; the loyalists demanding his execution, while the proletariat were for his acquittal. On the night of May 16, 1691, the royalists, finding Sloughter was addicted to drink, got him drunk, and induced him to sign Leisler's death warrant, and before he had sobered up the next morning, the poor devil had been hung. This added to the strained relations between governor and House. When Sloughter became sober enough to realize what he had done, his nerve was utterly broken; he continued to console himself with drink, and died in delirium tremens on July 26.[26] Richard Ingoldsby, military commander of the province, assumed the governorship and continued to exercise that function until a new royal governor, Benjamin Fletcher, arrived on Aug. 30th; and so it happened that New York had three governors during the period of John's service.

On March 30, 1692, John was made chairman of a joint committee of the House and council upon "the plainer ascertaining of the public debt and revenues," which resolved itself into a recess committee for the complete audit of the debt and revenues.[27]

The grand flourish of the session was the address to their majesties, William and Mary. Upon the committee to prepare this address John was given third place.[28]

He was on numerous other special committees and he introduced and promoted the passage of the act changing the name of Long Island to the Island of Nassau.[29]

On the whole, his legislative record was highly creditable; perhaps unequalled by that of any other member of the House; and, considering his handicap at the beginning of the session, is a record in which his posterity may take pride.

In April, 1697, John Robinson, apparently in apprehension of immediate death, deeded his property to his wife Jeane, and his son Joseph. The deed, evidently written by one of the neighbors, called in the emergency, is rather unique, as it is in effect both a deed and a will. It does not represent the scholarship of John, who, judged by other documents, possessed fair attaiments. The text of the conveyance is as follows:[30]

There appears no revocation of the above conveyance, though John lived and was active for many years after.

The exact bounds of the lands owned by John at Success Lake can not now be determined, though the general location was along the northeast portion of that beautiful body of water and the lots deeded to Joseph were north of the lake. The property is now part of the William K. Vanderbilt estate.

In Aug., 1698, a census of Hempstead was taken and the family of John Robinson is enumerated as follows:

John Robison, Jane Robison, Joseph Robison, John Robison, Mary Robison, Thomas Robison, Robrd Robison.[31] No record of the ages is given; but since Joseph was very young and the only child at the time of the Indian trouble in Oct., 1861, it is evident that they were all, with the possible exception of Joseph, still minors. The fact that John deeded land to Joseph the previous year indicates he was arriving at man's estate; while his solicitude for "ye bringing up of oure Chilldren," determines the status of the others. As we shall learn, all of the boys settled down and passed their lives in Brookhaven; but of Mary I have no information.

John still possessed his youthful desire to build mills, and on April 2, 1698, he secured from the town of Hempstead a right in the following form:

"att ye same meeting John Robeson had lierti (liberty) granted to set up a grist mill and a fulling mill on ye streme att ye hed of yt harboure."[32]

He did not proceed to build at once; but on April 1, 1701, the right was confirmed to him and his sons Joseph and John, which indicates that by this time the two youths had become men of affairs.[33]

Soon thereafter the mill was built at the head of Hempstead Harbor, where the village of Roslyn now stands. The old building is in a good state of preservation and in 1915 the villagers under the leadership of Harold Godwin, son of the notable Park Godwin, and grandson of William Cullen Bryant, secured title to the property and converted it into a museum and tea house. The clumsy old undershot wheel is still in service and grinds out electricity to light the premises.[34]

May 2, 1709, the Robinsons sold the mill to Charles Mott, and continued to farm at Success Lake. They do not appear to have left the farm during the milling operations, though they had the frame of a dwelling house up near the mill, which they sold with the mill property.[35]

I am unable to learn anything of the family of Jeane, the wife of John Robinson, though it is most likely she was of one of the early families of Oyster Bay. We get a glimpse of her spirit and strong character in her testimony relating to the Indian affair; indeed showing greater courage than her young husband exhibited. She says: "They came and staved at the door and I held the dore with an yron crow with all my might in ye menetime my husband looking through a crevis in the clabords to see how they did act. They presed hard at ye dore and thretened to shout us, my husband said to me for gods sake open the dore or theyl shout us, so I left the dore and they broke it open and came in."[36]

After the sale of the mill in 1709, we learn no more of John and Jeane until Mar. 2, 1712, when they deeded a large tract of land in Brookhaven to their sons John and Robert. They were then still living at Success Lake. I learn no more of them.[37]

Captain Robert Robinson, of Brookhaven.

Captain Robert Robinson, of Brookhaven, was the youngest son of John and Jeane, of Oyster Bay. He was born at Oyster Bay before 1689. He married Mary Davis of Brookhaven before he had attained his majority and spent all the remainder of his life in that town.[38]

In the French and Indian War, in 1709, he led a company of Brookhaven men, in the service of the Province of New York, against the enemy above Albany, whence he got his military title that clung to him until his death; his brother Thomas was an officer of the company and he likewise was always addressed as Lieutenant Robinson.[39]

The date of Captain Robinson's marriage is not known, but Jacob Mallman, historian and genealogist of Suffolk county, gives the following record of the birth of his children all of whom were born in Brookhaven; Joana, born 1705; Gershom, 1707; James, 1709; John, 1711; Isreal, 1713; Stephen, 1715; Robert, 1718; Daniel, 1721.[40]

In some of his operations John, of Oyster Bay, had become possessed of a fine tract of land, consisting of 273 acres lying along the north shore, midway between the present villages of Mt. Sinai and Millers Place. As these villages are but a mile apart, it may be said that one end of it was in Mt. Sinai and the other in Millers Place. In the early records the place is known as the Old Man's Harbor, or more briefly the Old Man's, having reference to a traditional old Englishman who is said to have inhabited the region in advance of the more modern settlement. On March 2, 1712, John and Jeane deeded 110 acres of this tract to their son John, and the balance to Captain Robert. Robert's tract is described as follows: "A certain messauge or tract of lands at a place commonly called the old Mans, being in the township of Brookhaven, northerly by the sea, westerly by a beach tree running along Benjamin Davis land, southerly by ye marked trees along the Indian line, easterly by Andrew Millers haypath."[41] In John's deed made the same day he describes the western boundry as "Pipestave hollow." The dividing line between John and Robert is described as from the spring to the split rock and thence easterly to Andrew Millers hay path. These descriptions make the identification of the place very easy. The Indian line is now the country road from Mt. Sinai to Millers place. Andrew Millers hay path is one of the best known land marks of the region, the one hundred fifty years of its use having eroded it down until it is now a deep ravine through the cliff to the beach.

John's land was next the shore and Robert's adjoining on the south: the two brothers built their homes in Pipestave hollow at the west end and Robert at least lived and died upon this homestead. The buildings are gone but their location is readily found.

Captain Robert was an enterprising and active man, and came to possess several tracts and farms in different parts of Brookhaven.

After the close of Queen Anne's War, about 1712, all the years of his active life fell in a period of peace and relative prosperity, and he was shrewd enough to avail himself of the opportunities the times afforded in the accumulation of a comfortable estate. He was public spirited and constantly served his township in some capacity of usefulness, and from 1734 forward until late in life he was a trustee of the town.

He was a Presbyterian-Congregationalist, the denominations being affiliated; but in the autumn of 1739, as the result of a church row over the settlement of a minister, he, with many other prominent members, "resigned" from the Presbyterian church and formed themselves into "The Caroline Club for the further support of an Episcopal minister in this place,"[42] and to that end Robert subscribed 6 pounds and his brother Thomas, the same amount. I have not learned if he persisted in his "resignation," but find at least his son Robert affiliated with the Congregational Church and conclude that the trouble blew over.

Captain Robert Robinson died May 7th, 1762, at the home in Pipestave Hollow. He was doubtless buried in the cemetery near the house on his farm, but I was unable to find any stone marking the grave. This was no doubt due to the fact that crude stones of country rock, were, until recent years, set up over the graves, without foundations or bases, and these either fell over and were buried in the soil or else settled down into the graves.

His will made upon the day of his death is, in its essential features as follows:

"I Robert Robinson, of Brookhaven in Suffolk county, being of sound mind. I leave to my wife Mary the use of the west room of the house I live in and the chamber above it and ¼ of the cellar during so long as she remains my widow. Also a cow and a working horse and ½ the household furniture. I leave my daughter Joanna 1 cow, 4 cattle and ½ of household furniture. I leave to my sons Gershom, James, and John the remainder of my house and they and my daughter Joanna may dwell there during the term of seven years; but if any of my children should marry during the time my will is that they shall no longer dwell there. I leave my son Isreal all my land on the south side of the middle of the island except my right in the long swamp and my salt meadow land. I leave all the rest of my estate to my six children, Stephen, Gershom, Daniel, Robert, James and John, and in the division Stephen is to have the house where he now lives and five acres adjoining thereto And Daniel shall have the house where he now lives and five acres adjoining. Gershom shall have five acres adjoining to the old Mans harbor and David Davis land. James is to have the house where I now dwell and five acres adjoining. If my personal property will not pay debts my executors may sell land except the five acre lots. Whereas I have paid money and am bound for my son Robert, my executors are to take the sum out of his share. I leave my son John £20 and a part of a 50 acre lot No. 50 adjoining Sweezy's land and thence running north the whole width of the lot. I make my sons Stephen and Daniel and my Brother-in-law Joseph Davis executors."[43]

A few days later Stephen, Daniel and Joseph Davis appeared in the probate court of Suffolk county and Joseph filed a declination to act as executor and Stephen and Daniel administered the estate.

Mary, the wife of Captain Robert was a daughter of Joseph Davis, Sr., who came to Brookhaven from Southampton. Very many of his descendants still live along the north shore in the vicinity. His will contains this amusing provision: Having given his property chiefly to his wife he made some special bequests to his children. To his son Benjamin he gave a mare. He then proceeds: "My will is that Benjamin give to my daughter Mary, (wife of Captain Robert) the first mare colt of his mare."[44] It is easy to see where the Robinson fortune had its genesis.

The Robinson direct line has disappeared from the north shore, though many descendants of Captain Robert live on the South side of the island, in Brookhaven. When Robert died, Joanna, Gershom, James and John, to whom the home place was left all were at middle age, and beyond, and died without issue, and the place passed into other families.

Robert Robinson, Jr., of Chester, New Jersey.

Robert, the sixth son of Captain Robert, was born in Brookhaven in 1718. When about 21 years of age he went out to Chester, Morris county, New Jersey, where his cousin Jonah Robinson, son of John, of Brookhaven, and many other neighbors from Suffolk county had already settled. Robert bought land there which joined his cousin Jonah's farm.[45]

So far as I can learn this cousin was the first Jonah in the Robinson family. Where the name originated, so far as our line is concerned, is purely speculative. Among the first settlers of Suffolk county was Rev. Robert Fordham, of Southampton; his son Jonah Fordham became a very active and popular and highly beloved minister of the Presbyterian-Congregational Churches among which he spent his life. Wherever he settled the parents named their sons for the beloved pastor until the name Jonah became very common throughout the island. Indeed Long Island is the only place where the records reveal the name to any extent whatever. I therefore assume that directly or indirectly the first Jonah Robinson was named for Rev. Jonah Fordham.

The records reveal very little of Robert, Jr. The most I have learned of his history is from the diary of Rev. Samuel Sweezy, a Brookhaven man who was pastor of the Congregational Church of Chester at about the middle of the 18th century. The following items relating to the Robinsons settled at Chester were jotted down from time to time:

"Feb. 4 (1746) Mr. John Robinson of Brookhaven has come on to visit Jonah."

"July 7. The wife of Jonah Robinson died this morning."

"May 12 (1747) Jonah Robinson and his new wife Susana Davis, came today."

"March 2 (1748) Baptised Amos, son of Jonah and Susana Robinson."

"October 8 (1748) Mr. Jonah Robinson died last night."

"November 30 (1749) Robert Robinson and Susanna Robinson, widow of Jonah, married by me."

"November 3 (1750) A son was born to Robert and Susanna Robinson."

"November 8, Susanna, wife of Robert Robinson, died."[46]

Not much is known of his after life. He returned to Brookhaven for a time and served in the Brookhaven company in the French and Indian War in 1758.[47]

On June 21, 1766, he gave a mortgage upon his land at Chester to Caleb Horton and on the 2nd of June, 1772, deeded the land over to Horton in payment of the debt.[48]

As appears by his father's will, he had received advances from the estate. From other suggestions it seems he was not successful in life. He did not marry again, and after losing his land there is a suggestion that he went out into Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, and died there in 1778.[49] His identity with Robert, of Lancaster county is not fully established.

His wife Susanna was the daughter of Samuel, of Brookhaven, where there were and still are three distinct families of that name. Whether or not she was of the same stock as Robert's mother Mary, I am unable to determine.

I was not able to go to Chester, but Mrs. Satterthwaite, the genealogist of Trenton, whom I employed to go there, was unable to identify the land in that town owned by Robert, Jr.

Jonah Robinson, of Wantage.

Jonah Robinson, born at Chester, New Jersey, Nov. 3, 1750, was the only child of Robert Robinson, Jr., and his wife Susanna. Susanna died when the child was five days old.

I do not know what became of the child in his infancy. His grandfather Samuel Davis, of Brookhaven, was joint executor with Susanna of the estate of Jonah, Susanna's first husband. So far as any record is concerned his childhood and youth are sealed books, but since he inherited a substantial sum from his mother's estate, and in view of what we know of the business affairs of his father, it seems a safe guess that Samuel, of Brookhaven, may have directed his early years.

When the Revolutionary war came on he was out in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in that section which has since become Dauphin county. This fact gives color to the belief that his father also was there, identical with that Robert known to have died there in 1778. Jonah on June 6th, a month before the declaration of Independence, joined "Captain James Roger's Company, of Colonel Timothy Green's Hanover Rifle Battalion of Lancaster County Associators," destined for "a camp in the Jerseys."[50] It appears that he continued in service in New Jersey for several years. He was stationed in the extreme northern part, and there in the township of Wantage he met, while soldiering, Joanna Daniels, daughter of Kenzie Daniels, and they were married. He purchased a farm and established Joanna upon it, and was himself given liberty to cultivate it, being at all times subject to call for military duty. Grandmother, who lived until 1842, told of his coming home from camp to butcher hogs and for other services. He continued to live in Wantage until Feb. 22, 1782, when he sold his holdings there and soon thereafter removed to Londonderry township, Bedford County, Pennsylvania. I am unable to discover the exact location of the Wantage home.

He was able to render his country a double patriotic service, for in addition to his military service he purchased "a Liberty Bond" of substantial amount. In the Revolutionary War Records in the Office of the Adjutant General of New Jersey, at Trenton, is this Record:

No. 2. Voucher 3463. Name Jonah Robinson, Ref. Quarter Master Generals Department. Received from Wm. Cox Stephens Q. C. M. Dept. Certificate No. 523 dated February 20, 1781 for $5240 Continental £50:8:8 species; interest commences March 11, 1781.

This the present adjutant general interprets to mean that Jonah loaned the government $5240, in continental money which had a specie value of £50:8:8 and this is a receipt for the bond issued to him in evidence of the government's obligation.

When Jonah removed to Bedford county he leased a tract of land located upon Thompson's Bottom, on Will's Creek, for a term of six years. He agreed to pay four pounds a year, keep up the property and clear and break fifteen acres.

At the expiration of this lease, on Sept. 5, 1791, he bought a farm of 133 acres, of Richard Peters, of Philadelphia, for which he paid one pound per acre. This land was located on Will's Creek, in Londonderry, "joining the Walnut Bottom tract."

In 1801 he sold this farm for $2500 and removed with his family to Columbiana county, Ohio, where he settled by preemption on Section 10, town 10, range 2. This tract lies about ten miles northwest of New Lisbon, and upon it he lived until his death. The patent to this land, now in the possession of Herbert Robinson, of Gilroy, California, has the autograph signature of Thomas Jefferson.

He died in his 65th year, on Feb. 24, 1814. The land remained in the family and was the property of his son John, who left it at his death to his son George, who died without heirs.

The children of Jonah and Joanna were Sarah, 1781; John, 1783; Laner, 1785; Jane, 1787; Margaret, 1789; Jonah, 1791; Aaron, 1792; Mary, 1794; Elizabeth, 1796; Kinzie, 1798; Jacob, 1799; Amos, 1803; Matilda, 1805.

DUNNING FAMILY.

CONTRIBUTED BY EDITH (VAN HEUSEN) BECKER (MRS. FRANK N. BECKER),
No. 93 Guy Park Ave., Amsterdam, N. Y.

The Genealogical Notes on the Dunning Family, compiled and published in 1915, gives mention on page 13 of Abel Dunning (Michael, Benjamin, Benjamin, Theophilus), and gives certain information regarding him, but does not give his record in full, nor does it give any record of his children and his descendants.

It is the purpose of this article to give, in so far as the compiler knows, the record of this Abel Dunning, his wife, children and descendants down to the present time.

As a preface to this genealogical record we give the following military record of Michael Dunning (father of Abel Dunning) as furnished from the War Department files, on Oct. 29, 1917, over the signature of Edward Baker, Assistant Adjutant General in charge of Military Records, viz:—

From the Military Records in custody of the Bureau of Pensions, Interior Department, Washington, D. C., under date of Sept. 28, 1917, the following was furnished as the record of Abel Dunning, upon which record his widow was granted a pension:—

ARMS AND CRESTS FOR AMERICANS.

Report of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society's Committee on Heraldry.

Submitted by the Chairman, JOHN ROSS DELAFIELD, A. M., L.L.B., Colonel, Ordnance, O. R. C., U. S. Army.

Your Committee has continued its activities, as occasion permitted since its last report published in the Genealogical and Biographical Record for January, 1919. This report is supplementary to the one there printed and covers additional information only.

During the recent war the rules governing grants and confirmations of arms by the College of Arms were modified in such manner as to give Americans of British ancestry, in the male line, practically the same advantages as British subjects. An American may now, therefore, apply and obtain from the college a confirmation or a grant of arms, on proving his pedigree and the standing of his family and paying the required fees. Arms will not, however, be confirmed or granted unless they differ from those previously granted or confirmed to some other family, whether of the same or a different surname.

It seems that confirmations, as distinguished from grants of new arms, will not be made to Americans except in cases where it is shown that the arms were in use by the ancestor in the male line prior to 1783. Then, if the arms differ from any already granted, a patent confirming them unchanged may be had. If, however, they are the same as those borne by some other family, some modification will be required before confirmation is made. Such modifications are generally suggested to the applicant by the College of Arms, which also determines whether the same arms are rightfully borne by some other family. In a few cases, arms, borne by Americans have become part of our Colonial history. If confirmation of any such arms is refused on the ground of likeness to arms already granted to others, then it is thought it will be wise not to modify them, but to postpone confirmation until some other solution for the difficulty be found.

Grants of arms, as distinguished from confirmations, may be obtained from the College of Arms in any case where the proven use of the arms in America by the ancestors in the male line does not extend back to the year 1783; and may also be had where a family has not used arms at all. In every case the standing of the family for several generations must be shown and a proven pedigree registered in the College of Arms. In case of grants, as distinguished from confirmations, the College of Arms have established an honorable augmentation to show that the family is American or Canadian or Indian, as the case may be. This consists of a small charge added in some part of the shields. For all Canadian families it is the maple leaf, for Indians the lotus flower, for Americans the escallop. The escallop is the sign of the pilgrim, and its adoption for the Americans is because this country alone of all the great English speaking countries had its origin in pilgrimage for liberty and freedom, and this was true alike of the Cavaliers of Virginia and the Puritans of Massachusetts, and of many others who came here.

Your committee believe that these privileges of grant and confirmation of arms extend to anyone, otherwise qualified, whose ancestor in the male line was a British subject whether in England or in the American Colonies before 1783, or elsewhere. And that Americans of the families of the Dutch and French and other nationalities who settled in these colonies and became British subjects are in the same position as those descended from English stock.

So far as your committee is informed the rules of the Lyon Herald for Scotland and of Ulster King of Arms for Ireland remain unchanged and as stated in our previous report.

VOL. L., p. 219. In view of more recent information record No. 20 should read as follows:

20. SARAH[4] MAYHEW (John[3] Mayhew, Joanna[2] Christophers, Jeffery[1]), b. ——; bapt. Nov. 22, 1713, at New London, Ct.; d. ——, at ——; m. Oct. 2, 1740, at New London, Capt. James[3] Lampheer (probably son of Theodosius[2] (George[1]) and Rachel (Covey) Lampheer of Westerly, R. I.), b. Nov. 22, 1710 at Westerly, R. I. (probably); d. ——, at ——. Capt. James[3] Lampheer was one of the volunteers from Connecticut serving at the siege and fall of Louisburg, Nova Scotia in 1745. Family tradition of doubtful authority gives it that his father came from Nova Scotia to New London in 1730; but it seems more likely that he came to New London from Westerly, R. I. The tradition exists in the family that the emigrant ancestor was a Huguenot, which may be so.

Children: 5 (Lampheer), 2 sons and 3 daus., all b. in New London:

56. i. Sarah,[5] bapt. July 19, 1741, at New London.

57. ii. Mary,[5] 1st, bapt. June 12, 1743, at New London; d. ——, young.

58. iii. Mary,[5] 2nd, bapt. Jan. 19, 1745-6, at New London; d. Aug. 25, 1753, aged 8 years, and was bur. Aug. 26, 1753 at New London.

+59. iv. James,[5] b. ——, 1747; d. March 6, 1820; m. Grace[5] Deshon (Henry[4] Deshon, Ruth[3] Christophers, Richard[2] Christophers, Christopher[1] Christophers), see Record No. 222 of the descendants of Christopher[1] Christophers, which forms a part of this record. Neither the birth nor baptism of this James[5] Lampheer is to be found in the New London records, but it is a firmly fixed belief in the Lampheer family record that he was a son of Capt. James and Sarah (Mayhew) Lampheer; and moreover there is a gap of 6 years between the record of the child Mary[5] Lampheer, bapt. Jan. 19, 1745-6, and the child Peter[5] Lampheer, bapt. Jan. 19, 1751-2, which gives some ground to the belief that another child may have been born in between them in 1747. We know that a James Lampheer married Grace[5] Deshon May 22, 1776, at New London and, based entirely upon the strength of family tradition, we have recorded him as the child of James and Sarah (Mayhew) Lampheer.

60. v. Peter,[5] bapt. Jan. 19, 1751-2; d. Aug. 25, 1753, aged 1½ yrs. and was bur. Aug. 26, 1753.

In Hempstead's Diary, p. 280, under date of Oct. 20, 1734 (Sunday) we find:

"—— Lampheer and Mary Chappel was published." In Bailey's Early Connecticut Marriages, Book II, p. 17, this marriage is recorded as follows: "Lemuel Lanthur and Mary Chappel were married at New London, Dec. 26, 1734." I record these entries as by some it has been thought that Capt. James Lampheer may have married Mary Chappel as his first wife, before he married Sarah[4] May-hew. The above entry in Bailey of the name Lemuel seems to dispose of this belief.

VOL. LI., p. 16: Referring to Record No. 11 of Christopher[3] Bradley:—

It appears that Mary[2] (Christophers) Bradley-Youngs-Lynde, the mother of Christopher[3] Bradley, made her will Aug. 7, 1721, which will was proved at the New London Probate Court, Aug. 6, 1724. The will shows that there was a pre-nuptial agreement existing between Nathaniel Lynde and Mary (Christophers) Bradley-Youngs the widow of Col. Thomas Youngs (her second husband) of Southold, by which it was arranged that she should have the right to dispose of such estate as she was possessed of prior to her marriage to Nathaniel Lynde. In this will she makes mention of the following individuals:—

Loving brother Richard Christophers (No. 4 of this record).

Loving cousin Christopher Christophers (No. 12 of this record).

Loving cousin Richard Christophers (No. 13 of this record).

Loving cousin Mary Christophers, dau. of Cousin Christopher Christophers (No. 45 of this record).

Loving cousin Mary Christophers, dau. of Cousin Richard Christophers (No. 54 of this record).

Loving cousin Mary Young, wife of Joshua Young, and her dau. Mary (No. 30 of the descendants of Jeffery[1] Christophers).

Daughters of brother Richard Christophers (Nos. 17, 19, 21, 23, 24, 25, 26, of this record).

Two grandsons, Peter Bradley and Jonathan Bradley (No. 42 of this Record).

Cousin Christopher Christophers, Executor.

From this will we therefore see that on Aug. 7, 1721, the testatrix had a grandson Peter[4] Bradley as well as a grandson Jonathan[4] Bradley, and hence the number of children of Christopher[3] Bradley should be increased by one son, viz:—

42a. Peter,[4] b. —— (prior to Aug. 7, 1721); d. —— (certainly alive Aug. 7, 1721, and possibly Aug. 6, 1724); he is mentioned in the will of his grandmother Mary (Christophers) Bradley-Youngs-Lynde, dated Aug. 7, 1721, and proved Aug. 6, 1724. His subsequent history is not known.

The fact that James[4] Bradley is not mentioned in this will of his grandmother may be because his death possibly occurred on Feb. 6, 1723-4 (before the will was probated), and not as given on page 16, as Feb. 6, 1724-5. Or it may have been because he was a confirmed invalid and not expected to live when the will was made in 1721.

VOL. LI., p. 215, last line of the page, with reference to Sarah ——? wife of John Stackmaple, Senior:—

John Shackmaple, Senior, of New London, m. Sarah Townley, daughter of Richard Townley, by his wife Elizabeth (Smith) Lawrence-Carteret-Townley, of Elizabethtown, N. J. (See Townley Chart in pocket of back cover of the work, The Lawrence, Chase, Townley Estate, The Mystery Solved, by Frank Alden Hill). The wife of Richard Townley was the daughter of Richard (called "Bull") Smith, the patentee of Smithtown, Long Island, N. Y., by his wife Sarah Folger Smith. Richard Smith died March 2, 1691-2. He signed his will March 5, 1691, and it was proved May 2, 1693. He must have drawn this will up some 11 years prior to officially signing it, as in it he speaks of his daughter Lawrence (one time wife of Captain William Lawrence, who died in 1680). Elizabeth Smith was b. ——, in Smithtown, N. Y., probably; d. —— (she made her will March 8, 1711-12, and it was proved July 23, 1712); she is buried in Elizabethtown, N. J. Elizabeth Smith m. (1) ——? (intention published and license granted March 4, 1664) to Captain William Lawrence of Flushing, Long Island, N. Y., b. ——; d. ——, 1680 (prior to March 30, 1681). She m. Sir Philip Carteret who was the first Governor of the Province of New Jersey, b. ——, at ——; d. —— (will signed Dec. 10, 1682). She m. (3) ——? (probably shortly after Dec. 10, 1682 when Capt. Sir Philip Carteret made his will) to Richard Townley, b. ——, in ——, England; d. ——, 1707-8, intestate at ——? and was buried in Elizabethtown, N. J., by whom she had two sons and 1 daughter, Sarah Townley, who m. John Shackmaple of New London.

Richard Townley came to America in the suite of Lord Howard, Baron of Effingham, who succeeded Culpepper as Royal Governor of Virginia from 1684 to 1688. He settled in Elizabethtown, N. J., where he became a Colonel of Militia. He was one of the Privy Council of Deputy Governor Lord Neil Campbell in 1686. He was a cousin of Jeremiah Townley of London, who was the father of Margaret Frances Townley who m. Richard Chase and settled in Maryland. For a full recording of the pedigree of Richard Townley into the dim past, see the chart of Frank Alden Hill's book above referred to. He was the 8th son of Nicholas and Joanna (White) Townley of England.

VOL. LI., p. 216, under head of record 191 we gather as follows:—

The Town Records of New London state: "Robert Colfax, son of Mr. George Colfax and Lucy his wife, and Sarah Wilson, daughter of Capt. Thomas Wilson and Sarah his wife, were married in 1781." Hence the record of the children of John Shackmaple, Jr., by his wife Elizabeth[4] Christophers should be corrected to read as follows:—

MABIE FAMILY.

CONTRIBUTED BY MISS SARAH ADELAIDE MABIE,*
No. 4935 Pasadena Avenue Terrace. Los Angeles, Cal.

The earliest known progenitor of this family in America was 1. SEIGNEUR PIERRE MABILLE DE NÉVI, having estates in Neuvy, south of Angers, in the old province of Anjou, which is now in the Department of Maine and Loire, France. While not established by absolute proof, yet there are facts which show that he probably held high rank in Coligny's army, and that he made his escape from France after the Massacre of St. Bartholomew's Day, Aug. 24, 1572, and found refuge in the city of Naarden, Holland. He was a Huguenot.

2. He had a son CASPAR MABILLE, known as the Sergeant, who was born probably in Naarden, Holland. He was in New Amsterdam (later New York) in 1650, where his name appears, on Nov. 6 of that year, as a witness to the baptism of Joris, son of Joris Homes, and on which record he signs himself Caspar de Sergiant.

3. Caspar Mabille had a son PIETER MABILLE, whose name appears on the petition made in July, 1621, by Frenchmen located in Leyden, Holland, requesting that they be sent to America. In this petition he signs his name Pierre Gaspard. The first trace we have of him in New Amsterdam is in 1647, when on Feb. 17, of that year he signs as a witness to the baptism of Hendrick, son of Abraham Ryck and in this record he signs himself Pieter Van Aerden (i. e. Pieter from Naarden).

Again in 1650, April 10, he signs himself Pieter Casparszen, as a witness to the baptism of Abraham, son of Abraham Willemszen by his wife Aechtie Jans; his signature in this instance following another of the Dutch customs to convey the information that he was Pieter son of Caspar. This Pieter Mabille (known variously as Pieter Van Aerden [Naarden] and Pieter Casparszen) married in New Amsterdam about 1651 Aechte (Agatha) Jans Van Norden, who was a widow at time of this marriage. He lived on the west side of Broad Street, New Amsterdam, where he owned a homestead. He was made an excise commissioner by the burgomasters and scheppens on May 5, 1654; and his name is found on the list of small burghers of New Amsterdam. His death took place about 1665. His widow continued to live many years in the old home on Broad Street and she died about 1689.

The name Mabille (contracted to the Anglicized form Mabie on account of its pronunciation) was abandoned during three generations, probably in the first instance on account of the desire of the original refugee to avoid identification as a Huguenot, a not unusual procedure amongst refugees at this period; and probably in the second instance due to his Dutch environment and compliance with their customs as to family nomenclature.

Children of Pieter Mabille (also known as Van Naerden, Van Naarden or Casparszen) by his wife Aechte Jans Van Norden: 6, 2 sons and 4 dau'ts:—all baptized in Dutch Church, New Amsterdam, viz:—

4. Marritien (Martha) (dau. of Pieter Casparszen), bapt. Sept. 12, 1652.
5. Jan (John) (son of Pieter Van Naerden), bapt. Oct. 4, 1654; m. Elizabeth Rees. He continued to use the name Van Naerden which the Dutch had given to his father. After 1709 the name was spelled in the English fashion Van Norden. The Hackensack, N. J., family of Van Nordens are descended from this individual. This branch of the family furnishes a good example (when compared with other branches) of a state of affairs often found amongst Dutch settlers, that is of having two branches of the same family making use of different and distinct family surnames.
6. Engeltje (Angelica) (dau. of Pieter Van Naerden and Aeghte Jans), bapt. Sept. 6, 1656; m. Jan Jansen Mol, a shipbuilder.
7. Metje (Mary) (dau. of Pieter Van Naerden and Aegtie Jans), bapt. April 4, 1658; m. Jan Pierrot, a shipbuilder. She is called Meta (Mary) Meby on the records of the French Church in New Amsterdam.

+8. Caspar (son of Pieter Van Naerden and Aechtie Jans), bapt. Feb. 15, 1660 (see below).

9. Tryntie (Catherine) (dau. of Pieter Casparszen Van Naerden and Aefje Jans), bapt. Dec. 17, 1662; m. Hans Hendricksen Spier of Bergen, N. J., the founder of a numerous family.*

8. Caspar Mabie. bapt. Feb. 15, 1660. He resumed the use of his ancient family surname of Mabille, in its anglicized form of spelling and pronunciation (Mabie). This fact is shown conclusively in the records of the baptisms of his children both in New Amsterdam and in Hackensack, N. J. He m. Dec. 14, 1687† (int. pub. Nov. 18, 1687), Elizabeth Schureman. The record of this

The records of the baptisms of these last two sons Simon and Casparus have not been preserved. Simon Mabie was at New Rochelle and probably settled in Dutchess Co., N. Y. Caspar Mabie settled in New Jersey, perhaps at Old Bridge.

22. Jeremias, b. Dec. 13, 1727, at Tappan.
23. Sophia, b. Oct. 10, 1729, at Tappan.
+24. Abraham, b. Dec. 28, 1731, at Tappan.

The following is a copy of the baptismal record of Abraham Mabie, No. 678 of the Tappan baptisms in the History of Rockland County, N. Y., by the Rev. David Cole:

"Born Dec. 28, 1731; bapt. Jan. 23, 1732 Abraham a child of Pieter Mabie and Catalyntie Bogart: Witnesses Johannis Boggart and his wife."

24. Abraham Mabie, b. Dec. 28, 1731; bapt. Jan. 23, 1732. He lived in Orangetown, which is in the township in which Tappan is situated. He was twice married. The record of his first marriage, of which the following is a copy, is found in the Schraalenberg Church Records: "1756, Feb. 2. Abraham Mabie (young man): Polle Van Orland (young daughter)." This was the first marriage of both parties as is shown by the record. By this first marriage Abraham Mabie had two children:

25. Cornelius. 26. Catalyntie.

We have no record of the date of death of Polly (Van Orland or Van Arland) Mabie. The churches thereabout did not keep a burial list.

Of Abraham Mabie's second marriage we also have no record. The Tappan, Clarkstown and New York records have been searched, but the record of this second marriage has not been discovered. The Rev. Dr. Cole admitted that there were some breaks in the Tappan and Clarkstown records. Abraham Mabie's second wife was Wyntie Quackenbos. The fact that such was the case is abundantly proved by the baptismal records of the Tappan Church. Wyntie Quackenbos was born in Tappan, Nov. 22, 1742. Her baptismal record is No. 1222 in Dr. Cole's History of Rockland County. She was the daughter of Jacob Quackenbos and Annatje Elizabeth Brouwer.

A family legend states that Wyntie Quackenbos acted as a messenger for Gen. Washington when he had his headquarters in Tappan. She rode on horseback to New York, crossing the river in a row boat and secured the papers required by Gen. Washington and returning delivered them to him.

The Archives of New York published at Albany, showing services rendered by soldiers in the Revolutionary War, set forth that Abraham Mabie served as a private in Capt. Blauvelt's Company, and Col. A. Hawkes Hays Regiment of Militia. This regiment was in service during the different alarms from 1778 to 1780. Col. Hays was present with his regiment at the storming of Stony Point by Gen. Anthony Wayne on July 15, 1779 (see Archives of New York, pp. 419, 542).

Childern of Abraham and Wyntie (Quackenbos) Mabie:

+27. Abraham, b. Sept. 13, 1776; bapt. Oct. 6, 1776 in the Tappan Church. His baptism is No. 2477 in the baptismal record in Dr. Cole's History of Rockland County and his parents are given as Abraham Mebie and Wyntie Quackenbos.

28. Elizabeth, b. Apr. 14, 1779.

30. Rachel, b. Sept. 30, 1783.

This marriage is thus entered in the Tappan Church records: "Jan. 15, 1798 Abraham Mabie, Jr., of Tappan [was married to] Sarah Demarest of Clarkstown." Abraham Mabie was killed on the Erie Railroad Dec. 3, 1841.

A MUSTER ROLL OF CAPT. DANIEL COZEN'S COMPANY of the First Battalion of the New Jersey Volunteers (Loyalists), commanded by Lieut. Colonel Barton, dated, Long Island, September 12, 1778.

CONTRIBUTED BY WILLIAM A. ROBBINS,
Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society; the New England Historic-Genealogical Society; and the Long Island Historical Society.

Among the troops organized out of the loyalists during the American Revolution was a brigade of five battalions known as The New Jersey Volunteers, and which through consolidation in 1779 were reduced to four battalions The original muster-rolls of these troops comprise over 800 pages and, together with other very valuable Revolutionary material, now form part of the Canadian Archives.

In 1887, William S. Stryker, then Adjutant-General of the State of New Jersey, published The New Jersey Volunteers (Loyalists) in the Revolutionary War, in which were printed lists of officers only of what purports to be the different companies in these battalions during the period of the war. It is apparent that, at the time of publishing his work, he had not seen the original rolls above mentioned, and was not aware of the existence of the earlier roll printed below in full. A copy made and compared with the original by the Public Archives Department of Canada is in the possession of the contributor. The muster-roll here printed will be found to contain the names of the privates as well as those of the officers.

Adjutant Hamilton Chalmers, soon after the consolidation of the battalions mentioned, went to the West Indies, leaving his wife Mary and a child here. Her maiden name is believed to have been Jansen, or Johnson. August 9, 1783, she petitioned for permission to join her husband.

Chaplain Daniel Batwell is found later on the rolls of the 4th and 3rd Battalions. He had been the rector of the Episcopal Churches in the counties of York and Cumberland, Pennsylvania. In 1776, he had been arrested and lodged in prison for his loyalism. His family moved to New York when he joined the Skinner's Greens. At the end of the war he went to England.

Capt. Daniel Cozens is found later on the rolls of the 3rd and 2nd Battalions. He was killed, October 9, 1779, in the siege of Savannah.

Lieut. William Turner is found later on the rolls of the 3rd and 2nd Battalions.

Ensign George Swanton appears later on the rolls of the 3rd Battalion.

SOCIETY NOTES.

A Regular Meeting of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society was held on Friday afternoon, March 11th, 1921, at 4 P. M. The meeting was called to order by the President, Clarence Winthrop Bowen, who announced that the Society had lost by death since its last meeting the following named member: Edwin De Forest Weekes, an annual member who was elected April 27, 1916 and who died February 23, 1921 in his 70th year. The President also announced the following elections to membership: Miss Josephine Pomeroy Smith, Annual Member and Joel Wolfe Thorne, Annual Member, both proposed by John R. Totten, and Marion L'Mauder Lewis and Augustus Hewlett Skillin, Annual Members proposed by Clarence Winthrop Bowen. It was also announced that Miss Julia Gertrude Craft had been restored to membership. Mr. Bowen announced that at the meeting of the Society to be held on May 13, 1921, John Hill Morgan, Member of the New York Bar and Trustee of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences would deliver a lecture on "Early American Portrait Painters," which lecture would be illustrated by stereopticon views.

The Speaker of the afternoon was then introduced, the Princesse Cantacuzene, Comtesse Speransky (formerly Miss Julia Grant) who addressed the Society on the subject "The Old Régime in Russia and Russia To-day."

At the close of the address Capt. Richard Henry Greene made a few appropriate comments and moved that a hearty vote of thanks be extended to the speaker for her highly interesting and instructive address; which motion was duly seconded by George Riker Bishop, Esq., and unanimously carried.

The meeting then adjourned for refreshments.

A Regular Meeting of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society was held on the afternoon of Friday, April 8th, 1921, at 4.15 P.M., the President, Clarence Winthrop Bowen, in the chair. Wallis, the previously announced speaker of the day came in later, he having been unavoidably detained, and made a short extemporaneous address on the subject of "Immigration Yesterday and To-day."

The President tendered the thanks of the Society to both speakers, and the meeting adjourned for refreshments.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

The stenographer's written report of the wording of the address of His Excellency, Jean Jules Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States of America, which was delivered before this Society on April 10th, 1920, was placed in the hands of the Publication Committee of the Society at so late a date that it was impossible to submit the same to His Excellency the Ambassador for revision and still allow it to appear in the July 1920 issue of the Record. It was deemed desirable that it should appear in that issue of the Record immediately following the date of the address. It appears that the stenographer made certain errors in reporting His Excellency's address which the Publication Committee were unaware of, and for which His Excellency was in no way responsible. The stenographer employed to report the address was one supposedly of unquestioned accuracy in the execution of his work and the Publication Committee were not aware of the fact that His Excellency would desire to revise the stenographer's report and therefore it appeared in the July 1920 Record without His Excellency having an opportunity to edit the same.

We regret that the stenographic report was inaccurate and that the address as reported was not submitted to His Excellency for revision and still more greatly regret that His Excellency the Ambassador should have occasion to complain that his address as printed differed in any way materially from the phraseology in which it was delivered. Whatever errors are found embodied in the printed address were the stenographer's and not in any way attributable to His Excellency the Ambassador.

BOOK REVIEWS.

By JOHN R. TOTTEN.

EDITORIAL NOTE:—The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society solicits as donations to its Library all newly published works on Genealogy, History and Biography, as well as all works on Town, County and State History, or works embodying information regarding the Vital Records of any and all localities. It also solicits the donation to the manuscript collections of its library of any and all manuscript compilations which bear upon the above mentioned topics.

In consideration of such donations the works so presented to the Society will be at once placed upon the shelves of its library and will be reviewed in the next subsequent issue of THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD, each donation of such character, whether in printed or manuscript form, will be reviewed under the head of "Book Notices" and a copy of THE RECORD containing the review will be sent to the donor.

The Society does not solicit donations of publications or manuscripts on topics foreign to the above mentioned subjects, as its library is specialized and cannot accommodate material which does not bear directly upon its recognized sphere of usefulness.

Donations for review in the January issue of THE RECORD should be delivered to the Society before December 1st of the previous year; for the April issue, before March 1st; for the July issue before June 1st; and for the October issue, before September 1st.

All donations will be generously reviewed with a view of calling the attention of the public to their good points; but, while generous, the reviews will contain such proper criticism as the interest of the genealogical student would expect from the editorial staff of THE RECORD.

The "Book Notices" of THE RECORD are carefully read by all librarians as well as genealogical students, and the review of a work in THE RECORD is equivalent to a special advertisement of such work.

Letters of transmittal of donations of such works should embody the price of the work donated and the name and address of the person from whom it can be purchased.

THE MARTIN FAMILY OF IPSWICH, MASS., compiled by Charles Shepard, P. O. Box 302, Troy, N. Y. Blue Print Chart, 11 x 16 inches. Price $1.00. Address: compiler.

An excellent chart giving descendants of George Martin along the lines of certain of his descendants. Recommended to genealogical libraries.

THE DECATUR GENEALOGY, by William Decatur Parsons, of No. 18 East 63rd Street, N. Y. City. Octavo, cloth, pp. 55, with name index and thirteen full page illustrations of family interest. Copyrighted, 1921; privately printed, limited edition of fifty numbered copies.

This valuable contribution to family history gives a complete list of the descendants of the immigrant ancestor Stephen[1] Decatur who came over to this country and settled in Rhode Island in 1746. From him descended his only child Captain Stephen[2] Decatur of Revolutionary fame, who in turn amongst other children left a son Commodore Stephen Decatur, U. S. Navy whose services to his country have rendered the name of still greater honor in the annals of the sea. Thence the record of descendants is carried to the seventh generation. Those libraries that are so fortunate as to secure copies of this work are indeed to be envied.

HARRIS, DUNLOP, VALENTINE AND ALLIED FAMILIES, compiled for Mary (Harris) Morris, by William M. Mervine, Member of the Hist. Soc. of Pennsylvania, and a Director of the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania. Quarto, cloth, pp. 279, including a name index and an appendix entitled "The Alphabet of Thought or Elements of Metaphysical Science," pp. 74, with 108 full page illustrations, including portrait plates and reproductions of points of interest in family history. Printed for private circulation only. Edition of 100 copies. Copyrighted 1920 by Mary (Harris) Morris.

This volume is one of those rare family chronicles emanating from the mind of one imbued with an inherent love of the topic thus elaborately treated, and of one so well endowed with material prosperity as to be able to give to the publication that wealth of artistic literary treatment that renders its perusal a pleasure rather than a tedious pilgrimage after biographical, genealogical and historical facts. It is seldom that we are privileged to view a more perfectly presented volume, the literary contents of which is fully up to the standard of its artistic presentment. Those libraries that are so fortunate as to secure copies for their shelves are like ourselves much to be congratulated.

THE HISTORICAL REGISTER, A Biographical Record of the Men of our time who have contributed to the making of America. Volume for 1919. Edited by Edwin C. Hill. Octavo, cloth, pp. 199, with about 40 full page portrait and armorial illustrations. Volume for 1920. Edited by Edwin C. Hill, purporting to be a record of people, places and events in American history. Octavo, cloth, pp. 234, with about 66 full page portrait illustrations. Price per volume $10. Address: Editor, No. 393 Lafayette Street, N. Y. City. Telephone Spring 8558.

As the foreword of this prospective series states, this is "the first attempt to present in a dignified and appealing form the lives of American citizens of our own generation who have contributed to the making of America as a nation." It is to be the aim of its editorial staff to make it in its successive volumes: First and foremost, a biographical history of the American nation of our time. Second, a record of the lives of those of our day and generation whose careers were in line with their country's progress and development. Third, to offer the great examples of the past for the emulation of coming generations. Fourth, to preserve living in our memory the characters and personalities of those with whom it was a privilege to live and delight to honor, and Fifth to thereby construct a National Portrait Gallery of the best of our citizenship.

The aim of the management of this literary enterprise is ambitious and laudable and is moreover worthy of the full and generous support of the relatives of those who have been called hence. We think such a series of volumes will in time become of great value to the literary public. To judge from the character of the first two volumes of the prospective series, we think the initial efforts give promise of the establishment of a standard work of reference which will and should be upon the shelves of all libraries of general reference as well as those maintaining biographical and genealogical sections. Good luck to the effort!

ADVANCED NOTICE: We take great pleasure in announcing that the A. N. Marquis & Company, Publishers, of 440-442 Dearborn Street, South, Chicago, Ill., are preparing for publication a volume to be entitled "First Families of America," an abridged compendium of American genealogy to be issued under the editorial direction of Albert Nelson Marquis, Editor of "Who's Who in America," assisted by Frederick Albert Virkus, Associate Editor.

From the prospectus of the forthcoming work which will be ready for presentation to the public in about a year, we are convinced that it will be of the greatest usefulness for reference purposes and that it is destined to take its place as a standard work of genealogical and incidentally biographical information upon the shelves of public, institutional, college, school, society, club, steamship and hotel libraries; also in governmental departments, embassies, legations and consulates throughout the world. Those who take interest in having accurate genealogical information recorded relative to themselves are advised to communicate with the Editors relative to having their individual records embodied in this volume.

DESCENDANTS OF CAPT. SAMUEL CHURCH OF CHURCHVILLE, N. Y. Compiled by Etta E. Emens and presented to this Society by W. E. Sill, Executor of the Estate of C. T. Church, of No. 24 South Hawk Street, Albany, N. Y. Octavo, cloth, pp. 80, including name index and fifteen portrait plates. No price stated.

This excellent little volume gives the ancestry of Captain Samuel Church of Churchville and also the record of his descendants. It is decidedly a valuable contribution to the family history and genealogy of the descendants of Richard[1] Church, one of the original settlers of Hartford, Conn. Recommended to all genealogical libraries.

BIOGRAPHICAL REGISTER OF THE OFFICERS AND GRADUATES OF THE UNITED STATES MILITARY ACADEMY, at West Point, New York, since its establishment in 1802, by Brevet-Major-General George W. Cullum, Colonel of Engineers, U. S. Army, Retired. Supplement, Volume VI-A (Part I) and Vol. VI-B (Part II), 1910-1920. Edited by Colonel Wirt Robinson, U. S. Army. Octavo, cloth, pp. 1148+1148 about. Price $10.00 per set, delivery charges extra. Sold only in set consisting of both parts.

The completion of this volume VI (in two parts) of this most valuable biographical series gives us an opportunity to call the attention of the executive officers of all libraries maintaining biographical and genealogical sections to existence of and the intrinsic merit of the entire series as a work of reference. The series, upon delivery of this Vol. VI (in two parts), will consist of seven bound volumes and gives, in such detail as it has been found possible to obtain, the military record of the Graduates of West Point from its origin in 1802 up to 1920, inclusive.

All students of genealogy and biography recognize the great value of such works as Sibley's Harvard Graduates and Dexter's Biographies of Yale Graduates, and therefore will not regard it as too strong a statement if we say that while in general terms Cullum's (and his successor's) work ranks with them, yet it exceeds them in value because while Sibley's work ends with the biography of the class of 1689 and Dexter only gives the records of Yale graduates up to the Class of 1815, Cullum's Register of West Point Graduates with the Issue of Volume VI (in two parts) gives the records of all graduates down to 1920.

The fund which enables this work to be published every decade was left in trust by the will of the late General George W. Cullum (who himself compiled the first three volumes of the series) with the condition imposed that from the accumulated interest from this fund an additional volume of the series should be published every 10 years, thus keeping the work up to date and maintaining its value as a work of reference.

Under the terms of this trust the supplementary Volumes IV and V have previously been published and we now have Volume VI (in two parts) which brings the work down to the present decade.

Owing to Congressional legislation between 1910 and 1920 which has largely increased the possible number of cadets at the Military Academy, this last volume is twice as voluminous as any of its predecessors, and it has therefore been a doubly laborious task to compile it for publication. In appreciation of the value of vital facts relative to the life of individual graduates, this volume has been somewhat enriched by the addition of many birth dates which were not included in previous volumes, which additional information increases its value from a genealogical standpoint. The income from the fund left by General Cullum to support this work is not sufficient to bear the expenses of publication every 10 years of issues so voluminous as this one from 1910 to 1920. It would therefore seem advisable that steps be taken at once to increase during the present decade the Cullum trust fund to such an extent as to secure sufficient income to render certain the periodic appearance of these successive volumes. Should such course be pursued by the Alumni Association of West Point and should it be crowned with success, the value of succeeding volumes would be greatly enhanced by a still further inclusion in individual records of more vital facts, such as places of birth, places of death, and names of both parents of such graduates. Cullum's Register as it stands is an authoritative Register of the Military Service of those graduates who remained in the service after graduation and as such it is invaluable. It cannot however be gainsaid that there are possibly other events in such graduates' careers that may also be justly classed under the head of biography, and to a certain extent genealogy may be regarded a strong eugenic cause of resultant biography.

Cullum's Register records the biographies of West Point graduates as such biographies develop each successive decade; therefore the complete biography necessarily does not appear until death has intervened in each instance; but this progressive system is of much value as one can thus follow the careers of individuals during their lifetime.

In the cases of those graduates who after retirement from the military service in the U. S. Army have entered upon careers in civil life; and of those who subsequent to their graduation from the Military Academy resigned from the Army,—Cullum's Register gives in addition to such graduates' record, a record also of their subsequent civil activities.

A full set of Cullum's Register taken in connection with a full set of the annual reports of the Alumni Association of the United States Military Academy (which reports for the past twenty years or so have contained biographical sketches of those graduates that have died during the preceding year) will give in condensed form to any library all the biographical material quickly available with reference to West Point Alumni.

We advise all progressive libraries of general reference and especially libraries that maintain biographical and genealogical sections to at once secure this volume, and if not already in possession of the preceding five volumes to take steps to secure them.

We offer our congratulations to Col. Robinson on the completion of a piece of editorial work that reflects credit upon himself and which has resulted in the production of a volume certainly well worthy of comparison with its predecessors, and for the reasons above stated an improvement thereupon.

Vol. LII. NEW YORK, OCTOBER, 1921. No. 4

MARSHALL WINSLOW GREENE.

Marshall Winslow Greene was the only surviving son of Captain Richard Henry and Mary Gertrude (Munson) Greene; he was born in New York City, January 13, 1870.

He was educated at the Collegiate and Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, N. Y., and at the City College, New York, in which latter institution he was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity. After two years' study at the City College he was sent south by order of his physician, who insisted on his leading a less sedentary life; and by following this advice he was prevented from returning to college.

After a time spent in the employ of the Mercantile Bank, New York City, and in other business in New York City and Boston, he associated himself with the Adrian O. Schoonmaker Mica Company, at 221 Fulton Street and later at 88 Park Place, New York City, and was for some time the Vice-President of that company; and, after the death of Mr. Schoonmaker, on June 23rd, 1920, he became Acting President of the company and so remained until his death. He was always active in young people's organizations and Sunday Schools, and in the Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church of St. Nicholas, the Park Presbyterian Church on West 86th Street, New York City, the Congregational Church at Glen Ridge, N. J., and the Central Presbyterian Church at Summit, N. J. He was for many years a member of the Young Men's Christian Association; and an active Christian, kindly and helpful to elderly persons, sympathetic and attentive to children, always unselfish and generous.

He was fond of music, and had a fine tenor voice, on account of which he was called at times to assist in the choir of the church; he was active in the Glee Club of the Seventh Regiment, New York National Guard; and the Sons of the Revolution and the Men's Glee Club of Summit, N. J.

In the Sons of the Revolution he regretted that two societies, having the same object in view, should exist; and he joined the Sons of the American Revolution mainly to aid in effecting a union of the two societies; but nothing could then be done.

He was a member of the original society of the Sons of the Revolution, and a Life Member thereof from April 14, 1891.

His great-great-grandfather, Captain James Green, commanded the Second Regiment of Connecticut Light Horse at the Battle of White Plains (in 1776) in Washington's army, and at Stillwater, Bemis Heights, Freeman's Farms and at the capture of Burgoyne's army (1777) in the northern army under General Gates. Neilson reports (page 195, etc.) that Captain Green and one of his company volunteered with Captain Dunham for the capture of the gang of Tories under Thomas Lovelace, which expedition was successful and the Tories were brought in to headquarters, tried by court martial, and the leader was hung on a hill opposite the Schuyler Mansion. Neilson lived in the neighborhood and Green's company was in camp nearby; so Neilson learned about the Captain from some of his men, and published a sketch of him which is interesting.

His great grandfather, Colonel William W. Todd, commanded the 82nd Regiment of New York, in the War of 1812.

Two of his ancestors were killed in the Great Swamp Fight (1676), in King Philip's War. One of them, Captain Samuel Marshall, commanded the Windsor, Conn., Company; the other, Captain John Gorham, commanded the Second Company from Barnstable, Mass.

Marshall Winslow Greene, himself, was a member of the Seventh Regiment of the New York National Guard for eleven years, in which organization he was decorated as a marksman and sharpshooter. He also served in Company B of the New Jersey Militia Reserve during the late war with Germany. He was at the first meeting, No. 12, as one of the founders of the Society of Mayflower Descendants, in 1894, through his descent from John Tilley, John and Elizabeth (Tilley) Howland, Richard Warren, and Stephen and Gyles Hopkins.

He was a Life Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, a Life Member of the New York Society of American Wars and of the New Jersey Society of American Wars, of which last Society he was Recorder from its formation and commander since 1919.

On November 19th, 1904, he married at Montclair, N. J., Anna Schoonmaker DeBevoise, daughter of Gabriel and Mary (Schoonmaker) DeBevoise, who was born at East Williamsburgh, Long Island, N. Y., on August 23, 1875. He is survived by his widow and two children, to wit:

1. Mary Winslow Greene, born April 19, 1906, at Glen Ridge, N. J.
2. Richard Schoonmaker Greene, born February 17, 1915, at Summit, N. J.

Mr. Greene died at his home, No. 74 Passaic Avenue, Summit, N. J., suddenly, after a week's illness, from pneumonia. The interment took place in the Greene Family Mausoleum in Riverside Cemetery at East Haddam, Conn., where a final religious ceremony was held.

SOME GENEALOGICAL ABSURDITIES.

Contributed by Zera S. Fink,
With Editorial Comment by John R. Totten.

Creditable as is the work being done at the present time towards preserving genealogical records, it must be admitted that many absurd and erroneous genealogical statements which ought never to have been published, and which scrutinizing historico-genealogical criticism will invariably reject, are still finding their way into family histories and records.

It cannot be charged that this fault lies entirely with those amateur family historians that are over zealous to prove their descent from illustrious forebears. A careful examination reveals the fact that some professed genealogical experts, who ought to know better, are providing their clients with family trees that are preposterous. Scientific genealogists who utilize historical criticism and sound judgment in establishing pedigrees, could produce convincing facts and figures to show why some alleged genealogies are utterly impossible. Descents from Trojan heroes, for instance, are fast becoming quite as numerous as unclaimed family fortunes in Europe; and the claim of descent from some old Trojan warrior is deserving of about as much credence as the statement that such and such a family descended from the war-god Mars.

But of all absurd pedigrees, none, perhaps, are quite so ridiculous as those which carry family surnames back to the times of Charlemagne or even to more remote antiquity. A few pedigrees there are, indeed, which with some show of authenticity are traced back to that remote period; but a genealogy which purports to trace a family surname back to the days of some old hero of the seventh or eighth century is absurd, for the simple reason that even the most ancient of modern surnames did not originate until about two hundred and fifty years later.

In the same connection it is also timely to observe that family coats of arms did not come into general use, in England at least, until after the Norman Conquest. The custom of bearing coat armor has always been abused. People in the old days assumed coats to which they had no right, and to-day there are hundreds boasting a coat of arms wrongfully assumed and in direct defiance of all the laws of heraldry. These people fail to realize, apparently, that there are quite as many ways of detecting spurious coats of arms as there are of determining what is and what is not true in a family history.

It is also true that a claim of descent from some old Norman baron of William the Conqueror's time must have some evidence to back the claim, other than mere assertion of the fact and a similarity of surname, to make the claim worthy of any consideration. Do not be mislead by this into thinking that the writer would deny the accuracy of all claims of descent from William's barons. There are, indeed, some very clearly proven pedigrees tracing back to the Norman conquest; but it is nevertheless still true that only comparatively few of the oldest families can establish the connection with any degree of acceptance. What is true of the Norman barons is also true of claims of descent from this or that renowned warrior of Crecy and Agincourt.

So it goes on until it seems that family historians and unscrupulous genealogists never intend to cease fabricating imaginative or deliberately untrue pedigrees and genealogies. Still, in the last few years, the growth of criticism of genealogical work has been having a healthy influence, and the good work of such magazines as the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record will, let us hope, eventually bring every one to a realization of the fact that, if their pedigrees are to be of any value, they must contain the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

Editorial Comments by John R. Totten.

Upon its submission to us, and after a first perusal of the foregoing article, the unfortunate—yes pitiable—facts which the essay was written to condemn, were deemed by us to be sufficiently self-evident to render them axiomatic, and to need no further ventilation. We questioned the desirability of giving space for the publication of critical matter with which the properly inspired genealogical student was already regretfully familiar.

Upon maturer consideration, however, we were forced to recognize the fact that the periodic re-utterance of painful, well known truths, may operate to correct unfortunate existing conditions which have arisen from forgetfulness or a too feeble appreciation, on the part of some, of these same axiomatic veracities, however trite they may be known to be.

A keen observer of human nature (it was, if I am not mistaken, Phineas T. Barnum of circus renown) based his entire success in the show business upon his thorough appreciation of the belief, as voiced by him, that "a fool is born every minute;" and upon the gullibility of such fools he depended in reaching the pinnacle of his financial success. If a fool is born every minute—and we are somewhat inclined to believe that such is the case—it is no more than reasonable to suppose that some of this large army of congenital mental weaklings will in time be inspired with a desire to acquire (however obtained) what purports to them on the face of it to be a pedigree tracing their blood lines back to remote antiquity. And, actuated by such uneducated impulse, it frequently happens that (too indolent or too incompetent to make the necessary research themselves) they place themselves in the hands of professional genealogists; and the pedigree which is furnished them will depend entirely upon the character of the genealogist whom they may employ. If the genealogist is trustworthy and competent, the reported result of his research will be in accordance with discoverable facts. If the genealogist is not dependable, the pedigree submitted by him will be forced by him in such a manner as to suit what he regards to be the weaknesses and desires of his client,—and thus one of the periodically appearing genealogical fools is supplied with a fraudulent and often preposterously absurd pedigree; and, ignorant of the inconsistencies set forth in such a reputed line of descent, the victim of this fraud complacently flaunts it in the faces of those who readily recognize the imposture. As the old Spanish proverb so aptly puts it: *Aunque se vista de seda la mona la mona se queda.

It is said to be clear evidence of insanity for an individual to systematically cheat himself at the game of solitaire. If such be the case in solitaire where the only one cognizant of the fraud is the player himself, how much more pronounced must be the mental lesion, when one asserts the right to a pedigree that he has not good and sufficient reason to believe is indisputable; and how still more flagrant is it in the case of the assumption of a pedigree which the individual knows has no foundation on solid facts.

While the world lasts, such easily obtained genealogical endorsement will appeal to a certain quota of the constantly recruiting class of genealogical fools; and there will always be found unscrupulous genealogists who will, Barnum like, cater to them.

That fraudulent individuals are to be found amongst professional genealogists, is by no means a reflection upon the entire profession itself. Quacks and charlatans are to be found pursuing their nefarious practices under the garb of the noble profession of medicine; the honorable profession of the law shelters many unscrupulous attorneys and counselors; the church harbors many priests and deacons that should be excommunicated; and general business of all classes is contaminated by fraudulent operators. It would therefore be unreasonable to expect that the profession of genealogy, alone amongst the others, should be free from the weaknesses characterizing a small percentage of the other professions and businesses.

While bearing in mind Barnum's dictum that, "a fool is born every minute," of which class genealogy reaps its allotted quota, we must also recognize at the same time the fact that where one fool is born, there are born at the same minute ten normal minded individuals; and it is to these ten of common sense, the large, preponderating majority, that true scientific genealogy makes its proper appeal.

The fault of the genealogical fool lies primarily in a misconception of the proper function of true genealogy. Genealogy, pure and simple, has to do solely with determining the vital facts, such as dates and places of birth, baptism, marriage, death and burial of the human beings who formed, or form, the consecutive links in the chain of an individual's descent from the most remote discoverable ancestor. Genealogy has to do solely with who one's various ancestors may have been. When one seeks to ascertain what these ancestors may have been, one enters the field of biography. The real student of genealogy seeks to ascertain who are his ancestors irrespective of what they were. In fact, genealogy is essentially a democratic science, inasmuch as it simply teaches the methods to employ by means of which we may, with the least possible waste of time and labor, satisfy the natural human craving of the individual to ascertain who his forebears were.

* Even though clothed in silk, the monkey is a monkey still.

The true function of genealogy is lost sight of by the unthinking and uninitiated, and amongst them the popular impression exists that the sole aim and object of genealogical research is to produce evidence of descent from some notable ancestor, while more or less disregard is shown for others in the chain of descent who may happen to be of lesser fame. It is this unthinking estimate of true genealogy that fosters and encourages the genealogical fool. He is obsessed with the idea that he will aid in surrounding himself with the seeming aura of aristocracy if he can exhibit to the casual observation of the world apparent evidence of descent from ancestors of historic and enviable repute; and, in frequent instances, where such ancestry cannot be veraciously determined, it is nevertheless, by dishonest genealogists, furnished him by forced methods of proof, which are seemingly wholly satisfactory to the willing victim. He thenceforth parades himself in his stolen garb of genealogical renown with all the complacency of the ass in the lion's skin.

Genealogy in itself is a sober, dignified and most engrossing study. Superficially it seems utterly devoid of any suggestion of humor—and we recognize that a touch of humor may possibly stimulate a pursuit, which, while interesting itself, may yet further respond to enlivening influences—and to fill this need of humor the genealogical fools step in, and the various forms of their individual exhibitions furnish a fund of humor which so fully supplies the demand, that the newspaper genealogical joke, of which the genealogical fool is the source and foundation, is now running a close second to, if not outstripping, the long over-worked mother-in-law stock witticism.

After all is said and done, inasmuch as the assumption of a false or erroneous pedigree is not a crime, unless used to establish a claim fraudulent in the eyes of the law,—that of which the genealogical fool is guilty beyond all question is an unpardonable offense against good taste; and in accordance with the principle of noblesse oblige, violations of the tenets of good taste are sins unpardonable in those who claim to be of gentle estate.

The author's remarks relative to the unauthorized use of coat-armor are all pertinent to conditions now existant, and which have been so for an extended period. As in the exploitation of faulty pedigrees, so also the unauthorized assumption of heraldic insignia of a family other than one's own is a distinct offense against good taste. In the popular parlance of the day we may say, it is not done. But unfortunately in the literal interpretation of the words it is done and should be forcibly frowned down upon.

The author's contention that there is a certain chronological limit prior to which the authentic use of a family surname cannot be proven is not to be questioned. Surnames from a historical standpoint are of comparatively modern adoption.

As regards the author's views as to the limit back of which it is impossible to trace authentic blood lines, we are inclined to be a little more liberal in our views of the matter than he seems to be. We do not presume to be didactic in a discussion of this kind; our mind is open and we seek enlightenment. We are advocates of scientific genealogy, and we should be the last ones to admit that there are time limitations to such scientific research other than the origin of historic time. We will, however, compromise with the author and admit that genealogy cannot delve deeper into the historic past than the Adamic period, as set forth in the Book of Genesis.

On the assumption that the genealogies of the Old Testament are correct and that those of the New Testament are equally so, we have in the Bible (the most ancient of all genealogical protagonists) the setting forth of a blood line from Adam to Christ.

Again, admitting that the covenants of the Old Testament are to be accepted as utterances upon divine authority, we have the covenant as uttered in Genesis XLIX, 10:—"The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a law giver from between his feet until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be." With this covenant as a basis of argument, supported by the accepted genealogies of the Old Testament, we have it proven that the sceptre did remain in the house of Judah in unbroken line until the reign of Zedekiah; that Tea Tephi, one of the daughters of King Zedekiah, went with the other daughters of Zedekiah, under the care of her great-grandfather Jeremiah the prophet, to Egypt, where she was known as the "Jew's daughter," and thereafter disappears from Biblical history. Secular history, however, takes up the thread of her life; and, disappearing from Egypt, Tea Tephi, still accompanied by her great-grandfather, Jeremiah the prophet, is next located by secular historians in Ireland, where she appears in the Chronicles of the Irish Kings as Pharaoh's daughter; and where she, almost immediately upon her arrival in Ireland, married Eochaidh, King of Ireland, in whose veins also flowed the blood of Judah as specifically set forth in secular history. By this union of two strains of the blood of Judah in the marriage of Tea Tephi and Eochaidh, the covenant that the sceptre should not depart from the house of Judah was perpetuated; and by the evidence of the Annals of the Irish Kings and those of the Kings of Scotland we are furnished a substantial argument, supported by a school of earnest students of history, that the sceptre continued in the house of Judah by the way of the Irish Kings and thence by intermarriage, by way of the Scottish Kings, and again by direct descent, by the way of the English Kings, to the present representative of British Sovereignty, King George V of England, in whose person is perpetuated the covenant to the house of Judah.

From the above we see that a strong chain of historical evidence is furnished that a true blood line may, with all semblance of accuracy, be traced to the Ante-Diluvian period—in fact to Adam the Biblical first man.

Granting the Biblical genealogies to be exact, and knowing that secular history is careful to perpetuate with care the genealogies of those of the direct Royal blood lines, we thus have a continuous blood line, from Adam to King George V of England, to form a cable to which we may attach our genealogical anchor with some degree of security. It is well appreciated that all of those in whose veins Royal blood flowed did not succeed to Royal honors; and that, in most instances, by the due lapse of time, the recognition of royal consanguinity ceased and in many cases was forgotten. But, with this permanent chain of evidence to guide us it is by no means impossible, and certainly not absurd, to produce evidence that many modest and respectable (or otherwise) individuals of these democratic United States have strains of Royal blood in their veins, which fact neither adds to nor detracts from their general established reputation.

We appreciate the author's statement of his belief that this publication, the official organ of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, has had some influence in checking these well recognized violations of genealogical equity and well doing.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society takes this occasion to announce that the Society itself, and the Record its mouthpiece, stands for the following beliefs in its endeavor to inculcate into the minds of all whom it can reach a proper appreciation of what constitutes true genealogy.

Genealogy is a science, and as such it must be made an exact science; its records must be based upon positive evidence or upon circumstantial evidence that demands acceptance; it should not wander into the fields of tradition or conjecture except to furnish possible clues towards clearing up undetermined details of records as yet incomplete. In fact, the scientific genealogical record of a family should be so perfect, as far as it goes, that its records will be accepted as evidence in court; and such that its evidence may be accepted as indisputable in deducing therefrom eugenic conclusions.

Genealogy has to do with the recording of the vital facts (such as parentage, occupation, progeny, places of birth, baptism, residence, marriage, death and burial) concerning individuals that form constituent parts of the genealogical record under construction.

Genealogy as above defined has to do with the construction of the genealogical records of specific ancestors and their known and demonstrated ascendants and descendants, arranged chronologically and consecutively as to generations, according to some standard method adopted by one of the leading genealogical publications of the day,—and as such it has to do with the record of entire families springing from a common ancestor: or it has to do with the recording of the vital facts relating to an individual, and, by consecutive generations, to the various progenitors of this individual along a selected strain of blood, to the most remote known ancestor of this individual along this selected strain,—and as such has to do with pedigrees of individuals.

Genealogy is a science that appeals to the normal and healthy mind of all intelligent human beings. Its methods have developed to give aid in satisfying an inborn human craving to know, in so far as it is possible to accurately determine it, the vital facts concerning one's forebears. It is essentially democratic in its appeal. Emphatically it is not the perogative of the temporarily rich and self-regarded aristocracy.

Genealogy is the essential foundation of biography; it confines itself by definition to a determination of the vital record of individuals in demonstrating by blood strains who they were irrespective of what they were.

Biography has to do with what individuals were; in its generally accepted definition, it includes within its field certain elements of genealogy (as no biography is complete without a statement of the vital facts regarding the individual life treated); but, in its larger field, it has to do with the recording of those acts and incidents which go to make up the life of the individual irrespective of whom his ancestors may have been.

If we were supplied with complete scientific genealogies of all of the various human families, and accurate biographies of all the various members of these families, we would have a tabulation of facts and figures from which scientific eugenic conclusions could be deduced.

The history of a country may properly be defined as the recorded composite biography of all its citizens and inhabitants.

Thus we see that all history has its foundation in genealogy.

This Society deprecates the promulgation of fraudulent genealogical data by unscrupulous genealogists and sincerely hopes that legislation (similar to that which, to a limited extent, protects the professions of law and medicine) may be enacted to check such fraud.

The development of the science of genealogy along the above sketched theoretical lines is our inspiration: Sic itur ad astra. But we appreciate the difficulty of realizing ideal aims; and, by force, must be content with climbing as near to the stars of our ambition as possible.

In these days of business demoralization, when, as the result of war—and such war as has never before been even dreamt of—it seems that the moral sense of mankind in general business has been stunted and dwarfed beyond recognition,—to institute reform along any particular line seems a more Herculean task than the cleaning of the Augean stables. Yet supine silence in the face of glaring offense has never accomplished a reform; and, therefore, we utter our protest against fraud in general, and in particular against fraud in the field of our endeavor, Genealogy.

I., Six Principle Baptist Church, 6-7-1788, and was ordained there 8-14-1788. A branch church was formed at what is now known as Perth, N. Y.; and, as many of the members were from the Richmond, R. I., church, a call was extended to Elder Henry Joslin to come and serve them. On 3-8-1806, he asked permission of the Richmond Church to remove to Perth, which was granted. For some reason he must have delayed his departure from Richmond, as the church records show that he was not dismissed until 9-17-1810. He is buried in the ground that surrounds the location of the church he preached in, although the church itself has been torn down. His tombstone bears this inscription—"In memory of Henry Joslin, Elder of the Six Principle Baptist Church of Jesus Christ of the Ancient Order in Amsterdam, who departed this life March 14, 1813 in his 65th year. Is this the fate that all must die? Will death no ages spare? Then let us all to Jesus fly, and seek for refuge there."

ROGER PRESTON, aged 21 yeares in the Discouerie March 1621.

* * * *

From which three abstracts we see that on January 21st 1624 there was living at Jordans Jorney, Charles Cittie, one ROGER PRESTON, aged 21 years, who came over to America on the ship Discovery in March 1621. He was therefore born about 1603.

---

* "[This fourth name is in a different handwriting from the preceding three, and was doubtless inserted after the succeeding paragraph (in which three only are referred to) had been written.]"

And that there also sailed, on April 8th, 1635, from London for New England a ROGER PRESTON, a tanner, aged 21, who was therefore born about 1614.

From the facts as stated it is evident that these two Roger Prestons could not have been one and the same individual. But taking into consideration the rather unusual baptismal name of Roger and the none too usual surname of Preston, we think it fair to presume that these two colonists, one born in 1603, who emigrated to Virginia, and one born in 1614 who emigrated to New England, were of some blood relation one to another.

This article has to deal only with the Roger Preston who sailed from London, April 8, 1635, for New England. It is our purpose to give the record of this Roger Preston and one line of his descendants to the fifth generation, and then give as full a record of the descendants of this particular couple of the 5th generation as we have been able to determine.

1. ROGER PRESTON, b. in England in 1614 (he was 21 years old on April 8, 1635). He came over to this country, sailing on the ship Elizabeth from London on April 8, 1635. Our first knowledge of him is in Ipswich, Mass., where he settled and where he was a proprietor before 1639. He sold his land and houses there in 1657. On March 14, 1658-9, he bought from George Norton the lease of the farm of Lucie Downing, wife of Emanuel Downing and was to take possession under the lease on March 15, 1659-60. This lease was to run until March 1st, 1665-6. This farm was on what is known as the "old Ipswich Road," and there he was licensed to "keep an ordinary and to sell strong liquors" in 1661 and 1662. He died 20: 11 m: 1665 (see Vital Records of Lynn, Mass., Vol II, p. 570, and also according to the Early Court Records of Essex County, Mass.), at Lynn, Mass., but we have no record of the place of his burial. He m. probably about 1640, at Ipswich, Mass. (probably, but the exact place is not known), Martha ---- (whose maiden surname and parentage have not as yet been determined, but who was probably a child of some couple living in Ipswich, Mass., as she was but 13 years old when Roger Preston arrived in this country in 1635 and could not have married him in England, and Ipswich was the first place of long sojourn of Roger Preston), b. 1622, about (as she made oath on the 19th of the 4th month 1666, when she was about 44 years old, and at which time she was the wife of her second husband Nicholas Holt, relative to her son Thomas Preston by her first husband Roger[1] Preston); she died March 21, 1703, at Andover, Mass., aged upward of 80 years, but her place of burial has not as yet been discovered.

Children: 7 (Preston), 5 sons and 2 daughters:—

2. Thomas, b. 1643 (his brother Samuel, then aged 15, on the 19th 4th mo. 1666, testifies under oath that his brother Thomas Preston a year and a half previous, about (i.e. about Dec. 19, 1664) bought a red heifer from his father Roger Preston (see Essex County, Mass., Early Court Records) and hence it is assumed that he was on Dec. 19, 1664, of full age of 21 years and must have been b. as early as 1643 (or earlier), at Ipswich, Mass., in all probability; m. Rebecca Nurse (or Nourse) and lived at Salem, Mass.: 4 children.

+3. Samuel, b. 1651; d. July 10, 1738, aged about 84 years; m. (1) Susannah Gutterson; m. (2) Mary (Rolandson) Blodgett. See hereafter.

4. John, m. Nov. 2, 1687, Andover, Mass., Sarah (Geery—Geary—or Gary) Holt widow of John Holt whom she m. July 3, 1685; he was a son of Nicholas and Hannah (Bradstreet-Rolfe) Holt of Andover, Mass.; he was b. Jan. 11, 1663; d. March 10, 1686-7): 6 children.

5. Jacob, b. 1658; d. 1679; perished at sea.

6. Levi.

7. Elizabeth, m. William Henfield.

8. Mary, m. Nathaniel Ingersoll.

Martha (——) Preston, widow of Roger Preston, m. (2) May 21, 1666, at Andover, Mass., Nicholas Holt (as his third wife) and by him had no children. Nicholas Holt, a tanner, came over to this country on the James, sailing from England, April 5, 1635, and coming from Romsey, England; he settled at Newbury, Mass., until Nov. 14, 1652, when he sold his land and houses there and removed to Andover, Mass. His date of birth is not positively determined. In a deposition made by him 11-2-1671, he stated that he was then about 63 years old, which would place the year of his birth about 1608. The record of his death states that he was 104 years old at death which took place in 1685, which would place his year of birth about 1581. Savage referring to this difference of stated ages at death agrees with Coffin, who states that he was 83 years old at death which places his year of birth 1602. He was b. at Romsey, England (possibly); d. Jan. 30, 1685, at Andover, Mass. Nicholas Holt m. (1) Elizabeth ——? who d. Nov. 9, 1656, at Andover, Mass., and who was the mother of the first seven of his children; he m. (2) June 12 (or 20), 1658, at Ipswich (and also recorded at Andover), Mass., Hannah—or Anna—(Bradstreet) Rolfe (dau. of Humphrey and Bridget (——) Bradstreet of Ipswich, Mass., and widow of Daniel Rolfe (or Rofe) the inventory of whose estate was taken June 24, 1654). She d. June 20, 1665, at Andover, Mass. Children: 10 (Holt), 5 sons and 5 dau'ts.; first seven b. in Newbury, last three in Andover: first 8 by his first wife; last 2 by his second wife; none by his third wife Martha (——) Preston. Not in Preston line.

1. Elizabeth, b. March 30, 1636; m. Oct. 26, 1658, Ralph Farnam.

2. Mary, b. Oct. 6, 1638; d. May 17, 1723; m. July 5, 1657, Thomas Johnson.

3. Sarah, b. June 2, 1640.

4. Samuel, d. Nov. 7, 1703, at Andover, Mass.

5. Henry, b. 1643-4; d. Jan. 13, 1718-19, aged about 75; m. Andover, Mass., Feb. 24, 1669-70, Sarah Ballard (or Ballerd), dau. of William Ballard.

6. James, d. Dec. 14, 1690; m. Andover, Mass., Oct. 12, 1675, Hannah Allen.
7. Nicholas, d. Oct. 8, 1715; m. Andover, Mass., Jan. 8, 1679, Mary Russell.
8. Priscilla, b. June 20, 1653; d. Oct. 16, 1653, at Andover, Mass.
9. Rebecca, b. Nov. 14, 1662.
10. John, b. Jan. 11, 1663; d. March 10th, 1686-7; m. Andover, Mass., July 3, 1685, Sarah Geary (Geery or Gary).

On the 19th of the 4th month, 1666, he being then about 15 years of age, Samuel Preston made an affidavit relative to his brother Thomas Preston (see Essex County Court Records) which places the date of Samuel Preston's birth at about 1651.

15. JOHN PRESTON, b. May 1, 1685, Andover, Mass.; d. July 26, 1733, Windham, Ct., and was bur. Hampton, Ct. (formerly the second parish of Windham) where a gravestone marks his resting place, which stone was recut and restored by C. H. Preston of Danvers, Mass., about 1898. As restored this stone states that he died "in 42d year" which is in error for he was born in 1685 and if he died July 26, 1733, he would have been over 48 years old. Mr. C. H. Preston said that before recutting the inscription on the stone was almost illegible, and I am inclined to think the original cutting was misinterpreted and not properly restored. He m. Jan. 10, 1706-7 (recorded at Andover, Mass.), Mary Haines, b. March 3, 1687, Haverhill, Mass.; d. ——? She was a dau. of Jonathan Haines of Haverhill, Mass. (b. 1616, in England, who came over to this country in 1633, settled at Newbury and removed to Haverhill where he was killed by the Indians, Feb. 22, 1697-8, gravestone in Ancient West Parish Cemetery, Haverhill, Mass.; m. Dec. 30, 1674, Newbury, Mass.), as his second wife Sarah Moulton (b. Dec. 17, 1656; d. ——?; dau. of William and Margaret (Page) Moulton of Hampton) of Haverhill, Mass. Jonathan Haines' first wife was Mary Moulton whom he m. Jan. 1, 1674, and who d. soon after marriage in the same year; it is supposed that she was a sister of his second wife who had a sister Mary Haines.

Children 12 (Preston), 8 sons and 4 daughters; the places of birth of the first two are not known as they are not recorded either in Andover or Killingly, Ct.; the 3rd to 10th children were born in Killingly, Ct., and the 11th and 12th were born in Windham, Ct.

+20. John, b. about 1708 (he is said to have been the eldest son), Andover, Mass., or Killingly, Ct.; m. March 18, 1731, Windham, Ct., Eleanor Stiles. See hereafter.
21. Mary, b. about 1709-10; she is said to have been the eldest daughter.
22. Susannah, bapt. Sept. 9, 1711, in Killingly, Ct.
23. Jonathan, bapt. Feb. —, 1714, in Killingly, Ct.
24. Joseph, bapt. Feb. 28, 1717, in Killingly, Ct.
25. Benjamin, bapt. June 22, 1718, in Killingly, Ct.
26. William, b. 1721, about, in Killingly, Ct.
27. Abigail, bapt. Sept. 15, 1723, in Killingly, Ct.
28. Theodore, b. 1722-24, in Killingly, Ct.
29. David, bapt. Oct. 10, 1725, in Killingly, Ct.
30. Samuel, b. Aug. 20, 1727, in Windham, Ct.
31. Sarah, b. Feb. 6, 1729-30, in Windham, Ct.; d. young, probably.

John Preston lived in Andover, Mass., until after his marriage. He received a grant of land in Killingly, Ct., in 1709, and probably removed there soon thereafter. He removed to Windham, Ct., between Oct. 10, 1725 (when his last child, born in Killingly, Ct., was baptized there), and Aug. 20, 1727, when his next child was born in Windham, Ct. He made his will Sept. 13, 1731, which was sworn to by witnesses Aug. 22, 1733, and it was finally probated at Plainfield, Ct., Sept. 11, 1733. His wife Mary was his executrix and all of the children as above recorded were mentioned in the will except Sarah who it is inferred died young. The division of his estate was ordered made July 11, 1738, and his widow and the same children are mentioned in the division. Mary Haines his wife was captured by the Indians in Haverhill on March 15, 1696, and was ransomed the next year for one hundred pounds of tobacco. By a deed recorded in Haverhill, Mass., it is shown that she married John Preston of Andover and removed to Connecticut. She was living in Windham, Ct., Oct. 12, 1730, as appears by her signature to this deed.

20. JOHN PRESTON, b. 1708, about (his date of birth is not recorded; but, as his parents were m. Jan. 10, 1706-7, and as he is said to have been the eldest son, it is inferred that he was b. about 1708), Andover, Mass., or Killingly, Ct. (for his father lived until marriage at Andover and was married there, and is supposed to have removed soon after his marriage to Killingly, receiving a grant of land there in 1709); d. ——? at ——? He was dismissed from Ashford to Litchfield Church, Oct. 11, 1747. The Harwinton, Ct., records show that he first bought land there of John Watkins of Litchfield, Ct., June 18, 1756, for which he paid £1400. The Winchester records show that he and his son Jonathan were in Winchester in 1767 and 1769. He was last heard of in Litchfield, Ct., in 1775, and it is said that he and his sons Asa, Stephen and Jonathan removed to Sheffield. He m. March 18, 1730-1, Windham, Ct., Eleanor Stiles, b. Feb. 17, 1703, Boxford, Mass.; d. ——? at ——? She was a dau. of John Stiles (son of Robert Stiles, b. June (or Jan.) 30, 1761, at Rowley Village, Essex Co., Mass.; d. ——? (prior to May 13, 1753); m. Nov. 24, 1684, Boxford, Mass.) and his first wife Deliverance Towne, dau. of Jacob and Catherine (Symonds) Towne of Topsfield, Mass. (b. Aug. 5, 1664, at Topsfield, Mass.; d. May 16, 1700 (according to History of Boxford, by Perley) or 1703-5 (according to Vital Records of Boxford, Mass., p. 266) or 170(5) (according to Mass. Stiles Family, p. 21). John Stiles and his wife Deliverance were admitted to full communion Topsfield, Mass., church March 18, 1687-8; and on Sept. 25 (or Oct. 4), 1702, John Stiles was dismissed to Boxford, Mass., to form with others a church there and on Jan. 2 (or 17) following, his wife Deliverance Towne was dismissed to church at Boxford. John Stiles of Boxford mentions his daughter Eleanor "Presson" in his will, which will was dated Jan. 15, 1733.

Children: 6 (Preston), 5 sons and 1 dau.: first three b. in Windham, Ct.; last three in Ashford, Ct.:—

32. Asa, b. June 8, 1732; m. Dec. 24, 1755, Ruhamah Taylor. Children: 5 (Preston), 3 sons and 2 daughters:—
    1. Jehiel, b. Litchfield, Ct., May 22, 1756.
    2. Asa, b. Litcheld, Ct., Oct. 13, 1758.
    3. Ruhamah, b. Harwinton, Ct., Oct. 20, 1760 (or Oct. 22, 1761).
    4. Levi, b. Harwinton, Ct., Dec. 24, 1762; d. July 6, 1811, aged 48 years, New Canaan, N. Y.
    5. Rachel, b. Harwinton, Ct., Jan. 23, 1765.
33. John, 1st, b. April 12, 1735; bapt. Windham, Ct.; April 20, 1735; d. young.
+34. John, 2nd, b. March 25, 1739-40; d. Nov. 14, 1804; m. Marium (Marian, Marion or Miriam) Bristol. See hereafter.
35. Anne, b. Aug. 7, 1741; bapt. Aug. 23, 1741, at Ashford, Ct.
36. Stephen, bapt. Sept. 18, 1743, at Ashford, Ct.
37. Jonathan, b. May 10, 1746; bapt. June 15, 1746, at Ashford.

John Preston and Eleanor his wife were admitted to the 2nd Church at Windham, Oct. 19, 1736 (see Hampton (then Windham Village), Ct. Church Records). On April 4, 1742, by a letter of dismissal from the Rev. Mr. Samuel Mosely of the 2nd Church Hampton, Ct., they were admitted to Ashford, Ct. Church (see Ashford, Ct. Church Records). On Oct. 11, 1747, John Preston, Senior and Eleanor his wife were dismissed from the Ashford Church to the church at Litchfield, Ct. After this notice of his dismissal to Litchfield, Ct., we have no definite information regarding him. We do not know where either he or his wife Eleanor died, nor the dates of their respective deaths. The Litchfield, Ct. Probate Records gives no reference to them and it is assumed that they removed elsewhere to a locality not yet determined.

In the printed Genealogical Register of Litchfield, Ct., p. 179, we find recorded that a John Preston m. Susannah Andrews on Nov. 6, 1775, and had two children:—(1) Susannah, b. Apr. 17, 1776, and (2) Diadamia, b. March 6, 1778. Who this John Preston was is not clear; but it is not probable that he was our John Preston (No. 20) as he would have been 67 years old in 1775, and possibly too old to have begotten two children. And he is not John Preston, son of John and Eleanor (Stiles) Preston, No. 34, as will be seen from his record to follow.

Noah Preston lived in Harwinton and Litchfield, Ct., and also for a short time in Bristol, Ct.; he removed to Whitesboro, N. Y., for a while, but on account of a severe outbreak of smallpox there he returned to Connecticut and later after 1806 he removed to Camden, N. Y., where he settled and died. He served as a soldier in the Revolutionary War in Connecticut; he enlisted at Harwinton under Col. Beebe and Capt. Wilson and he was pensioned for his services and his widow also drew a pension on account of his services. A monument to the memory of Revolutionary soldiers has been erected at Camden, N. Copy of a letter written by Calvin Johnson from Ripley, Chautauqua Co., N. Y. (P. O. address Quincy, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.), January 20th, 1830, to David Johnson (his brother) at Camden, Oneida Co., N. Y. The original of this letter was loaned to me by Mrs. James H. Gamble of Camden, Oneida Co., N. Y., she being a daughter of David Johnson and the letter being an old one found amongst her father's effects.

"Dear Brother: I promised to write you when I got settled down. I and my family are well what are at home. Rossiter is teaching school down in Pennsylvania; we have heard nothing from him or our friends down there since he went away in November. Brother Spencer was up here a little before that, they were all well then. We have heard nothing from Ohio since we left Camden. I have bought a farm in Ripley, Chautauqua Co. (N. Y.) about ten miles west of Portland Harbour. We had a very good journey out; the boys arrived in Buffalo just before we started after we got all our things on board the Steamboat. Polly and Cornelia were some sea-sick crossing the Lake, but have been well ever since. We have had a very open winter here, so far, we have not been to meeting but once with a sleigh yet; and then it was bare ground half the way. The snow has fallen three or four inches deep last evening and today; and if it holds on I think we shall go down to Spencer's next week. We want to see you and your family very much; you must write me as soon as you receive this; we miss our circle of Camden friends, though we enjoy ourselves very well: the inhabitants are respectable people mostly from the East. I have bought two hundred and seventy five acres of land, with ninety or a hundred cleared, a small aple orchard and a plenty of peaches, a framed Barn; but the worst of all is a Log house, though a good of the kind. I can tell you better how I like the country after one summer. Wheat is 75 cts. per bushel. Corn 37½ cts. in trade. Money scarce. I have run in debt some; my land cost me six dollars per acre; have payed out my money pretty close, and shall want that from Zopher Tuttle very much to buy cows in the Spring. I want you to go to Esquire Sanford and tell him to get it if possible this winter; and I want you to send it out. Willard Doolittle talked of coming out in the Spring; tell him Miles was sorry he did not tell him whether he was coming or not. I think you will have a chance to send by him or Miss Rathburn, or Miss A. Joslin. Tell Miss Joslin that I think to go to her brothers, she had best come to Portland; and from there to my house in Ripley, as this town joins; Mina and I will help her along. If Esquire Sanford should not get that money, I wish you would send me twenty or thirty dollars and take your pay when it is collected. If you have no chance to send it to me. You can get it in to one bill and cut it in two and send it one half at a time by mail. I want you should see the folks as soon as may be and let me know who is coming and what the prospects are. Please to write all the news you can think of. Tell us what your daughters name is; give my respects to all inquiring friends.

Ripley, January 20th 1830—your friend and brother

88. Thomas Stevenson of London, England, and his descendants, by John R. Stevenson, M.D., Flemington, N. J., 1902.

P. 76.—The children of William and Mary (Bunting) Stevenson are given as follows:—i. John; ii. Samuel; iii. William; iv. James; v. Alice. There should be inserted a sixth child, Susan, probably the youngest of the family. Her record, with her children (I think female lines are carried to the second generation whenever possible in this book) is as follows:—Susan Stevenson, b. 1771, Burlington County, N. J.; d. 19 Sept., 1847, Burlington Co., N. J.; m. ——, John Brown, son of John and Alice (Coward) Brown, who was b. 1762, Burlington Co., N. J.; d. 29 Oct., 1820. Children of John and Susan (Stevenson) Brown (all born Burlington Co., N. J.):—

i. Elizabeth Lloyd, b. 19 Jan., 1796; d. 21 Sept., 1873.
ii. Susan, b. 2 April, 1797; d. 11 Aug., 1873; m. 15 Dec., 1814, Robert Woodward.
iii. John, b. 21 Dec., 1798; d. 7 Jan., 1882; m. 11 Dec., 1823, Phebe Ellis.
iv. Lydia Wallen, b. 29 March, 1801; d. 24 Dec., 1885; m. 27 May, 1824, Tilton Wildes.
v. Mary Stevenson, b. 7 May, 1804.
vi. Daniel Newbold, b. 19 June, 1806; d. 18 March, 1834; m. ——, Ann Fowler. No issue.

Authority:—There are several different points of evidence corroborating the above correction, nearly any one of which, alone, would be sufficient, and the combined weight of which leaves no possibility of error in placing Susan Stevenson as a daughter of William and Mary (Bunting) Stevenson. These points are the following:

First: Private manuscript records compiled by my grandfather, Franklin Hylander Bowen, Esq., of Philadelphia. This manuscript was written while most of the children of Susan Stevenson were still alive, by a man whose wife was a grandchild of Susan Stevenson; therefore it is almost certain to be correct.

Second: Tombstone inscriptions from the Baptist Cemetery at Jacobstown, Burlington Co., N. J., where many of the family are buried.

Third: The Bunting Family tree, a large chart about 6 x 8 feet. A copy of which is in the library of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, at Philadelphia. It will be seen above that the Susan Stevenson under discussion is a daughter of William Stevenson and Mary Bunting. The Bunting Family tree has the valuable property of tracing down all the female lines as well as the male. It shows Mary Bunting's marriage to William Stevenson; it gives Susan among the other children, and it traces the descendants of all of them.

Fourth: The memory of Miss Rebecca Ellis Brown, now living at 557 Church Lane, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa. She is a daughter of John Brown, third child of John and Susan (Stevenson) Brown (see above). She was b. in 1824, and is now nearly 96. By reference to dates it will be seen that her grandmother, Susan Stevenson, did not die until Miss Brown was 23 years of age. Miss Brown has, therefore, a very clear recollection of her grandmother, and states that she knows positively that she was a daughter of William and Mary (Bunting) Stevenson.

Fifth: An old letter, now in the possession of Miss Rebecca Ellis Brown, above. This letter is dated 5 month, 25 day, 1834, and is from Susan Stevenson to her brother Samuel Stevenson. It mentions other members of the family and family matters in such a way as to leave no doubt as to the identity of the sender or the addressee. This letter shows definitely that Susan Stevenson was a sister of Samuel Stevenson, who was known to be a son of William and Mary (Bunting) Stevenson.

These five points seem to indicate conclusively that Susan Stevenson should have been included with the other five children of William and Mary Stevenson. The omission in the Stevenson Genealogy, however, was not intentional, but was an oversight. It was not that the author decided she was not a child of William; the fact is that he did not even discover her existence. I have had some correspondence within the last few weeks with the publisher of the book, who helped the author in the compilation. He agrees that my records are in all probability correct. Another correction: The author of the Stevenson Genealogy was not able to get the dates of birth of many of the people given in the book. The following are some dates which I know, but which are not found in the book; also the date of birth of a child, Margaret, who is not even mentioned in the book. She was probably unknown to the author, like Susan. Unfortunately I know nothing more about her except the date of her birth. She may have died young, or she may have married and had descendants.

P. 44.—Children of John and Mercy (Jenings) Stevenson:—

34. Thomas, b. 10 day, 7 month, 1707.
35. Samuel, b. 13 day, 4 month, 1709.
36. Ann, b. 23 day, 1 month, 1711.
37. John, b. 2 day, 1 month, 1713.
38. Abigail. I have no records.
39. Mercy. No record.

P. 44.—Children of John and Margaret (Wood) Stevenson:—

40. William. No record. Date in book probably correct.
41. Margaret (not mentioned in book), b. 21 day, 12 month, 1731-2.
42. Susannah, b. 4 day, 4 month, 1735.
43. Mary. No record.

P. 72.—Child of Samuel and Elizabeth Stevenson:—

91. Ann, b. 26 September, 1751.

Authority for the above dates of birth: Bible record now in possession of Mrs. Lewis Billingslea, of 445 West Price Street, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Stevenson family was originally a New York State family and the blood is now scattered mainly through New York and New Jersey.

89. New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, Volume XII.

P. 81.—12th line from top of page, in the article entitled: Records of St. George's Church, Hempstead, L. I. [N. Y.], the entry should read:—Jan. 28 [1737] Abraham Southard [married] Cornelia Barns, B. (B stands for "after due publication of Banns"). The original of this particular entry has been carefully examined by the Rector of St. George's Church, the Rev. Charles H. Snedeker, who states that the name Absalom should read Abraham.

90. HOWARD-HAYWARD GENEALOGY.

P. 791.—Adin Ballou, in his History of Milford, Mass., says: "As nearly as I can trace them, our Haywards and Howards are descended from three brothers, who came from Swanzey," and he names Samuel, William and Jonathan. Having prepared a genealogy upon this theory he adds, p. 815: "This Hayward and Howard part of my genealogy has been exceedingly perplexing and difficult of execution. I fear I have fallen into several errors."

The author's fears were well founded. He places Jonathan, a minor in 1692, as "the youngest of these three brothers," overlooking the fact that William Hayward, the father of Samuel, was drowned at Braintree in 1659, and could not have been the father of the minor, Jonathan.

The author mentions a Howard-Hayward genealogy in the possession of the Hon. Alphonso Taft, of Townshend, Vt. (whose mother was a Hayward), which differs materially, and is therefore disregarded. I am filing with the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society what I have every reason to believe is a copy of the Taft record, as it was given to me in 1885 by one of the Howards of Townshend, who was a cousin of Taft's, with the assurance that it had been handed down through the family for many generations.

This record shows that William Hayward, the original proprietor at Braintree, had four sons, William, Samuel, Robert and Jonathan; that William was killed in the Indian war, and Robert died in 1683; that the Jonathan placed by Ballou as a brother of Samuel was his son; and that the Jonathan placed as the son of Samuel was the son of Robert. A comparison will show many other points of divergence, but the vital records of Swansea, Braintree, Rehoboth and Mendon, Mass., seem to support the Taft records.

91. DAVID RICH of Eastham, Mass., and David Rich of Wallingford, Conn. (see Rich family of Eastern Connecticut, by Edwin A. Hill, New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, July, 1920, pages 222-232, inclusive):—

Richard[1] Rich, who removed from Piscataqua (Dover, N. H.) to Eastham, Cape Cod, was admitted a townsman there Aug. 23, 1681. (N. E. Hist. Gen. Register, 1852). He died intestate 1692. Inventory 19 Oct., 1692. In the settlement of his estate, given in the Barnstable Co. Probate Records (Vol. 1, p. 138) it is specifically stated that his son Richard[2] Rich was the eldest son and the names of the other children follow his:—John,[2] Thomas,[2] Samuel,[2] Sarah[2] and Lydia.[2] This Richard[2] Rich, the eldest son, m. Anne ——, whose family name still remains unknown. They are both buried in the Old North Cemetery at Truro.

Thomas[2] Rich, the third son, and his wife Mercy Knowles, m. 23 July, 1701-2, were the parents of that David[3] Rich, b. at Eastham, 17 March, 1710, who, it is claimed, settled in Connecticut as did several others of this family.

Eastham records show but little in regard to any David Rich.

One of the name, who might easily be the David, b. 1710, was m. there 6 Dec., 1734, to Hannah Brown, they had a daughter, Elizabeth Rich, recorded as born in Eastham, 15 March, 1743. (Eastham Record).

The carefully compiled article in the July number of the N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record, 1920, questions the oft-repeated statement that the above David[3] Rich, son of Thomas[2] and Mercy Rich, removed to Wallingford, Conn., and died there 1748 in his 54th year, because he must have been born as early as 1695 or else have been less than seven years of age at the time of his marriage. In the light of these dates the David Rich, b. 1695, could scarcely have been David[3] Rich, b. 1710, son of Thomas.[2]

To support this natural doubt the following items are of convincing interest: 1. Abigail Rich, daughter of Nicholas and Abigail Rich was born at Wenham, 2 Oct. 1687 (p. 73, Wenham Mass., Vital Statistics).

2. David Ritch, son of Nicholas and Abigail Ritch was born at Wenham, 18 July, 1695 (p. 74, Wenham Vital Statistics; Vol. 1, p. 1, Wenham Records).

Again on 26 Nov., 1713, David Rich was one of the witnesses to an Indenture by which Nicholas Rich and his wife Grace Rich of Attleboro agree to sell certain land which said Nicholas Rich had bought from Jacob Reed of Salem (Bristol Co. Reg. of Deeds, Vol. 30, p. 26). Further, Jan., 1724, David Rich of Meriden Farms had a horse of Nath.[1] Holister, &c.

The first child of David Rich and his wife Elizabeth was Abigail Rich, b. 18 Sept., 1717. (Recorded at Wallingford).

Finally David Rich of New Cambridge in Co. of Hartford, made his will 23 Feb., 1747-8, wife Elizabeth and children mentioned. (Hartford Wills, 15,339). David Rich died 4 June, 1748, in his 54th year. (Bristol, Conn.)

.The Rich Family of Eastern Connecticut, by Edwin A. Hill.

P. 227.—Top line, Town of Orange should read Town of Orleans.

P. 227.—15th line from bottom of page, Penelope Brown should read Penelope Bonfoye.

The statement is made on p. 223, that No. 2. Thomas[5] Rich married as his 2nd wife, at Eastham, April 13, 1727, Thankful Sears. This statement came from the manuscript of Mr. James A. Kibbe, and is unquestionably incorrect as shown by the following references to which my attention has been called by Mrs. F. W. Benham of New Britain, Conn.

"John Rich, Jr., and Thankfull Seers were married by Mr. John Avery, on ye 13th day of April Anno Domini 1727." Eastham and Orleans Vital Records, in Mayflower Descendant, Vol. 16, p. 196. This John Rich, Jr., is No. 105 of page 190 of the Treat Genealogy, where a full account will be found, showing that this branch of the Rich family descends from John Rich, a brother of No. 1. Thomas[4] Rich (see p. 222, Vol. 51, N. Y. Genealogical and Biographical Record).

This marriage was evidently wrongly assigned by Mr. Kibbe to No. 2. Thomas[5] Rich (see also Sears Genealogy, p. 59 and also Vol. 14, Mayflower Descendant, p. 94), where will be found the tombstone inscriptions at Truro of John Rich and his wife Thankful, which further confirms the above conclusion.

The following additional data has been furnished me by Mrs. Benham:—

No. 1. Thomas[4] Rich (see N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record), was born about 1680 perhaps in Eastham, and died there in 1753, his will being probated Nov. 6 of that year. His wife Mercy was born Sept. 15, 1681.

As to the family of No. 2. Thomas[5] Rich (Vol. 51, p. 223, N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record), his daughter No. 18, Bathsheba (Mrs. Benham states) married 1766, John Haling. No. 20, Sarah, m. William Bradford of Haddam, and was the ancestor of Mrs. Benham whose line from William Brewster through Thomas and Mercy (Knowles) Rich has been accepted by the Connecticut Society of Mayflower Descendants.

Under the name of No. 6, David[5] Rich (Vol. 51, p. 224, N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record) reasons are given why the writer questioned the statement of Beers, that David Rich of Wallingford and Bristol, Conn., was the son of Thomas and Mercy (Knowles) Rich. Mr. George W. Bartholomew, the author of the Bartholomew Genealogy, quite recently told Mrs. Benham in discussing this question that this family of David Rich of Wallingford came from Salem, Mass., and that he (George W. Bartholomew) was one of his descendants, and that David Rich of Wallingford and Bristol, Conn., was a descendant of Richard of Eastham, but not through the son Thomas who married Mercy Knowles, thus confirming my doubts as to the Brewster descent of this Bristol branch of the family.

BOOK REVIEWS.

BY JOHN R. TOTTEN.

EDITORIAL NOTE:—The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society solicits as donations to its Library all newly published works on Genealogy, History and Biography, as well as all works on Town, County and State History, or works embodying information regarding the Vital Records of any and all localities. It also solicits the donation to the manuscript collections of its library of any and all manuscript compilations which bear upon the above mentioned topics.

In consideration of such donations the works so presented to the Society will be at once placed upon the shelves of its library and will be reviewed in the next subsequent issue of THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD, each donation of such character, whether in printed or manuscript form, will be reviewed under the head of "Book Notices" and a copy of THE RECORD containing the review will be sent to the donor.

The Society does not solicit donations of publications or manuscripts on topics foreign to the above mentioned subjects, as its library is specialized and cannot accommodate material which does not bear directly upon its recognized sphere of usefulness.

Donations for review in the January issue of THE RECORD should be delivered to the Society before December 1st of the previous year; for the April issue, before March 1st; for the July issue before June 1st; and for the October issue, before September 1st.

All donations will be generously reviewed with a view of calling the attention of the public to their good points; but, while generous, the reviews will contain such proper criticism as the interest of the genealogical student would expect from the editorial staff of THE RECORD.

The "Book Notices" of THE RECORD are carefully read by all librarians as well as genealogical students.

Letters of transmittal of donations of such works should embody the price of the work donated and the name and address of the person from whom it can be purchased.

ADVANCED NOTICE:—The Yearbook of Americans of Achievement. The first volume of this proposed work is now in the process of preparation for publication, and we have before us what purports to be advance proof pages thereof. This work is to be published by the Bureau of Military and Civic Achievement, located at No. 922 F Street, Washington, D. C. From the use of the word Bureau in the corporate name of this enterprise, taken in connection with the location of its headquarters in Washington, D. C., the general public might easily draw the inference that the Bureau was conducted as a part of the Federal Government. Such however is not the case; the Bureau is entirely a private enterprise, without any connection whatever with any of the official departments of the United States government.

The Bureau of Military and Civic Achievement is preparing an Index in its archives of all American families whose immediate members, or their ancestors, have by some military or civic act or deed contributed to the cause of Americanism. Distinctions thus achieved are to be registered in connection with the pedigrees of individual members of these families. There is to be no charge for the mere act of registering proof of such achievements or for filing such pedigrees; and suitable blanks are supplied on request for the same accompanied by payment of postage delivery.

The successive volumes of this proposed series of Yearbooks of Americans of Achievement, are to be made up of the published pedigrees of those of the registrants who desire to have them included in such volumes and are at the same time willing to pay for such privilege; such pedigrees are to set forth in full the achievements, military or civic, which form a part of the biographical record of individuals forming links in the pedigrees. It is the purpose of the Bureau of Military and Civic Achievement to place copies of the successive volumes of this series gratuitously on the shelves of the libraries of Public Archives of the various States of the Union, in the libraries of State Historical Commissions and in the Library of Congress of Washington, D. C. The Bureau itself will derive its support for the enterprise from the publication of registrants' pedigrees and family achievements, etc., etc. The multiplicity of ultimate depositories for safe keeping of this proposed series will go largely towards increasing the availability of the series as a work of reference.

We can in all sincerity assure the genealogical public that the advance proof sheets now before us give promise of a work, which if successful enough to develop into a series of regularly appearing volumes, will, from the appearance of the proof sheets of the volume, take its place amongst the valuable biographical and genealogical works of reference now available. We wish the enterprise all success, and would suggest that those whose interest may happen to be aroused by this brief and inadequate sketch of the Bureau's intentions should communicate with the management directly for further elucidation.

Advanced Notice:—Index of Ancestors, to be published by the General Society of Colonial Wars.

This volume will be a Register for the entire General Society, including all State Societies, and will give the names and records of all ancestors accepted by the Society since its inception. There will be included more than 15,000 ancestors with note of their services and also a list of all present or deceased members of the Society with references to the ancestors recorded for each individual. The book will be printed and bound in cloth uniformly with earlier Registers published by the General Society. It will contain more than 700 pages. The "Index" will be an exceedingly important publication and should be in the hands of every member.

It has been found necessary to invite advance subscriptions for this work; and only enough copies will be printed to cover the subscriptions. The book will be sold for $7.50 if 500 copies are ordered and for less if the number of subscriptions exceed that number.

The compilation of the volume is completed and is now ready to place in the hands of the printers.

All libraries maintaining general reference, biographical and genealogical sections should secure this Index as it is sure to be a valuable assistance aiding those desirous of joining the Society of Colonial Wars. The Index of Ancestors has been carefully edited by the Registrar General of the General Society of Colonial Wars, Arthur Adams, Ph.D., Professor of History of Trinity College, Hartford, Ct.

Intending subscribers are urged to place their subscriptions at once so that the size of the edition may be determined, which will also regulate the price of the volume. Subscriptions should be made payable to the Treasurer of the Society of Colonial Wars and mailed to No. 43 Cedar Street, N. Y. City.

INDEX OF NAMES IN VOLUME LII.

In cases where various forms of spelling of the same general family surname exist, these various forms of spelling will be grouped under one heading in the name index. The page reference in each instance will be recorded under the baptismal name of the individual and the particular form of spelling used in each instance will be found under the page reference.
